LETTERS INDICATE BRIBERY IN DEALS FOR CITY-OWNED POWER PLANTS

Revealing Correspondence Found by Federal Trade Commission in Files of Defunct Foshay Companies in Minneapolis.

"OIL" AND "SUGAR" TO PROMOTE SALES

Sliding Scale of "Brokerage Fees" Rising as Cost of Property to Private Buyer Diminished Is Proposed by One Manager.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—Clear indications that private power interests have bribed city officials in order to get possession of municipally-owned electric plants are contained in letters recently taken from the files of the defunct W. B. Foshay companies of Minneapolis by investigators of the Federal Trade Commission.

"Oiling your way through these municipal sales," to use the vivid language of one power company official, appears to have been a fairly common practice. The correspondence makes frequent references to "oil" or "sugar" for avid city councilmen.

All the letters relate to the efforts of the Foshay organization and its utility holding company, the Public Utilities Consolidated Corporation, to buy municipal plants in the South and West. The Foshay allied companies went into receivership last November with the prospect of heavy loss to their security holders. Numerous promotion schemes were embraced in the so-called Foshay businesses.

Investigation of the companies was undertaken by the Federal Trade Commission as part of its inquiry into the propaganda of electric power interests and their financial practices.

Incidentally, the Trade Commission has discovered that the Foshay organization in 1929 was negotiating for the purchase of a large number of small newspapers in order, as W. B. Foshay wrote, that it might "have a real power with the small-town people of this country." This project collapsed with the failure of the companies.

"Oiling Way Through."

One of the most illuminating of the letters tells of the maneuverings of the Foshay group, through its utility holding corporation, to acquire the municipal electric light plant at Burlington, Colo. Two other concerns, the Inland Public Service Co., a subsidiary of the Fairbanks-Morse Co., and the Commonwealth Utilities Co., were also after this plant.

L. E. Lynch, manager of Foshay's public utilities Kansas corporation, outlined the situation in a letter Nov. 26, 1928, to R. J. Andrus, resident manager of the Public Utilities Consolidated Corporation. Lynch reported that competitors were in the field and that some of the city councilmen were waiting to make up their minds how to vote.

"I know," he wrote, "that you do not look with favor on the plan of 'oiling your way' through these municipal sales, and I agree with you that such a practice is detestable. It has been hard for me to finally be compelled to admit, regardless of my feelings contrary to such practice, that at least eight out of 10 councils I have contacted during my brief acquisition experience can only be handled through the 'oiling system.'"

"I have been approached by a man who claims that he can handle the council for a consideration and he assures me that Burlington will be sold soon and advises me that we lose no time if we really want to acquire the property.

Suggests "Brokerage Fee."

"I am wondering if it would not be advisable to let the man mentioned handle the matter for us as a broker for a regular brokerage fee, he to handle the fee as he sees fit, and if it is necessary to apply 'oil,' that will be a matter of his and the councilmen's consciences to decide, we to be interested only so far as the amount of the brokerage fee that we pay our agent is concerned.

On Jan. 10, 1929, Lynch wrote to Andrus that the bid of a rival outfit, the Inland Public Service Co., had been accepted. He com-

"GREEN PASTURES" EXCLUDED FROM ENGLAND BY CENSOR

No Reason Given, But It Is Thought Introduction of Character of Deity Is Cause.

(Copyright, 1930.)

LONDON, June 21.—Marc Connolly's play, "The Green Pastures," winner of the Pulitzer prize for 1929-30, was barred from England today by Lord Chamberlain Cromer. The play was submitted to the censorship of the Palace under the normal routing by Maurice Brown, who said today that no reason was given, but added:

"Lord Cromer informed me in a very sympathetic letter that he was unable to license 'The Green Pastures.' I do not feel that I can question his decision, however much I regret it in the interests of the theater."

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 21.—Connolly's secretary said tonight that, while no official explanation of the Lord Chamberlain's action has been received here, it is understood the play was barred from the London stage because it introduces the Deity as a character and calls for the portrayal of that character by a Negro actor. Connolly at present is in France.

BROKER ARRESTED FOR $95,687 SHORTAGE IN WALL STREET FIRM

Harold R. Ryder Once Reputed Worth $15,000,000 Accused of Larceny; Company Suspended.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 21.—Once considered a genius in the financial world, Harold R. Ryder, whose dissipations are alleged to have sent his brokerage firm to the wall, was arrested tonight on a warrant charging grand larceny. He furnished $10,000 bond and was released.

Ryder's partners in the firm of Woody & Co., which was suspended Thursday by the New York Stock Exchange, specifically allege that he misappropriated $95,687 entrusted to him to purchase securities.

When their firm was suspended, they said they could find only a few hundred dollars in assets and more than $3,000,000 in liabilities. Ryder admitted he handled about $7,000,000 of the firm's funds during the past eight months. Only 37 years old, Ryder was credited with having run a few dollars into a fortune that at one time was estimated at $15,000,000.

500 INJURED IN BOMBAY CLASH, GOVERNMENT ORDER IGNORED

Women Lead In Resistance to Police; Sympathy Revolt Anticipated at Pashawar.

By the Associated Press.

BOMBAY, June 21.—Demonstrations here today by the Nationalist followers of Mahatma Gandhi resulted in more than 500 injuries, the greatest number in Bombay since the civil disobedience campaign opened March 12.

There are indications of other tumultous scenes tomorrow, with police preparing to break up a demonstration of sympathy for 17 members of the Eighteenth Garhwal Rifles who were imprisoned for disobeying orders in a riot at Peshawar.

Today's troubles occurred principally on the Maidan esplanade, a large meeting ground forbidden to Nationalists by official order yesterday because native troops are quartered at one end.

The volunteers gathered on the Maidan this morning anyway, following previous plans for a review by Pandit Motilal Nehru, acting president of the All-India Nationalist Congress. A band of 500 led by women resisted the longest.

THOUSANDS SEE PLUNGE TO DEATH OF KILLER OF FIVE

Escaped Maniac Leaps Two Hours After He Had Hurled Family Off Cliff at New Haven.

ON OUTING WITH WIFE AND CHILDREN

Fireman About to Reach Raymond C. Spang When He Jumps—Several Shots Fired at Slayer.

By the Associated Press.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 21.—Raymond C. Spang, 35 years old, of Ansonia, a World War veteran who escaped yesterday from a hospital for the insane, today hurled his wife and four children to their death down a 300-foot cliff known as West Rock, and then followed in a suicidal leap.

Spang was committed to Brooklyn Naval Hospital nine weeks ago and on April 23 was transferred to Base 81, Kingsbridge, for treatment for psychosis mania depression. He escaped yesterday afternoon and came directly to his home in Ansonia.

Two hours after he had sent the five members of his family hurtling through the air, Spang jumped off a ledge, 75 feet below the summit. Thousands of spectators and many policemen and firemen saw the man leap from the ledge. Four bodies were picked up at the base of the cliff. Two had already been taken to a hospital.

Besides Spang, the victims were his wife, Gertrude Carey Spang, 33, former Ansonia school teacher, and their children, Helen, 10; Lorraine, 7; Raymond, 5, and Donald, 4.

Children Playing Nearby.

The place of the killings overlooks a small baseball park which, like the rock, is in the city's park system, on which groups of children were playing at the time. From the summit of the cliff Yale bowl can be seen, a mile away.

The outing to West Rock was to have celebrated Spang's homecoming. The family left their Ansonia home, about 10 miles away, this morning in an automobile. The excursion was suggested to Spang by his children, who were overjoyed because of his return from the hospital.

The start of the tragedy was witnessed by many persons, some in homes which are on streets which end at the Rock, but mostly by boys and girls who were playing at the foot of the cliff. These latter, horrified by the sight of bodies whirling in the air, were unable for some time to give a description of the sight. One lad, Maury Bagdanoff, who was watching a man on the top of the cliff, saw a child pushed over—he ran in his fright until he could find a telephone, and then all he could do was to blurt out "Grace Hospital."

Fires Shots at Slayer.

William Hague, a drug store clerk, said he saw Spand descend the cliff to where two bodies of his children had lodged, remove them and kick them further down the cliff. Hague said he got a shotgun and fired four times in the direction of Spang as the latter clung to a ledge. The distance was too far for shots to reach the man.

The World War veteran began climbing down the face of the cliff after he had sent his wife and four children to their death. Firemen and policemen, notified of Spang's precarious perch, came with ropes and ladders to rescue him. Ambulances and physicians arrived. While some searched the rocks and bushes at the foot of the cliff for bodies, others ascended the top in automobiles in an effort to reach Spang.

A fireman, Ernest Berube, was lowered with a rope from the summit of the cliff to within 10 feet of where the war veteran was standing. He engaged Spang in conversation and learned his name while spectators watched tensely from below and above.

Witnesses saw Spang stir. Later it was learned he was removing his shoes. Suddenly he stood upright. He remained poised for a fraction of a minute on the ledge, his arms stretched before him, and then he jumped off.

Shamrock V Wins Again.

By the Associated Press.

BANGOR, Ireland, June 21.—The Shamrock V, Sir Thomas Lipton's challenger for the America's Cup, won another easy test for big yachts today, defeating the White Heather by six minutes. The Shamrock will now sail for Clyde to participate in seven tune-up races.

MAKES NONSTOP FLIGHT, NEW YORK TO MEXICO CITY

Col. Roberto Fierro Makes Distance of About 2300 Miles in 16 Hours and 35 Minutes Without Hitch.

SPLASHES DOWN INTO MUDDY FIELD

Crowd, Waiting in Rain, Breaks Through Police, to Hail Flyer—Greeted by President and Aids.

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, June 21.—The first non-stop flight from New York to Mexico City was completed by a Mexican aviator today. Col. Robert Fierro flew the distance of approximately 2300 miles between Roosevelt Field, New York, and Valbuena Field, here, in 16 hours and 35 minutes.

He exceeded by only half an hour the mark of 16 hours he had hoped to set. Missing an escort of airplanes sent out to meet him, he landed alone, taking the spectators by surprise. A previous false alarm had made them cautious about identifying the airplane as his.

Splashing down into the muddy field, but making a clean landing, Fierro was greeted with roars of applause. Amid cries of "Vica Fierro! Viva Mexico!" he and his mecnanic, Arnulfo Cortes, were triumphantly carried on the shoulders of the crowd into the Emilio Carranza hangar.

There they were greeted by President Ortiz Rubio, Secretary of War Joaquin Amaro, and other officials. Both aviators were smiling and said they were not very tired from their long and speedy flight.

Betters Lindbergh's Time.

Fierro not only made the first nonstop flight from New York to Mexico City, but bettered by more than 10 hours the time set by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh in December, 1927, between Washington and Mexico City. Lindbergh required 27 hours and 10 minutes for his nonstop flight from Bolling Field to the Mexican capital. Fierro used a Lockheed Sirius monoplane with low wings, a duplicate of that used by Lindbergh for his recent trans-continental flight.

The Mexican flyer's record run was made in clockwork fashion. From Roosevelt Field he followed a route by Montgomery, Ala., New Orleans, Brownsville, Tex., and Tampico, Mexico. Between the last two places he successfully dodged a severe electric storm sweeping in from the gulf.

A crowd of less than 10,000 persons, standing in the rain that had converted the field into a slippery mass of mud, broke through the police lines and guards of soldiers as his plane came to a halt. Rufino Fierro, the Colonel's father, who made his frist trip to Mexico City from his home in Chihuahua today, waited until the first burst of enthusiasm had spent itself, and greeted his son inside the hangar.

Crowd Storms Hangar.

While the Colonel and Cortes were receiving congratulations inside the hangar from President Ortiz Rubio and their families and friends, the crowd tried to storm the doors, yelling for another sight of the aviators.

News of the landing was heralded through Mexico City by extra editions of newspapers and the blowing of factory and locomotive whistles and sirens.

Fierro has gained a reputation in the Mexican Air Corps for being a cool, conservative flyer. In all his feats he has kept his head and bided his time. In the present case he waited for a fortnight

SUSPECTS SECRET OF GIRTH CONTROL IS IN THE BRAIN

Chicago U. Doctor Trying to Discover Just How Energy-Burning Factor Works.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 21.—Girth control rests in the brain, Dr. Russell Wilder, chairman of the University of Chicago's department of medicine, said today in a lecture on obesity.

"Evidence is accumulating that some factor in the brain—probably the midbrain—controls the balance of weight in some such way as to dispose of extra energy intake," Dr. Wilder explained, "but until we discover just how this incineration factor works and learn to influence its action, we shall have to depend on diets to control obesity."

Loss of two pounds a week for the first 14 pounds and one pound weekly thereafter was described by Dr. Wilder as the maximum reduction rate for safety.

WALLACE (IDAHO) OFFICIALS GUILTY IN LIQUOR CASE

Mayor and Police Chief Among 32 Accused of Making Bars Pay Expenses of the Town.

By the Associated Press.

COEUR D'ALENE, Idaho, June 21.—The 32 defendants in the Wallace, Idaho, liquor conspiracy case were found guilty today by a jury in Federal Court.

The principal defendants were Mayor Herman J. Rossi, former Mayor W. S. Herrick and Police Chief W. J. Bailey, all of Wallace.

They were accused of conspiring to violate prohibition laws by levying regular fines on liquor dealers, the money going into the city treasury where it was used in building bridges, paving streets and maintaining schools.

Judge J. H. McNary will pass sentence Monday.

Twenty of the defendants admitted donations were made and defense counsel argued that the sentiment of the city favored a "wide open" regime and that inasmuch as no personal graft was involved, it was proper for liquor and vice to contribute to the betterment of the city.

Twenty men in Mullan, Idaho, were convicted recently of conspiring to collect from saloons, using the money to pay the city police force. In each case, the Government charged, police saw to it that the money was paid into the treasury.

Eight Wallace men against whom charges were dismissed were regarded as minor offenders and the Court decided there was insufficient evidence against them.

The case was given to the jury last night.

Accused of Embezzling City Funds

By the Associated Press.

DENVER, June 21.—Isaac H. Merritt, former secretary to Mayor Ben F. Stapleton, was indicted by the county grand jury today on a charge of embezzling $26,802 of the city's funds.

100 PER CENT ASSESSMENT ON BANK STOCKHOLDERS

Notice Given Following $1,000,000 Peculation of Cincinnatian Who Lost in Stock Market.

CINCINNATI, O., June 21.—O. C. Gray, Superintendent of State Banks, today acted upon the advice of Attorney-General Gilbert Bettman and notified stockholders of the Cosmopolitan Bank & Trust Co. that they would be assessed 100 per cent as a result of the bank's closing, which was caused by the 1,000,000 peculations of A. W. Shafer, former district manager of the H. L. Doherty Co.

Gray said assessment of the stockholders would become effective five days after they received the notice.

Examiners found a shortage of $623,000 in Shafer's account with the bank and nearly an equal shortage existed in his account with the Doherty Co.

Shafer said he lost the money gambling in the stock market after winning $700,000 there.

12 RACING SLOOPS CAPSIZE IN SQUALL, 36 ABOARD SAVED

Men, Women and Children Rescued, But 10 of Vessels Sink in Long Island Sound.

By the Associated Press.

COLD SPRINGS HARBOR, N. Y., June 21.—Twelve racing sloops with a total of 36 men, women and children on board, capsized today in Long Island, in a squall of almost hurricane force. All of the sloops' passengers and crews were rescued, but 10 of the vessels sank and two were carried ashore by the tide.

The schooner yacht Varuna, owned by John Remsen Bishop, of White Plains, was run down and sunk off Larchmont by the yacht Shadow K, owned by Carl G. Fisher.

Miss Mildred R. Bishop, daughter of the owner; Jeffries Maxwell, a passenger, and the six members of the Varuna's crew were rescued by the Shadow K after they were thrown into the water by the force of the collision.

97 DEGREES FIRST SUMMER DAY

A temperature of 97 degrees at 4 p. m. was recorded yesterday, the first day of summer. Only once before in St. Louis has the thermometer been higher on that day. In 1914 it was 98 degrees.

Frank Coffey, 58 years old, an employe of the Park Department, was overcome by heat yesterday afternoon while working at the Municipal Theater in Forest Park. He was taken to City Hospital in a serious condition.

NEGRO LYNCHED IN SOUTH CAROLINA BY MOB OF 1000

Dan Jenkins Shot to Death at Union, S. C., Following Charges Made by Two White Women.

By the Associated Press.

UNION, S. C., June 21.—Dan Jenkins, a Negro, formerly of Beaufort, N. C., was shot to death by a mob here this afternoon after he had been identified by two young white women as the man who attacked them last night.

A mob of about 1000 men had been searching for the Negro since this morning, when the young women reported the attack. Their last names were given as Shipman. They are sisters-in-law, who live about six miles from here.

Jenkins' body was taken to Maple Ridge Negro Church, where an inquest was held.

Jenkins came here recently and had been working on a highway passing in front of the Shipman home.

The two women said they were walking together when Jenkins threatened them with a pistol. The younger woman jerked away from the Negro, but he held the married woman at the point of his pistol.

The younger woman said she called one of her brothers. The youth attempted to come to the aid of his elder sister, she said, but the Negro fired at him. The boy, unarmed, fell, she said, and feigned death until the Negro became frightened and left, giving an opportunity to spread the alarm.

A mob quickly gathered with shotguns and pistols. County officers and rural police assisted in the search which was begun this morning and lasted until 3:30 p. m., when the Negro was found.

Jenkins was taken before the two women and identified. The mob, according to information from witnesses, then emptied volley after volley into the Negro's body.

ITALY CUTS CHEESE EXPORTS

(Copyright, 1930.)

ROME, June 21.—The steamer Saturnia left Naples today with only 100 tons of Italian cheese on board for New York as against the usual cargo of 250 tons. It was explained large orders had been cancelled due to the new United States tariff and producers expect to have many more tons of all kinds of cheese in stock.

Another anxiety is that the Belgian, French, German and Spanish producers of all cheaper commodities, finding the American markets closed to them, will start dumping their surplus here.

5000 ATTEND DEDICATION OF $4,500,000 CIVIL COURTS

Judges and Lawyers March in Procession to New Building Following Farewell Services in Historic Structure on Broadway.

OLD COURTHOUSE IN USE 97 YEARS

Justice Butler of U. S. Supreme Bench and Leaders of Local Bar Make Addresses at Dedicatory Exercises on Twelfth Blvd.

In all its 97 years the old Courthouse had never before seen such a procession as paused for a moment yesterday, regretfully, upon its eastern steps.

Here since 1833 St. Louis had come to right its wrongs at law. On this spot, before 1822, had stood "The Jailer's Daughter"—the whipping post and stocks of frontier days. Political parades had passed this way into the lofty rotunda, in the forties and later, to hear Bates and Benton, Douglas and Primm, under the ruddy glare of torches. On this spot, though not these steps, slaves had been sold at auction, until New Year's day of 1861.

These men who paused, regretfully, a moment before the time-scarred Doric columns had just set "finis" to the old structure's long and close-written record as home of the Civil Courts in St. Louis. A new generation was turning its back upon the old. The historic Courthouse on Broadway, its crowding memories and dingy walls, was being forsaken for the $4,500,000 Civil Courts Building on Twelfth boulevard, overlooking a "sprawling ugliness" that one day will be a Memorial Plaza "of grace and dignity."

Amplifiers Carry the Speeches.

There about 5000 persons gathered for the formal opening of the new building under construction since 1926 and modern even to a loud speaker in the waiting room of the assignment division. A fifth as many formally bade farewell to the old, and even the derelicts loitering under the hard-bitten trees of the Courthouse lawn bared their heads as the procession solemnly filed out the Fourth street door.

All that was left behind was the decorations and litter of the ceremony, a few dusty files, a display of paintings, two Justice of the Peace Courts and Ed Lampe, blind cigar dealer, who planned to remain there pending action on an ordinance that would permit him to set up his stand in the new building.

What public officers may occupy the old building in the future, even whether any public office may long occupy it, is uncertain. Justice courts in other districts will require an act of the Legislature to move into the Broadway Courthouse. The art exhibit is to be continued. It has been suggested that a part, at least, of the old building be used as a museum. Numerous great-grandchildren of Pierre Chouteau and J. B. C. Lucas, who donated City Block No. 1 for the courts in 1822, seek in suits pending since yesterday at the new building to recover the site of the old.

Old Rotunda Crowded.

But if uncertainty clouds its future, no doubt of its honored past was left in yesterday's ceremony. A little after 10 a. m. the crowd began to gather. The rotunda, where cards were required for admission, was packed when Presiding Judge Rutledge called the Circuit Judges to order for their last general term meeting in the old Courthouse.

Briefly he spoke his faith in the majesty of that law to be administered in the towering new structure, and his sorrow in farewell to the old. He introduced Judge Pearcy, who presented for unanimous approval the formal resolution of transfer to the new structure.

Bench and bar gave their valedictories to the walls that had echoed their pleas and judgments for nearly a century. They touched upon the history of the old building from the gift of the site when it was on the western fringe of a Far Western trading post.

The first building, part of which remains in the present east wing, was completed in 1833 for $14,416 when St. Louis had a population of 5000. The cornerstone of the present structure was laid Oct. 21, 1839,

VIRGINIA WELCOME FOR ADMIRAL BYRD ON RETURN HOME

Greeted as "Dick," Thousands Cheer Him at Richmond—"It's Great to Be Back," He Tells Crowd.

GOLD AND SILVER SWORD PRESENTED

Reception Given by Gov. Pollard—Explorer Places Wreath on Monument of Mathew F. Maury.

By the Associated Press.

RICHMOND, Va., June 21.—Dick Byrd came back to old Virginia today to receive the welcome of a hero and a native son.

Thousands of Virginians cheered and shouted as the man who conquered the polar skies stepped upon the soil of his native state. Through solid lines of eager friends and citizens Rear Admiral Richard Evelyn Byrd rode, acknowledging the greeting with salutes and modest bows. Guns of the Richmond howitzers boomed an Admiral's salute.

"It's great to be back in Virginia," Admiral Byrd said, as he arrived at the executive mansion for a reception by Governor Pollard.

The entrance of the Admiral into the concourse at the Broad Street Station was the signal for an outburst of cheering that continued until he passed on to a waiting automobile where other thousands, unable to enter the station, took up the cheering. Through the tumult could be heard the cry, "Hello, Dick!"

Along streets gay with flags, streamers and bunting, the Admiral's automobile wound its way to Capitol Square and the executive mansion.

With the Richmond Light Infantry Blues, a famous regiment and his escort in New York, leading the way, Admiral Byrd once more rode through the thousands to lay a wreath on the monument of another Virginian and explorer, Matthew Fontane Maury, "Pathfinder of the seas." Here he reviewed his escort—Virginians all—while thousands of admirers joined in the greatest ovation ever given a son of the old dominion.

The Admiral went after the ceremony to "Laburnum," home of John Stewart Bryan, who was also his host after his North Pole flight, for a dinner with his immediate family. Previously he had received a sword of honor, wrought in gold and silver, as the gift of his native state.

With him were his mother, Mrs. Richard Evelyn Byrd; his wife, Mrs. Marie Byrd; Mrs. Harry Flood Byrd, and his brothers, Harry and Tom.

Along the course of the parade, almost four miles, files of his friends stood and waved and shouted. Arriving at the bronze monument erected to Matthew Fontaine Maury, who first charted ocean currents, the explorer stepped from his automobile, acknowledged the cheering throng, and walked to foot of the statue. With him was Miss May Maury Fitzgerald of Richmond, a great-granddaughter of the scientist.

At the feet of the statue he placed a wreath of flowers, stood in silent salute for a moment then wheeled and bowed to acknowledge another cheer.

Marching to the strains of "Dixie," a contingent of the First Virginia regiment was reviewed by Admiral Byrd. When it had passed he once more took his seat in an automobile and rode to "Laburnum."

Admiral Byrd will be rejoined by his Antarctic companions after visiting his home in Winchester tomorrow, and after a brief tour he will go to the New Hampshire mountains for a rest and then more work.

Admiral Byrd tonight accepted "in behalf of my men as well as myself" the Virginia gift of a sword of honor. He accepted the golden sword from the hands of Gov. Pollard. "May I never draw this sword except to cut the knots that guard the doors to the unknown," Admiral Byrd said. Thousands of Virginians, including many school children, contributed to the sword, authorized by the General Assembly.

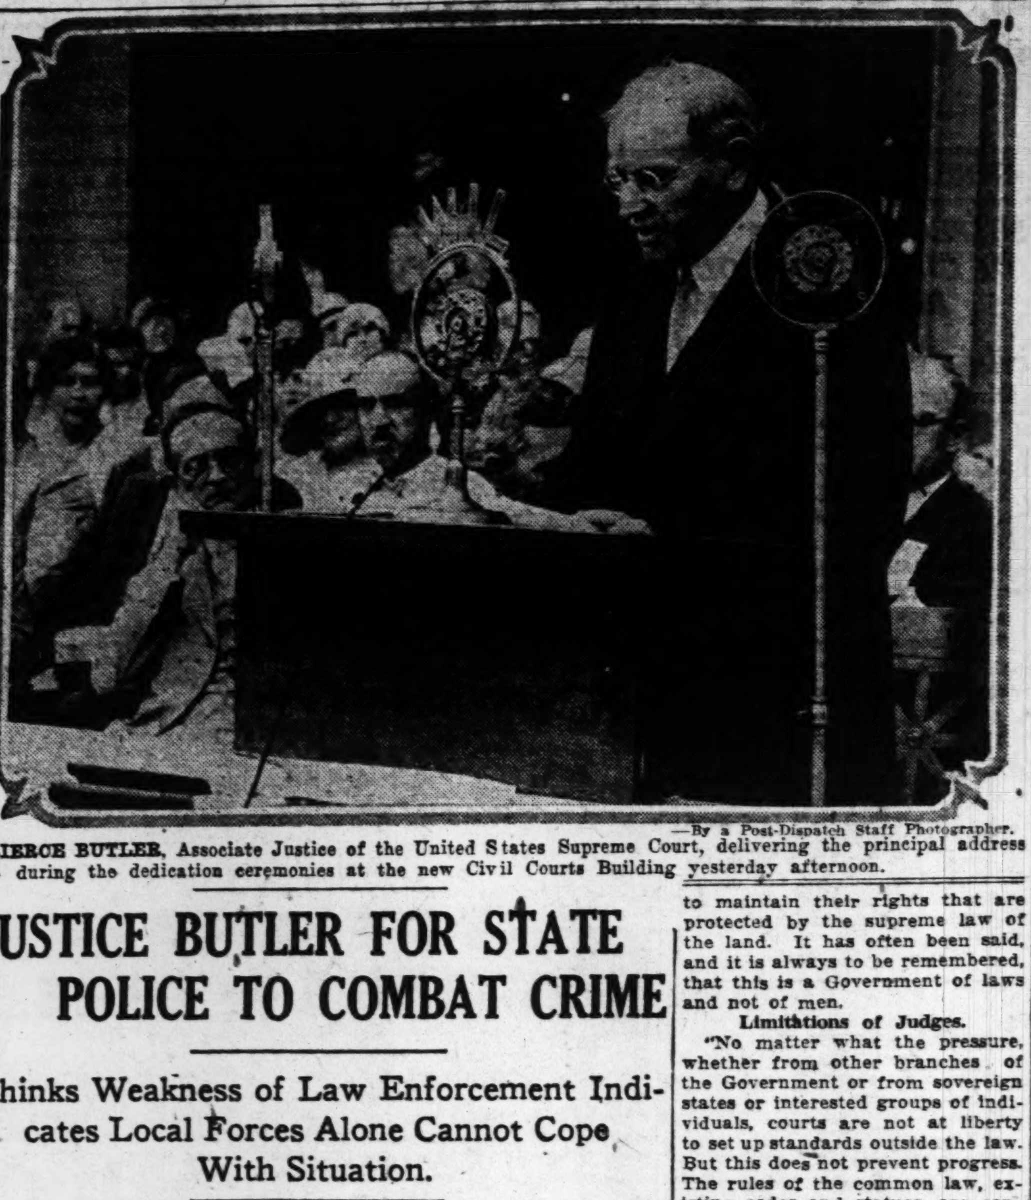
Luncheon for Byrd Party Planned Here July 12.

Tentative plans for the entertainment of Admiral Byrd, Capt. Ansley McKinley and other members of the Antarctic exploring party during their visit in St. Louis July 12 include a luncheon according to announcement yesterday by the Chamber of Commerce committee handling the affair. The time and place of the luncheon have not been fixed. Definite arangements are being held in abeyance until it is learned at what time the Admiral and his party will arrive in the city.

1933 Saengerbund Meeting Here.

DETROIT, Mich., June 21.—The North American Saengerbund selected St. Louis as festival city for the next triennial convention. Five thousand singers participated in the convention, which closed at noon.

U. S. Supreme Court Justice Delivering His Address



—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.

PIERCE BUTLER, Associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court, delivering the principal address during the dedication ceremonies at the new Civil Courts Building yesterday afternoon.

JUSTICE BUTLER FOR STATE POLICE TO COMBAT CRIME

Thinks Weakness of Law Enforcement Indicates Local Forces Alone Cannot Cope With Situation.

Associate Justice Pierce Butler of the United States Supreme Court delivered his address at the new Courthouse. After reminding his hearers that as Circuit Justice he is a member of the judiciary of the Eighth Federal Circuit which includes St. Louis, and speaking in praise of the members of bench and bar of this community and of the people who have made the new building possible, he discussed the functions of the courts and took notice of public charges of weakness of law enforcement.

"Everyone is aware," he said, "of the widespread feeling that justice is not well administered. Many things have combined to create dissatisfaction. While there are undoubtedly ample grounds for anxiety on that score, it is well to remember that in times of general agitation in respect of matters of great public concern there is danger of overstatement.

Placing the Blame.

"I am not familiar with details, even those disclosed by recent surveys, and of course cannot say what the facts are. But I have the impression that in civil cases most of the delays and at least a substantial part of the miscarriages of justice are chargeable to litigants or their counsel rather than to causes that can be controlled by the judges.

"It is probable that few criminals, who are appropriately prosecuted on evidence sufficient to convict, escape because of failure of Judges rightly to discharge their duties under the law. I doubt whether any considerable part of the existing evils justly may be attributed to lack of capacity or integrity on the part of the judiciary."

Favors State Police Force.

He said there should be State police forces and close co-operation between states and with the Federal Government to better combat the activities of criminals under present conditions.

There should be clarification and simplification of the principles of civil law, in view of the multitudinous decsions and reports, he said.

"As to enforcement of the criminal laws," he said, "the situation is baffling. Serious crimes of violence are committed with terrifying frequency. Gangs of lawless men are regularly engaged in criminal occupations; they impudently defy the forces of the Government.

"The first step in the enforcement of law is the arrest of offenders. Local police forces cannot cope with the conditions that have developed in recent years. They should be supplemented by State-wide organizations and there should be close co-operation among the states and with the Federal Government.

"Frequent failures to apprehend perpetrators of great crimes shock the public, lessen confidence in the strength of the Government, create contempt for the laws and encourage those engaged in unlawful undertakings to believe that they can maintain their callings by means of force, corruption and crimes of violence. The cause of law enforcement suffers most on account of inadequate police forces."

Stands by Present Practice.

Justice Butler does not believe the remedy for poor enforcement of criminal laws lies in the removal of any part of the safeguards which have been thrown around defendants, as has sometimes been suggested. He said:

"It is sometimes said that the safeguards established for the protection of persons accused of crime are not necessary for their protection, impose upon the prosecution intolerable burdens and make it easy for the guilty to escape conviction. Complaint is made against the force given to the presumption of innocence, the rule requiring proof beyond a reasonable doubt, the right of silence, the protection from unreasonable searches and compulsory self-incrimination, and against other safeguards of liberty that have long been imbedded in our law. Judges are without power to modify them. Few who have had substantial experience in the trial of criminal cases would impair any of them. If adequate forces for detection of crime and apprehension of criminals faithfully support competent prosecuting attorneys in trials before intelligent and unbiased jurists rightly guided by the presiding Judge, miscarriages of justice will be few. Our bills of rights do not stand in the way of justice. They give assurance that the blessings of liberty are to continue.

Crime Commission's Work.

"In this State the principal bar associations, prominent lawyers and public-spirited men of affairs have organized a State-wide movement for the ascertainment of facts concerning the enforcement of law in respect of crimes of violence. Conclusions and recommendations based on reliable and adequate investigations have been reported. Good work is being done to bring about the adoption of measures to strengthen and improve police forces and public prosecutors, to untrammel trial judges that they may be free not only to instruct juries as to the law, but also to advise them as to the facts and in other practical ways to relieve the administration of criminal laws from cumbersome, unnecessary and unreasonable restrictions that are imposed by existing statutes. The press and individuals who make and lead public opinion are giving invaluable support. The people are to be congratulated upon the progress that has been made.

"This building is their splendid testimonial of the confidence in which the courts are held as a bulwark of free government. It will for all time encourage and stimulate the bench and bar to a proper performance of their duties. And the public, knowing how steadfast for the right administration of justice according to law the courts of this country have always been, will continue confident that the high standards of the judiciary will here be forever maintained."

Passing on Validity of Laws.

Concerning the functions and the duties of the courts in general, Justice Butler said:

"One of the most important duties that rests upon courts is to decline to give effect to invalid legislative enactments. It is to be remembered that no court has power per se to review legislation for the mere purpose of determining whether it conflicts with the Federal Constitution. That question may be considered in the courts only when in a justiciable issue some direct injury is sought to be justified by such an act. In deciding between parties courts are required to ascertain and enforce the law applicable to the controversy. They must disregard an unconstitutional act which otherwise would prevent the enforcement of a legal right.

"All courts, State as well as Federal, are bound to give effect to the Constitution and laws of the United States as the supreme law. The people would be in sorry plight if they were not permitted to maintain their rights that are protected by the supreme law of the land. It has often been said, and it is always to be remembered, that this is a Government of laws and not of men.

Limitations of Judges.

"No matter what the pressure, whether from other branches of the Government or from sovereign states or interested groups of individuals, courts are not at liberty to set up standards outside the law. But this does not prevent progress. The rules of the common law, existing codes and statues, are constantly being changed by legislative enactments. And the Federal Constitution and the constitutions of the states may be amended whenever the people are so minded and take appropriate action to that end.

"Judges may not put aside or stretch the law in order to decide according to their individual conceptions of right and wrong or to give effect to what in their view would best meet social and economic needs. They are bound to take the law as it is. They have to apply it impartially to the conditions, whether new or old, that are properly disclosed in controversies brought before them for decision. It is for others to determine whether new commercial, industrial or social conditions require amendment of the law. Courts may not substitute for fixed principle the changing popular conceptions of right or justice that from time to time may seem to merit approval. Interpretation cannot be made to serve in the place of legislation. When changes in the law are regularly accomplished the courts will give them effect according to their true meaning and intent."

with a procession of Odd Fellows, Masons and Hibernians and ceremonies postponed from Oct. 17 because "an important race was to be run" on the seventeenth. Slaves were sold until 1861 on a semicircular porch, later replaced by the present Fourth street porch. The structure was completed as it now stands in 1862 by additions that brought the total cost to $1,199,871.

Voices of the valedictorians were carried by loud speakers to the corridors, and to groups who listened outside. Back of the speakers' stand sat the Circuit and Federal Judges and other officials. Flags draped the stand. Directly opposite was a painting of the old courthouse, and directly above it, on the first balcony, a painting of the Civil Courts Building.

The farewell address for the bench was delivered by Circuit Judge O'Neill Ryan, admitted to the bar 50 years ago, who quoted words of Justice Brewer of the Supreme Court in St. Louis in 1904: "The fabric of our civilization is indeed a thing of beauty, but it is made strong and enduring only by the golden thread of equal, exact and enduring justice."

Judge Ryan's Farewell.

"Here," said Judge Ryan, "have come and gone scores of thousands of suitors—the eager and hopeful, the depressed and dispirited; some valiantly battling for a principle, some meanly venting a grudge, some animated by the tenderest and finest feelings, some by the most sordid and despicable. What a gamut of emotions and passions has been run within these walls!

"This hour to us is pregnant with emotions, varied and deep. May we not believe that the spirits of the great departed look down upon this scene. Upon us their successors to a great trust. Upon this still beautiful and stately structure, venerable and majestic, hoary wil the years, that to us is like a beloved parent, aged and decrepit, but very precious to his children who recall the days of his prime and vigor when he gave them shelter and loving care."

Lionberger Speaks for Bar

For the bar Isaac H. Lionberger called the roll of illustrious names in the history of the courthouse. He remarked upon erection of so monumental a structure in 1839, when the city ended at Seventh street and the population was little more than 16,000.

"Imprisonment for debt, slavery, public whipping and legislative divorces were lawful," he said. "Liquor was sold by druggists, hardware dealers and dry goods merchants, jewelers, hotels and tippling houses on payment of a license tax of not more than $100. "The streets were unlighted; bath tubs with running water were unknown; houses were heated by open fires."

"And now I am done," he concluded. "Today we stand at the parting of the ways. Here is the past; yonder is the future.

"Henceforth this noble structure will be but a monument of a vanishing past, when the courts were the refuge of all in distress, when men were free and courts loved liberty; when all 'did homage to the law of the land, the least as feeling her care and the greatest as not exempted from her power; when our homes were our castles and we were free to live as our consciences dictated and not as another might command; a precious time, gone I fear forever.

Suggests a Museum.

"I hope that some not unworthy use may be found for this venerable edifice. We need a treasury for the many precious memorials of the men and events of the past which now lie moldering in the dark recesses of our cellars. Here they might be properly cared for and exhibited, and serve to keep alive an interest in the romantic and instructive history of our city. What more fit place could be found for the newspapers and documents which contain that history?

"It is the infirmity of old men that they object too much and adventure too little; and if on this occasion I have dwelt too long and too lovingly upon the past, I beg you to forgive one who is old and cannot forget. I am not despondent, but regretful. I do not doubt that under your guidance the course of empire, which today tends westward, may terminate in an elysium of liberty, equality and fraternity under a restored constitution and bill of rights which shall again guarantee the blessings which our forefathers intended to make indestructible, and without which this republic cannot endure."

Governor in Procession.

Circuit Court in the old courthouse was forever adjourned. Outside sounded a bugle call. Mounted police on Fourth street swept across to Chestnut to head the procession, and the police band swung in behind them. From the Fourth street entrance, under an arch of the Missouri and United States flags, filed Gov. Caulfield and members of his staff in uniform, Judges of the Missouri Supreme Court and Federal Court, Mayor Miller and city officials, the City Plan and Memorial Plaza Commissioners, Judges of the Appellate, Circuit, Probate and Police Courts and visiting Judges.

Women of official families and woman lawyers joined the procession. Several hundred members of the St. Louis Bar Association, Negro lawyers of the Mount City Bar Association, and Sheriff's and Circuit Clerk's deputies and Courthouse employes swung into line from Market street.

A moment the Judges paused on the time-worn portico. Then the band began a march and turned into Chestnut, where spectators formed a double line all the way to Twelfth. For a part of that distance it was a procession of farewell. The step was measured and solemn. But it seemed to quicken as the marchers neared the towering structure at Twelfth street.

They marched around to the Western entrance; up the temporary wooden steps; through a lofty entrance inscribed, "Judge righteously between every man and his brother," through the great concourse, 38 feet from floor to ceiling; out the central east door beneath its inscription of "Where law ends, tyranny begins," to a flag-draped platform.

Members of the Bar Association and city employes circled the building and, from Market street, entered an enclosure before the platform. Spectators filled the entire block east of the building, and hundreds lined the opposite sidewalks. In the crowd near the platform a newspaper reporter's pocket was picked of $12.

Mayor Miller, introduced by Judge Rutledge, called for the invocation by the Rev. Ivan Lee Holt, and presented Associate Justice Pierce Butler of the United States Supreme Court, Gov. Caulfield, Prof. A. S. Langsdorf of the City Plan Commission, and Edward J. McCullen, president of the Bar Association. The Mayor told of the effort to make the structure both artistically and practically adequate to the St. Louis of today and tomorrow, and pointed out, in this regard, that provision had been made for women jurors.

Justice Butler Speaks.

Justice Butler, in the principal address of the ceremony, analyzed the relations of bench and bar to the public. He pointed out that no Judge could serve the public in construing the law to fit his view of the public good, or the view of his time; that no Judge, in fact, was free so to construe the law. "They are bound," he said, "to take the law as it is."

He urged that the movement to clarify the laws and accelerate the work of the courts should never attempt to accomplish that by slashing away the safeguards now thrown around the defendant.

"Judges may not put aside or stretch the law in order to decide according to their individual conception of right and wrong," he said "or to give effect to what in their view would best meet social and economic needs. They are bound to take the law as it is. They have to apply it impartially to the conditions, whether new or old, that are properly disclosed in controversies brought before them for decision. It is for others to determine whether new commercial, industrial or social conditons require an amendment of the law. Courts may not substitute for fixed principle the changing popular conceptions of right or justice that from time to time may seem to merit approval. Interpretation cannot be made to serve, in the place of legislation. When changes in the law are regularly accomplished the courts will give them effect according to their true meaning and intent."

Caulfield Says Justice Lags.

Gov. Caulfield pointed to the contrast between the early days of the old Courthouse, when industrial life depended on "the slow hand of man" and the current age of multiplied production, of swift motion, of speedy accomplishment."

"The administration of justice," said McCullen, "requires more than a temple of marble or stone, magnificent in its material grandeur thougt it may be. We, as lawyers, should here and now dedicate ourselves to the task of doing all within our power to make this noble edifice in truth a home of justice."

City's Official Dreamers.

Prof. Langsdorf described the City Plan Commission as the city's "officially accredited body of dreamers." Applause greeted his tribute to President Kinsey ow the Board of Public Service; Comptroller Nolte and the late President Louis Aloe of the Board of Aldermen.

The Commission, he said, regarded the Civil Courts Building as dominating feature of the Memorial Plaza "which is destined to be the focal point of the new St. Louis." He dwelt upon the Greek ideal of "truth, goodness and beauty" symbolized by the design—a temple upon a square 12-story base.

The temple, surrounded by an Ionic colonnade, actually follows the design of the mausoleum of Halicarnassus, one of the "Seven Wonders," except that, in the place of the four-horse chariot that surmounted its pyramid of 24 steps, the Civil Courts' pyramid of half that many steps is topped by a pair of aluminum griffins 385 feet above the sidewalk.

Sun Thins Crowd.

The crowd thinned out as the afternoon sun bore down. The shadow of the building lengthened, however, and those who had seats within the enclosure and the shade remained through all the speech-making.

When the ceremony had ended with the national anthem, and the formal turning of the building over to the courts by Mayor Miller, most of the spectators remained to inspect the interior. The towering columns of the main floor concourse, the luxurious finish of the walls and the quiet dignity of court-room furniture was commented upon. Many lingered upon the twelfth floor, where a public lounge and a promenade at the foot of the colonnade, giving an extensive view, are provided.

When they returned and stepped out the western entrance to face the afternoon sun they saw, on the site of the Plaza, a bus station, two parking lots, a factory, a building or two of dingy brick. And in the faces of some came a look that may have meant:

And now for the rest of the Plaza.

Convicted, He Will Appeal Decision Allowing U. S. to Use Transcript of Refusal of Information.

RIBERY SUSPECTED IN USE OF $24,000

adison County Gambler Indicted for Declining to Tell to Whom He Paid the Money.

The ruling Friday of Federal dge Louis FitzHenry at Bloomgton, Ill., that the Government n use a transcript of questions d answers, taken down before come tax examiners, in an indictment against Harry urdock, manager and principal wner of Mounds Country Club, a ambling house on Collinsville road Illinois, near St. Louis, virtually oves the Government's case.

In the event of conviction, which ems likely in view of the ruling, urdock, according to his attorey, Harold J. Bandy of Granite ity, will appeal from Judge FitzHenry's ruling.

Claimed Exemption on $24,000.

Murdock was indicted for refusg to give information to Internal evenue Department examiners oncerning the recipients of $24,00 he is believed to have paid out r protection from some Madison ounty officials in 1927-28 in perating 125 gambling slot mahines in that county. In his ome tax statement he claimed exemption from tax on the payment of his money, but later offered to pay e tax on it. The Government robably would have accepted if urdock named the recipients, but e concealed their identity, refusg to answer direct questions on he ground that he might incriminate himself.

In preparing for trial of Murock the Government sought to se the transcript of his refusal to ive the information, which was he only evidence against Murdock, hereupon the gambler's attorney led a motion to suppress the evience, arguing that to admit it ould be tantamount to forcing urdock to give testimony against imself.

Charges Payment of Bribes.

Assistant United States District ttorney Alexander, for the Govrnment, contended that Murdock [illegible] incriminating himself by refusing to answer questions, but to protect public officials of Madison county to whom he has paid bribes.

The penalty for conviction of the offense with which Murdock is charged is a prison term of not more than one year and a fine of not more than $10,000, or both.

TRUST FUND OF $1,000,000 ORDERED GIVEN TO CREDITORS

New York Court Ruling Against Commander J. K. L. Ross, Canadian Sportsman.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 21.—A $1,000,000 trust fund, established in 1916 for Mrs. Ethel Adine Rose, wife of Commander J. K. L. Ross, Canadian sportsman, today was ordered turned over to her husband's creditors by a Supreme Court decree.

The decree was issued in a decision on a suit brought by Commander Ross in 1927, who sought to dissolve the trust fund, asserting he needed $50,000 to cover a loan from the Century Trust Co. of Baltimore.

Since then Ross was adjudged bankrupt in Montreal and his trustees in bankruptcy continued the suit.

Mrs. Ross had refused to consent to the annulment of the trust, which the Court ruled was void because it violated the laws of Quebec, where it was drawn.

Income from the fund was to go to Mrs. Ross during her lifetime and revert to their children and grandchildren upon her death. At the time the trust was executed, Mrs. Ross consented to release her rights on a marriage settlement agreement of $125,000 made in 1913. A release the Court held was illegal.

Commander Ross inherited $10,000,000 from his father in 1916.

SLAIN IN QUARREL

WILLIAM McGRATH.

E. ST. LOUIS MAN SHOT ON AUTO RIDE WITH WOMAN DIES

William D. McGrath Told Police She Fired, in Quarrel, After He Refused to Marry Her Soon.

William D. McGrath, 44-year-old railroad clerk, 100 North B street, East St. Louis, who was shot in the abdomen Thursday night when he was riding in an automobile with Mrs. Pearl Montgomery, 26-year-old widow, of 621A North Sixth street, East St. Louis, died yesterday at Westminster Hospital.

Mrs. Montgomery, in serious condition at City Hospital as a result of poison taken at Angelica Street Police Station, where she was being questioned, told police the shooting occurred as she and McGrath were struggling for possession of a pistol she carried, and that it was accidental. Although he told officers he did not wish to prosecute her, McGrath said Thursday night she had shot him in a quarrel arising when he told her he would not be able to marry her soon. They had been engaged six years, police were told.

It was 9 o'clock Thursday night when, after the sound of a shot, McGrath's machine lurched to the curb in front of 7559 North Broadway, and Mrs. Montgomery leaped out and called for aid for him. As soon as he was taken to the hospital, she left the scene and was arrested later in the evening at her home.

After being questioned at Angelica Station she was being transferred to police headquarters when she became ill. She admitted taking poison in a sufficient amount to be fatal. Her condition was said yesterday not to have improved.

SEEKS CONVICT'S EXTRADITION IN OVERLAND BANK KILLING

County Prosecutor Would Try James McGauley Once Named As Slayer In Confession.

An application for extradition of James McGauley, now serving a life sentence for robbery at Marquette, Mich., to St. Louis County for trial on a charge of murder and robbery in connection with the killing of Todd V. Phelps, cashier of the Overland State Bank in January, 1929, was forwarded yesterday to Gov. Caulfield by Prosecuting Attorney Castlen.

McGauley was named in the confession of Lawrence Ahrens, one of four men charged with participating in the holdup, in which $7500 was obtained, as the man who killed Phelps. Despite the fact that Ahrens later repudiated parts of his confession, it is largely on his evidence that the State hopes to convict McGauley.

The confession was partly corroborated by William O'Hare, service car driver said to have let the robbers use his automobile. Trial of the case against McGauley is set for July 7 at Clayton.

His achievement recalled the untimely death of Capt. Emilio Carranza, killed while attempting the same flight two years ago during an electric storm at Mount Holly, N. J.

After a brief rest in the hangar, the aviators, the President and the other officials got into automobiles. Escorted by a heavy police guard, they came to the city.

Ceremonies in honor of the flyers were held to a minimum this evening, so that they could rest. During the next few days they will be guests of honor at a series of functions.

Fierro's original plans were, after a brief stay in Mexico City, to continue the flight to South America and thence to Africa and Europe. These have not yet been approved by the War Department.

BODY IN BURNED AUTO THOUGHT TO BE THAT OF YOUTH

Mobile (Ala.) Authorities Say Victim Found Near Indianapolis Was Jack Sanders of Pritchard.

By the Associated Press.

MOBILE, Ala., June 21.—With the return of Harold Herbert Schroeder to Indiana to answer criminal charges, authorities are seeking to establish the identity of the man whom Schroeder admits leaving in his automobile when he set fire to it near Indianapolis, May 31.

The supposition that it might have been Jack Sanders, 18 years old, of Pritchard, Ala., was expressed by the boy's father. Schroeder told authorities yesterday he did not know the name of the man whom he said he had picked up on the road and whose neck was broken after the car had run into a ditch near Terre Haute.

Return of Schroeder to Indianapolis was postponed today so that he could confer with his attorneys. William Cowley, Schroeder's attorney, said his client wished to straighten out his affairs before leaving to face arraignment in Indiana.

Schroeder's statement that his companion had said he was from Massachusetts and was en route to midwestern wheat fields had caused the Sanders boy's father to express the belief that it was his son.

Boy Going to Wheat Fields.

Sanders said his son had been visiting Mrs. J. S. Sanders, his sister-in-law, at North Adams, Mass., and had written that he was going to the wheat fields. The wrist strap and rosary found on the body also caused Sanders to believe his son was the victim of the "accident." He said the boy's sister-in-law had given him the rosary and that he wore a wrist strap such as that reported found near the burned automobile.

Mrs. Sanders at North Adams said she doubted the body was that of her brother-in-law.

After "the accident," Schroeder said he became panic stricken. The automobile, he said, plunged into a ditch when both he and his companion were asleep.

"Evidently Broke His Neck."

"When I woke up I found this boy had evidently broken his neck," Schroeder's statement said. "He was asleep in the front seat and his head evidently had hit on the back board and the body tumbled down on the floor and that was the end of his."

Schroeder said that he drove back toward Indianapolis, where he had attended the speedway races the day before and when 10 or 12 miles outside the city set fire to the machine. He then caught a ride to Indianapolis with a motorist.

Indiana authorities have charged that what they termed a "torch murder" was a plot to collect a large sum of insurance they said Schroeder carried.

Sheriff George Winkler of Marion County, Indiana, announced here a warrant charging murder would be issued against Schroeder.

Schroeder, arrested while hiding in a vacant lot here yesterday, has decided to waive extradiction.

Woman In the Case.

The authorities made public a note which they said was written to Schroeder in prison by Miss Gertrude Kittrell, with whom he had been friendly.

"I just wanted to know where I stood with him" Miss Kittrell said in discussing the letter. "He told me he was separated from his wife and that he was going to get a divorce."

The friendship between Schroeder and the girl started about 18 months ago, she said. She declared she went with him some time before learning he was married.

"Several times I told him I would not go with him any more, but he always said he was separated from his wife, and that he was going to get a divorce and marry me," she said.

Mrs. Leah Schroeder visited her husband early in the day with his brother, Ernest W. Schroeder of Evanston, Ill. It was their first meeting since Schroeder disappeared, May 20. The Schroeders have two children.

DIVORCE SUIT LAST FILED IN OLD COURTHOUSE

The last suit filed in the old courthouse before it was abandoned by the Circuit Court yesterday was a petition for divorce by Robert Atwell, a chauffeur for the People's Motorbus Co., against Mrs. Evelyn Atwell, 5157A Palm street, alleging general indignities. They were married July 2 last and separated Jan. 1. Atwell also asked for an order enjoining his wife from attempting to enter his home without his consent or from taking away furniture. Mrs. Atwell could not be reached.

Similarly the first suit filed in the new Civil Courts Building was a divorce action by Mrs. Marie Fernandez against Manuel Fernandez, 6319 Pennsylvania avenue, also alleging indignities. They were married Feb. 15 last and separated five days ago. It was announced Friday by Circuit Clerk Schmoll that no suit would be received for filing in the new quarters before tomorrow, but the Atwell case was mailed, arriving in the morning mail.

CASINO SUES CITY OF NICE FOR GIVING GOULD LICENSE

Municipal Gambling House Asks for $12,500,000; Charges Infringement on Franchise.

By the Associated Press.

NICE, France.—Contending that Nice had no legal right to grant a charter to Frank Jay Gould's Casino, and that the opening of the new establishment has seriously hurt its business, the local Municipal Casino is suing the city for $12,500,000.

This is the largest suit ever filed in the Riveria courts.

The Municipal Casino contends that in 1879 it was granted an 80-year franchise, under the terms of which the city agreed not to grant further gambling privileges.

The authorities contend they acted within their rights, since changing conditions and the growth of Nice made room for two large gambling establishments. Actually the city has even.

PENNILESS YOUTH HAS CLOSE ESCAPE TRYING TO SWIM RIVER

Russell Meyers Chose That Method to Get Across Mississippi; Rescued by Police.

Russell Meyers, 17 years old, wanted to get from East St. Louis to St. Louis yesterday afternoon. He didn't have any money and it was too hot to walk. He signaled to many automobile drivers on the Eads Bridge, but none would stop, so he decided to swim across the Mississippi. He went down to the levee, took off his clothes and struck out.

Seventy-five yards from the east bank he became exhausted. Out of nowhere there appeared a pier post, about as large around as a telephone pole, sticking up from the water. Reaching it he rested for a while and then climbed to the top where he sat in the sun.

Workers along the shore watched him for about two hours and then notified the East St. Louis Police Department which put out a rescue crew in a rowboat. The youth's condition was such that he was unable to give his address. He remained in donated clothing at the police station.

LEO FEIST, PUBLISHER OF POPULAR SONGS, DIES AT 60

MOUNT VERNON, N. Y., June 21.—Leo Feist, one-time corset salesman, who became a magnate of popular music publishing, died today at his home here. He was 60 years old. For several years Mr. Feist had suffered from arthritis.

When Leo Feist first entered upon his publishing career, about 35 years ago, he was an unsuccessful song writer, who made his living selling corsets. In the subsequent years he saw the product of his business go to every country of the world, including remote parts of Africa.

He had written several songs in his youth, which the established publishers rejected. Finally he published one himself. Followed by several others. As soon as he had saved $200 he enlarged upon this business by establishing his own house and publishing. The tunes of others, having by that time given up the hope of himself being a successful song writer.

The first "hit" tune put out by the young house was "Smokey Mokes," one of the first of the cake-walks in 1895. During the war, "Over There," for which Mr. Feist gave $25,000 to its author, George M. Cohan, made one fortune, while "Rose of No Man's Land" made an even larger one.

450 JANITORS URGED TO QUIT UNION; 21 AGREE TO DO SO

About 450 apartment house janitors, mostly Negroes, were urged last night to withdraw from the recently organized Janitors' and Cleaners' Local Union No. 4 at a meeting called by real estate interests said to represent ownership of about 80 per cent of the city's apartments.

Although frequent "Amens" were heard during the remarks of A. A. Ahner, speaking on behalf of the real estate men, only 21 janitors agreed to withdraw from the union at the close of his talk.

The union was formed about six weeks ago, according to Ahner by Robert Osterberg of Chicago, who was invited to the meeting but who disappeared after being told to wait until the speeches were over. There are more than 2000 janitors in the city.

The meeting was held at 4869 Natural Bridge Avenue, was on the eve of a picnic to be given today for the union janitors.

LOTS OF RUMORS BUT NO LIGHT ON LINGLE MURDER

One Is That Chicago Authorities Know the Killer, Another That They Are Waiting to Trap Him.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 21.—There was an unconfirmed rumor today that police know who murdered Alfred J. Lingle, veteran gangland reporter of the Chicago Tribune, who was shot to death June 9, nearly two weeks ago. Police would say nothing. For once the department under a new head, Acting Commissioner Alcock, was not broadcasting any information.

In the investigation certain facts have been brought to light but apparently, save for the rumor today, police are no nearer a solution than they were right after the killing.

The murderer's pistol, which, with a glove, was thrown down by him in getting away, has been traced to a sporting goods dealer, thence to Frank Foster, a gunman, but Foster, among those missing, is supposed to have parted with the weapon before the murder.

Rumors fly thick. There is one that Lingle paid with his life for double-crossing gang associates in the matter of police protection. Officially the only link between Lingle and the underworld that has come into the open was the testimony of a detective in criminal court that a gangster, arrested for carrying a revolver, explained he was "working for Jake Lingle." The gangster later denied he had said anything of the kind and that, in any case, the statement was not true.

There are rumors, all unsubstantiated, that Lingle's expensive hotel room is under official seal awaiting the proper moment for an expose and that detectives are waiting in an Eastern city to ambush the hired killer.

A new alliance of police and Federal authorities has made some progress. Two dozen stills have been destroyed in Cicero, Al Capone stronghold, during the week, reducing the monthly earnings of the Capone alcohol syndicate by $900,000, in the belief of E. C. Yellowley, district prohibition administrator.

VOIDS ALBERT SNYDER POLICIES

Appellate Court Affirms Decision on Murder Victim's Insurance.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 21.—The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court has affirmed a decision voiding insurance policies for $50,000 on the life of Albert Snyder, murdered by Ruth Snyder, his wife, and Henry Jud Gray, in March, 1927.

Suit of the Prudential Life Insurance Co. to void the policies was contested by Mrs. Josephine Brown, mother of Mrs. Snyder, and administrator of her estate, in behalf of her granddaughter, Lorraine Snyder. The insurance company contended the policies had been obtained by fraud as a part of the plot to murder Snyder.

Diary Tells of Discovery Of Making Electric Power

Notes of Michael Faraday Show He Had Only Inkling at Time of Importance of Experiments With Coils and Magnets.

By the Associated Press.

ITHACA, N. Y., June 21.—Just an inkling that here was something important was in the mind of Michael Faraday at the moment he made one of the world's greatest discoveries, how to produce electric power.

His thoughts are disclosed in his diary, which was read to the American Physical Society here by Sir Henry Bragg, British scientist. Faraday, regarded by many scientists as the modern world's greatest practical benefactor, the "father of electricity," made this discovery in 1831. Next year, on the one hundredth anniversary of the date, a world-wide celebration will be sponsored by many branches of science.

Diary Tells of Experiment.

Electricity had been known for a very long time, but no one could produce it in working quantities. For generations scientists had been trying and failing to do it, when Faraday had the thought that by using coils and magnets he might produce a current. His diary picks up the story at this point. Under date of Aug. 29, 1831 on "experiments on the production of electricity from magnetism, etc., etc.," it reads as follows:

"Have had an iron ring made (soft iron), iron round and seven-eighths inches thick and ring six inches in external diameter. Wound many coils of copper wire round, one-half the coils being separated by twine and calico. There were three lengths of wire, each about 24 feet long, and they could be connected as one length or used as separate lengths * * * will call this side of the ring, 'A'.

Action Described.

"On the other side, but separated by an interval, was wound wire in two pieces, together amounting to about 60 feet in length, the direction being as with the former coils. This side call 'B'.

"When all was ready the moment the battery was communicated with both ends of wire at 'A' side the helix strongly attracted the needle; after a few vibrations it came to a state of rest in its original and natural positions, and then on breaking the battery connection the needle was as strongly repelled, and after a few oscillations came to rest in the same place as before.

Finds Clew to the Dynamo.

"Hence effect indirect transient, but its recurrence on breaking the connections shows an equilibrium somewhere that must be capable of being rendered more distinct.

"May not these transient effects be connected with causes of difference between power of metals in rest and in motion in Arago's experiments?"

This was the clew to the dynamo, although Faraday did not fully realize it. He had been looking for a continuous current, but the only current came when he broke his connections. Those effects were so slight that he put them aside. Later he went back to the study of this slight deviation, curious about it, and so developed a machine that produced electric current, the forerunner of the dynamo.

Worked Almost With Awe.

After he realized that here was the long sought power, Faraday wrote:

"It was almost with a feeling of awe that I went to work—for if the hope should proved well founded, how great and mighty and sublime in its hitherto unchangeable character is the force I am trying to deal with, and how large may be the new domain of knowledge that may be opened up to the mind of man."

The diary discloses Faraday's dreams forecasting nearly a century in advance some of the latest discoveries of Einstein. He writes that gravitation and electricity are probably related. He thinks that possibly heat may prove to be a result of, or related to, gravitation. He foresees something fundamental, though still unguessed, running through all substance, which he thinks man will discover ultimately, and which will explain how all substance is created.

TIED AND ROBBED OF $65

Clothing Store Owner and Wife Locked In After Holdup.

Two armed men tied Mr. and Mrs. David Landau to chairs in the rear room of their clothing store at 7306 Manchester avenue, Maplewood, as they were preparing to wood, as they were preparing to taking $65 from the cash drawers and locking the front door.

Landau managed to get close enough to a telephone to dial "operator" and shouted "Police!" Police had to force the door to release them.

HAMILTON-BROWN WILL SELL SOME OF ITS FACTORIES

Judge Davis Announces He Will Approve Only in Part Petition of Bank Creditors.

Federal Judge Davis announced yesterday, following a hearing, that he would deny, in part, the petition of counsel for bank creditors of the Hamilton-Brown Shoe Co., now in receivership, for immediate sale of all the assets of the company, but would order the sale of parts of the property not necessary or useful for continuing the business.

The petition, which was presented by Frank H. Sullivan, attorney for the banks, was opposed by the receiver, William R. Gentry Sr., and by counsel for certain stockholders.

Gentry told the Court that from his short experience with the company he believed it could be rehabilitated, and that he had informed merchants all over the country and the company's employes that it would continue in business. Attorneys for stockholders informed the Court that several plans for reorganization and refinancing were being considered and said they believed the value of the property could best be preserved by allowing the company to continue to operate. Sale as requested by the petitioner would have caused the company to cease business at once.

The Judge said the receiver already has arranged for sale of the company's Boston factory and warehouse and valuable leasehold, and that he would authorize this sale and also order sale of some factories from which the machinery has been removed by the owners.

OLD COURTHOUSE AS MUSEUM URGED BY I. H. LIONBERGER

Veteran of St. Louis Courts Points Out Need for Place to Preserve Historical Documents.

HE REVIEWS CAREERS OF LEADERS OF PAST

Describes Early Times in Address at Dedication Ceremonies When Only Taxpayers Voted.

Isaac H. Lionberger, a veteran of the St. Louis courts, who was admitted to the practice of law in 1877 in Courtroom No. 1 of the old courthouse, spoke for the Bar Association at the farewell ceremonies, paying tribute to outstanding leaders of bench and bar of earlier days.

Among those whose early careers he described and many of whom he came to know as they practiced in the old courthouse, were some who rose to high places in national affairs, the Federal courts, Congress, the Senate, the President's Cabinet.

Concerning these men and the task they had of welding an orderly government and a body of laws out of the customs of the adventurous people who had settled the community, he said:

"The lawyers who performed these various tacks weer in all respects fit for the responsibilities thrust upon them. How they became so, I cannot tell. Few were college graduates, and none of the pioneers, so far as I can ascertain, had ever been to a law school. Yet somehow they managed to acquire that 'complete and generous education which fits a man to skillfully and magnanimously perform all the offices, both public and private.'

Laws Clearly Expressed.

"Their laws were well selected, clearly expressed and readily administered; their constitutions imposed proper restraints upon those in authority; they were versatile men, competent in all tasks."

It was remarkable, he said, that so monumental a structure as the old courthouse arose from its beginning in 1839, when Seventh street was the western boundary of St. Louis, the population of the city was 16,000 and there was only one bank in the State.

Conditions in 1839.

Describing the times—"the forgotten past"—he said said:

"None but a taxpayer was permitted to vote. Elections were viva voce. Judges were appointed for life. There was but one Circuit Court Judge for the Counties of St. Charles and St. Louis. Law and equity were of separate jurisdictions. Appellate jurisdiction was vested in a Supreme Court and a Chancellor. But six volumes of the Missouri Supreme Court reports had been published.

"Imprisonment for debt, slavery, public whipping and legislative divorces were lawful. Liquor was sold by druggists, hardware and dry goods merchants, jewelers, hotels and tippling houses on payment of a license tax of not more than $100.

"The streets were unlighted; bath tubs with running water were unknown; houses were heated by open fires. There were no railroads, street cars or telephones. That, under such circumstances, our ancestors contemplated, planned and began this superb structure is proof not only of their public spirit and enterprise, but of their reverence for law and their esteem for those who are its servants."

Among the early lawyers whose careers Lionberger recalled were intimately connected with the old Courthouse were David Barton, "Judge of the local court, president of the constitutional convention of 1820 (when Missouri was admitted to the Union), and later United States Senator"; Edward Bates, a member of the constitutional convention of 1820, Attorney-General of the State, Congressman, Secretary of War and later Attorney-General of the United States, and Thomas H. Benton, editor of a local newspaper," who was to serve his State for 30 years in the United States Senate.

He recalled that Henry S. Geyer, who was speaker of the Missouri House of Representatives in 1821, later went to the United States Senate and was the author of Geyer's Digest of Territorial Laws.

He mentioned Roswell Field, who represented Dred Scott, the slave, in the history-making case the files of which were among the documents moved into the new courthouse; James O. Broadhead, "perhaps the most remarkable lawyer of his day;" the firm of Glover & Sheply, "leaders of the bar," who he said at one time had 162 cases standing on their docket for trial, and George A. Madill, "who had the largest income at the bar," and was the "best listener and best teacher of his time."

Concerning Madill, Lionberger said: "He was not formidable by reason of his eloquence, for he did not resort to it, but by reason of his practical wisdom and great learning."

Illustrating Madill's command of large fees, Lionberger told of having been associated with him in a case which they won. "I sent in my bill to save him embarrassment," he said. "Later he asked me what I had charged and after a week sent me 10 times as much, out of the fee he had asked for his own services."

"In that day," Lionberger said, "there were neither office boys, telephones, typewriters nor stenographers. I ran errands, kept docket, copied instruments and served notices. When an important case was up for hearing I attended and listened. This building was my school house, from its master teachers I got my instruction. I owe them gratitude as do many who attend this ceremony."

Another of the pioneers described by Lionberger was Henry Hitchcock, partner of Madill.

"He translated Horace into charming English," the speaker said, "delivered an address to the Supreme Court of the United States on its one-hundredth anniversary, and wrote an admirable book on the development of constitutional law. His argument for the Union in the convention of 1861 was unanswerable. He helped to found and endow the St. Louis Law School and was its teacher, without compensation for many years."

Others recalled by Lionberger were Judge Amos M. Thayer, who on the Federal bench "wrote the immortal opinion in the Northern Securties case which almost won him a nomination for the presidency," and John W. Noble, afterward Secretary of the Interior.

Busy Time for Lawyers.

"In view of the multitudinous questions which now confront and confound the lawyer," Lionberger said, "it may perhaps be assumed that the practice of law long ago was rather a pastime than a task, but the fact is otherwise. By the Statutes of 1825 the common law of England as of the fourth year of James I had been declared the law of the land, with all its crabbed and arbitrary technicalities of principles and procedure.

"The people were litigious. Land titles had not yet been settled; general laws of incorporation were in the making; railroad charters had to be devised, mortgages drawn and foreclosed. The admiralty law engaged the energies of many lawyers. Constitutions had to be revised and interpreted. A new charter had to be drawn for the government of the city.

"The lawyers were incessantly busy adapting the laws and institutions of the state to the changing exigencies of the time.

Too Few Liberties.

"I have praised the lawyers of the past, yet I cannot think the lawyers of the future will be less able and influential than their predecessors. They also will be lovers of liberty and justice. A great work lies before them. We have too many laws, too few liberties. Our methods of taxation are too complicated. We are pestered by too many bureaus and trammeled by too many restrictions.

Suggestions for the Future.

"And now I am done. Today we stand at the parting of the ways. Here is the past; wonder is the future.

"Henceforth this noble structure will be but a monument of a vanishing past, when the courts were the refuge of all in distress, when men were free and courts loved liberty; when all did homage to the law of the land, the least as feeling her care and the greatest as not exempted from her power"; when our homes were our castles and we were free to live as our consciences dictated and not as another might command; a precious time, gone I fear, forever.

"I hope that some not unworthy use may be found for this venerable edifice. We need a treasury for the many precious memorials of the men and events of the past which now lie moldering in the dark recesses of our cellars. Here they might be properly cared for and exhibited, and serve to keep alive an interest in the romantic and instructive history of our city. What more fit place could be found for the newspapers and documents which contain that history?

"The city will not die; for many years it will endure; and if we now establish such a treasury, generations to come will resort to it and learn to appreciate and admire the men who founded it and made it fit for the habitation of the millions of the future.

"It is the infirmity of old men that they object too much and adventure too little; and if on this occasion I have dwelt too long and too lovingly upon the past, I beg you to forgive one who is old and cannot forget. I am not despondent, but regretful. I do not doubt that under your guidance the course of empire, which today tends westward, may terminate in an elysium of liberty, equality and fraternity under a restored constitution and bill of rights which shall again guarantee the blessings which our forefathers intended to make indestructible, and without which this Republic can not endure.

"Our ceremony is finished. The past is behind us. Let us on to that future which beckons us—a noble future, I trust, which shall accomplish for this mighty nation the aspiration of its founders under the guidance of good men eloquent, who are familiar with its laws and faithful to its traditions; for without their help constitutions are but words and liberty cannot survive."

LETTER FROM HOOVER READ AT DEDICATION OF THE CIVIL COURTS

THE following letter from President Hoover to Circuit Judge Rutledge was read by Mayor Miller at the opening ceremonies at the new Civil Courts building yesterday.

"My Dear Judge Rutledge:

"Please express to the Judges and members of the bar present at the ceremonies of the opening of the new Civil Courts Building in St. Louis, my cordial greetings and my congratulations upon entering these handsome quarters, which will so greatly enhance the dignity of the surroundings in which justice will be administered.

"Yours faithfully,

"HERBERT HOOVER."

BARON AND NEW YORK WOMAN WIN BRIDGE CHAMPIONSHIP

By the Associated Press.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., June 21.—Baron Waldemar von Zedtwitz and Mrs. P. H. Sims, both of New York, won the all-American contract bridge pair championship last night in competition with 125 players from all parts of the United States and Canada at the joint congress of the American Whist League and the Women's Whist League, it was announced today.

Baon von Zedtwitz and Mrs. Sims had a score of 136 out of a possible 210. S. S. Lenz and Winfield Liggett, also of New York, were second with 129.

In the first session of the all-American auction bridge pair play to determine the championship Mrs. Norman Sinclair and J. B. Crippen, both of Toronto, had high score with 98 out of a possible 156. R. E. Needham and R. A. Miller were second with 89.

Scores in the second session of auction bridge pair play have not yet been computed.

MAYOR MILLER TURNS BUILDING OVER TO LAW

May It Add to Self-Respect and Elevate Conduct, He Says.

Mayor Miller, who presided at the ceremonies at the new Civil Courts Building yesterday afternoon, said in his address there:

"In turning over this splendid new home to the Bench and the Bar of St. Louis, I do it with the pride that comes to any man when he feels that an important job on which he has been engaged a long time, has been brought to a successful conclusion.

"When the citizens of St. Louis in February, 1923, voted $4,000,000 for the erection of a new Courthouse, no one knew whether this amount would be sufficient. We have no experience to go by. We did know that conditions for the satisfactory transaction of business in the old Courthouse had become intolerable, and we knew a change was necessary.

Place to Work and Ornament.

"We were determined, so far as we should be able to accomplish it, that the new Courthouse should be satisfactory as a place for work, as well as an ornament to the city; that it should not be a makeshift, but should fill the reasonable needs of the city for many years to come.

"When the building was being planned by the commission of architects organized to plan the bond issue projects, a committee of two of the Circuit Judges was appointed by the Judges in general term, to see that the needs of the courts were properly provided for. As the building stands today, it represents not only an artistic creation of a high order, but every practical feature that was suggested during the progress of the work.

"I believe it is worth all the time, all the effort, and all the money that was spent on it. In the opinion of those who know, it is the finest thing of the kind in this country. It is the last word, both from an artistic and a practical standpoint.

"You will see on inspection that this building was built in anticipation of every change that may possibly occur, and you will find that provision has been made to accommodate women jurors. Some day we will undoubtedly grant to the women the right to serve as jurors.

To Elevate Ordinary Affairs.

"The venerable old temple of justice, which we have just left was the scene of much important litigation, and much of importance will pass through this one in the course of time. As clean surroundings and personal cleanliness add to our self-respect and elevate our conduct in the ordinary affairs of life, may I express the hope that the dignified and worthy surroundings of this new building will hold Judges, attorneys, jurors and litigants to such a course of conduct as will send persons having business here away with a renewed faith in the essential honesty and sense of justice of the American people."

Introducing Prof. Langsdorf, Mayor Miller remarked: "The people voted $4,000,000 for the courthouse and how much it cost was discussed very voluminously in the last campaign. However, we needn't argue about that now."

Later, in introducing McCullen, he remarked: "I hope that in this new building there will be more oratory, better reason and more settlements."

TWO-YEAR SHORTAGE IN AURORA, MO., BANK

Two Sets of Ledger Sheets Used for Certain Accounts, Checkup Shows.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, June 21.—Further investigation of the affairs of the closed Bank of Aurora at Aurora, Mo., a State depository, has disclosed a shortage in the accounts of $143,700, instead of $114,000 as first announced by bank examiners in charge, State Finance Commissioner Cantley said today. When the bank was closed last Saturday its books showed deposits of $950,000 and total resources of $1,081,000.

Cantley said a "very bad situation" existed in the bank, but he declined to explain this pending completion of an inquiry by his examiners. He disclosed that closing of the bank by its directors followed discovery of a shortage in the course of a regular examination. At the time it was indicated the collapse was due to slow and bad loans.

Investigation so far has not indicated what dispositon was made of the money involved in the shortage, Cantley said.

Checking of the records has shown that a shortage existed for about two years. Cantley said. He declared two sets of ledger sheets had been used for the accounts which had been manipulated. Some of the bonds of customers are said to be involved and these are being checked by examiners, Cantley declared.

At the time of the closing, the banks had a deposit of $273,090 of State funds. State Treasurer Brunk holds $337,090 in bonds and other securities to guarantee safe keeping of the deposit.

CHOUTEAU-LUCAS HEIRS AGAIN SEEK OLD COURTHOUSE TITLE

Abandonment by City Amounts to Breach of Deed, Is Argument in Suit.

Another suit by descendants of Auguste Chouteau and John B. C. Lucas to obtain title to the courthouse ground for the 100 or more heirs of the two pioneers was filed in Circuit Court yesterday. The plaintiffs are Azby Chouteau III, Francise Chouteau and Morton Lucas, who did not join in the original petition filed Friday, although they are represented by the same attorneys. The same contention is made that the site, having been abandoned as a courthouse, it should revert to the heirs of the donors, Chouteau and Lucas. Abandonment by the city amounts to a breach of the deed, it is charged.

The second suit was among four petitions lodged in the new Civil Courts Building yesterday for entry on the docket. George G. Vest, one of the attorneys, said the two suits later might be consolidated. He estimated the value of the ground at $500,000.

The city has contended that the deed, which was executed 95 years ago, did not provide for reversion of the property; further, the heirs abandoned any rights they may have had when the city was separated from the county in 1874.

JUSTICE BUTLER GUEST OF HONOR AT BAR DINNER

Supreme Court Member Says He Never Knew a Strong Bench in Community Where Bar Was Weak.

Associate Justice Pierce Butler of the United States Supreme Court in a brief response to several addresses by members of state and federal judiciary and the bar association of the city at a dinner last night at Hotel Jefferson at which he was the guest of honor declared the bar association of any community to be the greatest influence of that community.

"Bar associations," he said, "are becoming even greater influences for good government by reason of their improved organizations. The courts depend upon the bar. I have never known a strong bench in a community where the bar was weak. The bench never rises above the bar."

Justice Butler told the 400 men and women present that he realized fully the many words of greeting and appreciation addressed to him were not personal, but were because he is a member of the Supreme Court of the United States. He concluded with a request that a silent toast be drunk to the memory of the late Chief Justice Taft.

Reference to Prohibition

Nearly all the six speakers who preceded Justice Butler referred to the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead act either directly or by quip and Gov. Caulfield was introduced by John S. Leahy, the toastmaster, as "a man better equipped to be Governor than any who went before him, because he was once excise commissioner of the city of St. Louis and therefore understands the needs of the people."

Former Judge Daniel G. Taylor pictured the life of a member of the Supreme Court as closely approaching that of a monk. "He can't even buy himself a gaudy tie," Taylor declared, "he must dress and act the part of severest dignity. The President may go for a cruise or go fishing. He may use what bait he chooses, even taking the great American sucker with tariff bait, but the Supreme Court justice must sit in solemn, sullen silence, a slave to the dignity and duties of his office."

Other addresses were made by Federal Judge Faris, Circuit Judge Harry A. Hamilton, former Federal Judge Henry S. Priest and Edward J. McCullen, president of the bar association. Bishop William Scarlett delivered the invocation.

Judge Faris' address was the most extended. The text of it follows:

"I have been unanimously selected by the two Federal District Judges, in this half of Missouri to represent the local Federal Judiciary in voicing appreciation of the honor done to us by the presence here tonight of Mr. Justice Butler.

"But even if I could be induced to remain silent, Judge Butler would know by this time that everybody in this great City is glad that he is here. However, the fast advancing hegemony—it takes you notice, a big word to express it—of federal jurisdiction, made it incumbent for somebody to speak for it, and so the Committee in charge reluctantly yielded to my request that I be allowed to speak for Judge Davis and myself. When I shall have finished Judge Davis will probably want to deny that I spoke for him.

"As provided by the well-settled canons and other artillery of oratory, I have selected as my subject, 'Federal Jurisdiction.' Imprimis, of course, I am here to express appreciation of Judge Butler's presenee, but in common with the custom of speakers of all the ages, especially old age, I welcome the chance to put forward wholly irrelevant but fondly cherished personal views, running as the Encyclopedia so beautifully expresses it, from Abecedarian to Zymotic. But I warn you now that in the short time grudgingly given to me by the Committee, I shall not be able to discuss Federal jurisdiction as fully as the importance of the subject requires.

Why the Justice Is Here.

"In limine, as the lawyers are fond of saying, when they are getting ready to straighten out on a long speech, I have been asked by the committee in charge to assure you that Judge Butler is not here to examine the architectural design of our new Civil Courts Building with any view of the prosecution of the architects for contempt of court. They are about to build in Washington a Supreme Court Building. This building will look when lying down about like our building looks standing up, or vice versa. Judge Butler had heard a rumor about our building which he deemed incredible; he thought it was impossible I refer to the rumor and not the building. So he came "for to see and for to admire," as I used to say when I lived on the edge of the Ozarks and before I came to St. Louis and learned to speak English and German.

"Among other gracious purposes, Judge Butler desired to see our monumental building so that on his return to Washington he might be able to say to the architects of the contemplated Supreme Court Building, that he had but one request to make of them. It would of course, be highly presumptious in me to say more definitely what that request will be. I hope my brethren of the State Circuit bench will reciprocate by praising our proposed new Federal Courts Building, if they shall live long enough.

Cites Frankfurter's Work.

"But I must get back to my subject of Federal jurisdiction. Occasions of this sort are of late, as rare as angels' visits. Time was, as I recently read in a book by Prof. Frankfurter, when the Justices of the Supreme Court gladly embraced the opportunity of coming out into the country in order to deliver a charge to the Federal grand jury. Prof. Frankfurter is the joint author of an excellent work on "The Business of the Supreme Court"; he has nothing whatever to do with a popular confection. This book of Professors Frankfurter and Landis — who doesn't even know Babe Ruth—tells of the business of the Supreme Court for 140 years. It's not a large book, about so large (indicating), and you will find it exciting and interesting and unexpected in places. Of course, you lawyers are more interested in what the Supreme Court is going to do in the next 10 years, or next Monday, or at latest next October. But times have changed and propaganda now comes to us through straw votes. Besides, the trouble of trying to find out what the Constitution still means has so engrossed the time and labors of that great court to which my learned brother belongs that we have of late been compelled to go to Washington if we even hoped to see a Justice of the Supreme Court and then sometimes we find he had gone to Europe.

"The inadvertence which caused me to refer to our distinguished guest as my learned brother was due to the same sort of notion seemingly held by a police judge of a little town up in Canada, whom I met years ago while on a fishing trip. I was introduced to this very local jurist, who at the time was obviously suffering from the fact that Canada had no Volstead law, as a Judge of the Supreme Court of Missouri, he was barely able in his then condition, to about half-way open one eye, which he did, and with what I considered a very friendly wink, acknowledged the introduction by saying "by jove, two birds of a feather." I was myself duly sober, at the time, so I have always suspected he must have meant to convey the notion that two eminent and distinguished jurists had foregathered and become acquainted.

Hopes for More Visits.

"Before returning to my great subject of legal technicalities, or was it Federal jurisdiction, I pause a moment to elaborate the hope that we shall in the future be more often honored in this great Western country, by visits from a great Westerner, himself to the manner born; consummation of this hope is merely a matter of finding time and leisure to make the visit, and the thought struck me that if a District Judge only had the power to adopt rules or procure the passage of statutes to relieve himself of all cases except those he just naturally felt like trying, vacations would be well nigh perennial and life on the district bench would be one sweet glad song.

"Of course the District Judges, as representatives of the very lowest order of Federal judicial life, or the ultimate species of the genus Federal Judge would have great difficulty in finding some victim on whom to wish any little laborious excess of jurisdiction. I had even thought of the State Justices of the Peace, but then it occurred to me that since the State and Federal jurisdictions are foreign to each other, it would be both unfair and diplomatically an unfriendly act to mistreat these poor foreigners.

"Coming back to my subject of Federal jurisdiction, of Federal hegemony, or whatever it was, I digress a moment to say that we are here to do honor to Judge Butler, and to eat and be merry. So I crave pardon if I am not becomingly serious. The truth is that I quit making serious public speeches some 20 years ago when I was called to the bench. In addition to the immense relief which this act of self-abnegation afforded my friends, I have been able to avoid controversy in pais. It is easy to avoid controversy on the bench. More often than not, the making of even a few serious remarks by one in a judicial office, on any little matter of how this world ought to be run, or touching the question, as an old Swedish statesman pressed it, of the modicum of wisdom with which it is governed, or the guarantees against conviction afforded by some constitutional guarantors in coping with crime makes for disputation and embarrassment.

"Besides, if a Judge says anything at all sensational he is likely to be accused of exploiting himself with a view to being promoted to dictator of something, say radio broadcasting or baseball. If he does not say anything sensational no mention is made of his speech by the press, or if it is mentioned it is put down in a corner somewhere next to an advertisement of somebody's stomach bitters; but I concede that this now makes for more publicity than it did some ten years ago.

"It goes without saying that we are all delighted to honor Judge Butler, and through him to honor the greatest court on this earth; although while I am on this subject I must confess that some three or four weeks ago, I had begun to fear that never again would a lawyer dare to take the stand as a witness, lest some contemptible adversary should ask by way of impeachment, whether he had ever been nominated as a Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States.

"Seriously now at last, the honor is, the above matter of history regarded, greater to those who run the gantlet of senatorial inquisition and get by, and to one who is not the least of these I am greatly pleased to express the heartiest appreciation for the honor done to all of us by his presence here in St. Louis, which would be one of the greatest cities in America if its population would only be content to live within the city limits.

"Much to my regret and your disappointment, I find that I shall not be able tonight to finish my great subject of Federal Jurisdiction, or perhaps I should have called it the Federal Inquisition."

HEAD OF U. S. REVENUE BUREAU HERE TRANSFERRED TO WICHITA

S. S. Sinclair to Be Succeeded Here by Charles T. Russell, Agent in This District.

Announcement of the transfer from the St. Louis office of the Federal Internal Revenue Bureau of S. S. Sinclair, agent in charge, to become agent in charge of the Wichita (Kan.) office was made yesterday. Charles T. Russell, Kansas City, Mo., an agent in the St. Louis district, will be promoted to succeed Sinclair here. The changes will be effective July 1.

Sinclair, who formerly was an agent in the Wichita division, will return there to fill the post left vacant by the death on March 30 of George F. Ruede, who was the oldest agent in the bureau employ in point of service.

Sinclair was transferred to the St. Louis division about four years ago and became agent in charge when Ernest Sudbrink resigned. Russell has been in the service about 10 years and formerly was head of a large Kansas City accounting firm.

HELD IN KILLING OF THREE FOUND DEAD IN A WELL

Five Men Arrested by Rockmart (Ga.) Authorities, Who Suspect Losers at Poker Killed Winners.

By the Associated Press.

ROCKMART, Ga., June 21.—Five men are held without bond in jail here accused of the murder of Cliff Jones, Lige Harper and Ernest McCullough, who were found stabbed, beaten and shot to death at the bottom of a well in an almost deserted region 6 miles east of here yesterday.

The prisoners—Bill Hulsey, his two sons, Fred and Ray, his son-in-law, Tom Hicks and L. C. McCullough—were ordered held for the grand jury by the verdict of a Coroner's jury.

The authorities advance the theory that the men engaged in a poker game and that the losers killed the winners in a drunken quarrel that developed after the game.

HOLDS BOOKMAKER'S KILLING OF KIDNAPER JUSTIFIABLE

Coroner's Jury Clears Herman Kohn, Who, With Companion, Fired on Assailants.

A Coroner's verdict of justifiable homicide was returned yesterday in the death of Oliver Honig, who was shot Thursday night when he and two companions attempted to kidnap Herman Kohn and William Rutstein, partners in a chain of bookmaking cigar stores. The verdict said that Kohn, who shot Honig, fired in self-defense.

Police testified they were summoned to Rutstein's home at 3407 Belt avenue, where the shooting occurred, and on their arrival found both bookmakers awaiting them. They said Rutstein explained:

"I'm a bookmaker. They tried to kidnap me. I'm here and there's one of them lying outside."

Honig's companions are said to have leaped into an automobile and fled under fire from both Kohn and Rutstein. Three suspects were arrested Friday, but denied having been in Honig's company.

BRIBERY TO GET CITY-OWNED POWER PLANTS INDICATED

plained bitterly of the vote by a certain councilman for the Inland bid. He said that Mr. Shamburg was "very much upset over the outcome, as he (Shamburg) felt sure that the council would respect his wishes." Shamburg is identified in a memorandum as the man to whom the Foshay interests were committed to pay a commission on the "Burlington deal." He was not, however, the man that Lynch had proposed as the handler of a "brokerage fee."

Town Enjoins Sale.

On July 3, 1929, Lynch wrote to Andrus that the people of Burlington had served an injunction on the Mayor, the town board and the Inland Co. to prevent the consummation of the sale.

"The case," he said, "is to be tried before the District Court at Burlington commencing on July 10, at which time the people will attempt to prove that the proceedings were irregular and illegal in that the town board acted without authority, as the new board had been already sworn in and seated, and the members of the town board had accepted bribes.

"Being very greatly interested in the matter, I made a trip to Burlington, where I had quite a visit with Mr. Hook, the Mayor. I found that he was very decidedly against the sale of the property to anybody and that he was intending to do everything in his power to upset it. He tried to get me to say that I was approached by members of the board for 'sugar.' He felt sure that I, as well as all the other bidders, had been approached and assured me that each one of us would be subpenaed and questioned under oath.

"The fact of the matter is, I was approached, and I do not doubt that the other competitors were also, but I hesitate to go on the witness stand and admit it.

How to Avoid Testifying.

"I will be glad to have your advice in the matter, and if you think this is a good time for me to take my vacation, or if you think I should go ahead and tell what I know, I will be glad to follow your suggestions."

Lynch wrote a similar letter to A. E. Laffsa, who replied from the W. B. Foshay office in Minneapolis suggesting the "utmost caution."

"We should avoid if possible being placed in any embarrassing circumstances," wrote Laffsa. "One means of avoiding such a situation is to stay within the borders of the State of Kansas. It is very doubtful if extradition proceedings will be followed in a case of this kind. If, on the other hand, through due process of law, you do appear before the District Court, you will, of course, pursue an open and honest policy.

"Unless you have been very definitely approached with a very definite request for 'sugar,' it can be said that many conversations may have caused you to infer such requests. It is very dangerous to specify on the basis of inference. In any event, would suggest that you save yourself and the compan embarrassment, if possible."

At Work in Georgia.

Other letters in the Trade Commission's records tell of efforts of the Foshay company to get control of the municipal plants in several Georgia towns—Camilla, Blakely, Moultrie, Norman Park and Dothan.

The correspondence in relation to Camilla is especially enlightening. G. C. Keyes of the headquarters force of the Foshay company, wrote in January, 1928, to his chief, Andrus, that he had been in Camilla and "made contact with parties who desire to sell the municipal system."

But the Camilla affair had its complications. On June 9, Keyes wrote to Andrus that Messrs. Butler, Jenkins, Brooks and Baggs, leading citizens of Camilla, were doing their best to get the council lined up. He said that Butler controlled three councilmen, Baggs one, Brooks one and Jenkins two.

"The impression gained from general discussion," wrote Keyes in the same letter, "is that the men we have in mind to help put this deal over will want a commission. Am wondering if you would approve a certain per cent taken from the purchase price if these men guarantee to put the deal through the council resulting in our acquisition of the property without delay."

Four days later Keyes wrote: "Have decided to let Gardner, Gardner & Crow, law firm, put over the deal for us. Mr. J. D. Gardner is city attorney, having much influence over the council. The firm will handle the matter on a brokerage basis of 5 per cent. They advise that the brokerage fee will be kept confidential; also, if they are unsuccessful there will be no retaining fee, the matter to remain contingent."

Sliding Scale of Fees.

In his reply, June 15, Andrus objected to "paying toll to city officials" but said he was willing to pay "brokerage commission to one right man in the community." He suggested "Brooks the banker" as the "right man." The corporation, he said, "would not care to know how the commission split up."

Andrus proposed that the amount of the commission be graduated upward as the price at which the property might be obtained was scaled down. That is, a purchase price of $80,000 would carry a $3000 commission, and a price of $100,000 would carry a $2000 commission.

On July 4 Keyes wrote to Andrus that the Gardner, Gardner & Crow law firm "felt it advisable not to enter into contract for compensation fees, as it might involve their political careers."

There is nothing in the record to show whether the Camilla deal went through. Apparently it failed.

Regarding the Mayor of a town which had favored a rival company, Lynch wired in April, 1929, to H. H. Henley, executive vice president of the W. B. Foshay Company: "Mayor unquestionably bought and madly scrambling to put deal over before new Mayor is seated."

Moultrie (Ga.) Deal.

The effort of the Foshay interests to buy the plant at Moultrie, Ga., had two or three interesting angles, as excerpts from the correspondence will show.

Keyes of the headquarters staff, writing to R. L. Oertle of the Foshay organization at Moultrie Sept. 13, 1928, said: "Your plan for a new candidate for city council who is in favor of selling the city's utilities is a most important step in our favor. I will arrange to spend a few days with you next week, at which time we can further discuss the peculiarities of this situation."

Jan. 30, 1929, Oertle wrote to Andrus: "Mayor Bryan of Moultrie, I feel, is with us, but does not want to voice himself while he is serving as Mayor. He goes out of office in October. The other day he told me that when he goes out he would like to line up with us as local counsel on any business that might come up and that he believed he could do us some good. I told him my conception of the way in which he could 'do us some good' and found that our ideas tallied."

Andrus replied on Feb. 5 as follows: "Am mighty glad to note that you are getting this situation well lined up. Mr. Keyes is now in touch with Mayor Bryan in the matter of his representing us in a legal way."

About this time the Federal Trade Commission was sending out a form letter asking about efforts "through the expenditure of money or through the control of the avenues of publicity to influence or control public opinion, regarding municipal ownership of light plants."

Mayor Bryan received this inquiry and on Feb. 8 he replied that "the relations between this city and this corporation (the Baker County Power Co., a Foshay subsidiary) have been pleasant and mutually satisfactory, and we have no criticism to offer that would help you in this inquiry."

PHILCO

TONE-CONTROL

>>> NEWEST MIRACLE OF RADIO RECEPTION <<<

THE HIGHBOY

New 9-tube Screen Grid Plus Chassis built into an exceptionally beautiful cabinet of American walnut, with one hundred per cent figured matched butt walnut pilasters and instrument panel; hand-rubbed satin finish; American Gobelin Tapestry over speaker. Price, $145, less tubes. Other exquisite furniture models from $95 to $198 (Radio-Phonograph).

BRILLIANT • BRIGHT • MELLOW • DEEP

Philco Tone-Control

BRILLIANT • BRIGHT • MELLOW • DEEP

You can turn the Philco Tone Control to these four positions of TONE QUALITY. You can change speech or music to suit your taste. You have a PERSONAL CONTROL over the tone sent you by the station. You operate it yourself with this knob on the front of the set and vastly increase your sphere of radio entertainment. It is truly "radio's newest miracle."

RADIO'S newest marvel—a tone control knob on the front of the set which gives you mastery over the quality of tone sent from the broadcasting station.

Think what it means to bring in your favorite jazz band with the crisp, snappy tone of dance-floor REALITY. Consider the enjoyment of bringing in the great Philco Symphony concerts in the mellowest, richest tones, or, if the music offers big brass sonority, you can instantly make it as brilliant as you like, with a turn of the hand.

The radio world has been waiting for the perfection of this invention. Everybody has wondered when the radio LISTENER could take a hand in the performance, right at home.

Here it is at last! It was the sensation of the recent National Radio Show at Atlantic City. It has been hailed by the Philco dealers, all over the land, as the greatest step forward in radio reception since the perfection of Philco balanced units, which STILL serve to give you the wonderful lifelike UNDISTORTED Philco tone.

It is natural that Philco should again lead the industry with PHILCO TONE CONTROL. Philco has long been identified with the perfection of radio tone. In 1929 these marvelous sets became world leaders, in popular favor and in sales, because of the wonderful tone produced by Philco's balanced units; new circuits of extraordinary selectivity; tremendous distance ability, opening up of vast new fields of enjoyment for owners.

All these great features are retained and Philco Tone Control is added. Philco's new radios are all you can buy in radio, no matter what you pay. The Philco Screen Grid Plus has, in addition, AUTOMATIC VOLUME CONTROL which counteracts fading, so you can not only get, but hold and enjoy, programs.

No sets in the world offer such a combination of exclusive features and desirable devices. Each Philco Radio has a new, improved electro-dynamic speaker and a New Station Recording Dial on which you can log your favorite stations. Philco radios are available for operation on AC or DC electric current, or by battery. And the new Philco cabinets are the most beautiful and tasteful, we believe, ever offered anywhere at any price. America's foremost designers created them.

America's tremendous acceptance has made them far from expensive. Such values are hard to believe until you inspect the Philco line at your nearest dealer's.

He wants you to operate the new Philco with Philco Tone Control in your own home. The demonstration won't obligate you in any way. Have a new Philco installed today. Easy terms, of course, if you decide to buy.

LAMONT DEFENDS NEW TARIFF; SAYS TRADE WILL GROW

Declares 1922 Bill Represented Steeper Rise in Duties but Did Not Stop Business Expansion.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 21. — A formal statement in defense of the new tariff bill, challenging assertions that it would be a detriment to American business, was issued by Secretary of Commerce Lamont today.

Representing research findings of his department, the declaration, constituted the third made on the subject this week, Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and Senator Watson of Indiana, Republican leader in the Senate, having previously presented their views. Secretary Lamont introduced primarily a study of the bearings of the new measure on international trade.

"I have been asked what effect the new tariff will have on our foreign trade," Lamont said.

"Some light on this question may be gained from the experience after the passage of the tariff act of 1922; that act raised the level of duties, as compared with the Underwood act, much more than has been done in the present revision. As many protests were received from foreign countries as have been received in the present year; and there were just as many predictions of disaster to our foreign commerce.

"What actually happened: In the seven years under the 1922 tariff act, our total imports increased 41 per cent. Imports of manufactured goods from Europe rose from $340,000,000 in 1922 to $581,000,000 in 1929, or by 45 per cent. These gains were not due to increased prices of commodities.

"Our imports from Germany and Czecho-Slovakia more than doubled; from Italy they increased 83 per cent; from Belgium, 37½ per cent; from Spain and Switzerland, about 25 per cent each, and from France, 20 per cent. The United Kingdom is the only important European country from which we purchased less in 1929 than in 1922, and this falling off was not due to changes in our rates of duty.

Minimizes Protest.

"The protests which have been made by foreign Governments to us, in connection with the 1930 tariff, may seem to indicate a wide the proposed increase to which they include protests made over the course of more than a year during the various stages of the tariff bill. In a considerable number of cases the proposed increase to whch they related were not finally enacted; as for example, in the case of laces, bananas, jute and shingles. In other instances the rates objected to were materially moderated during the progress of the bill so that as finally passed they are not much different from what they were before, as in the case of plate glass, rayon, Swiss cheese, soya-been oil, Oriental carpets, perfumery and pharmaceutics. The rates on silk goods caused considerable anxiety at times, but the final average increase in duty is less than 5 per cent ad valorem.

"Taking these points into considerations, we find that those protests which actually apply to the act as passed, and which relate to changes of duties of possible real importance to the protesting countries amount to probably not more than 10 or 12 per cent of our total imports.

"Perhaps the most important feature of this tariff bill is the new flexible clause. The old one did not work very well. The present clause is more affective, in that the Commissioners have greater latitude at arriving at differences in costs of producton as a basis for adjusting rates. If a foreign country believes that any of our tariffs are unduly high and prevent competitive shipment into the United States, it can present its case to the reorganized Tariff Commission which, in collaboration with the President, has the power, if the complaint is justified, to rectify the rates. This new proposal for dealing with such cases by a semi-judicial body is unique in the world's tarff procedure. No other nation has offered to us a similar opportunity to present our case where, as often has happened, we have believed its duties were unduly high and discriminatory against us. This plan should enable us to meet in a fair manner outstanding cases involving foreign interests.

Summarizes Argument.

"Considering these things:

"(1) The steady growth for many years of both exports and imports, in spite of increases in previous tariffs;

"(2) The relatively small percentage of our imports to which the protests of our foreign friends apply; and

"(3) The availability of a workable, flexible clause to adjust unfair situations;

"We believe the new tariff law will not retard the amazing growth of our foreign trade. It should be remembered also that four-fifths in value of our imports consist of goods which are either free of duty or unchanged or reduced in duties under the new law.

"The United States will continue to buy from and sell to the nations of the world vast quantities of products. Our great and growing buying power, partially no doubt a result of the protective system under which we have grown up, enables our people to steadily expand their purchases from foreign countries."

W. C. DURANT DEFENDS TARIFF

Auto Manufacturer Says It Will Not Hurt Business.

NEW YORK, June 21.—William C. Durant, financier and automobile manufacturer, returning tonight on the Berengaria after nine weeks in France, Germany and Australia, said he saw no justification for criticism of the new tariff.

He said the tariff did not menace American business generally, nor the motors industry in particular.

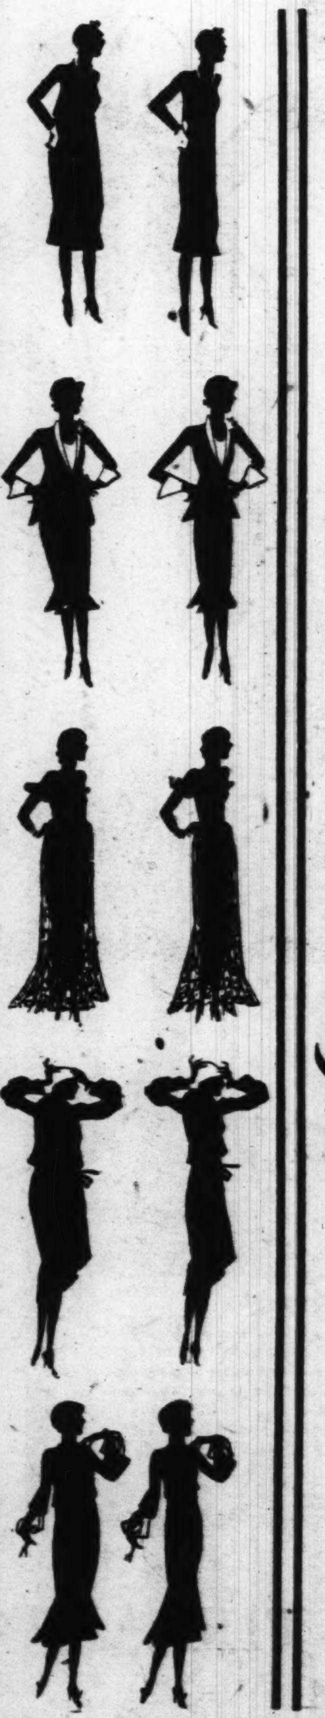
Miraculous, New

Reducing Garment

takes off inches from hips, waist, thighs



At last, without starvation diets or strenuous exercises—you can have the figure of your dreams—slim, young, beautifully proportioned. Just by wearing Beauty Mould—what the makers believe is really the loveliest corset ever created for large figures . . . or figures that are beginning to bulge.

Soft as satin. Yet so amazingly strong it takes off inches from your silhouette, instantly, the minute you put it on.

And every day that you wear the Beauty Mould, you actually reduce. You can see the matronly fat disappear from your hips. Those ugly bulges around your waist vanish. Your whole body slims down miraculously.

. . . then you can quit wearing the Beauty Mould! You have a beautiful figure, small waist, youthfully rounded hips, slender thighs, the season's smartest lines!

This is what Miss Varden says:

"For years I have been a corset and dress model. I am what is known as a perfect 36.

"I never diet, but when I put on excess fat I immediately begin wearing the silk-surfaced rubber corset and in a short time I reduce down to a perfect 36. Then I must discontinue wearing the corset; otherwise I reduce too much.

"There are no bad effects from wearing this lovely garment; it absorbs all moisture, and in appearance, fit and style it is the equal of any corset I have ever worn."

Beauty Mould

lets you wear the new styles beautifully while losing weight daily

The Beauty Mould is a totally new invention. The surface next to the body is a finishing cloth that absorbs excess perspiration, the outside is lustrous silk. And between these two is an interlining of that famous patented Rubber-Tex.

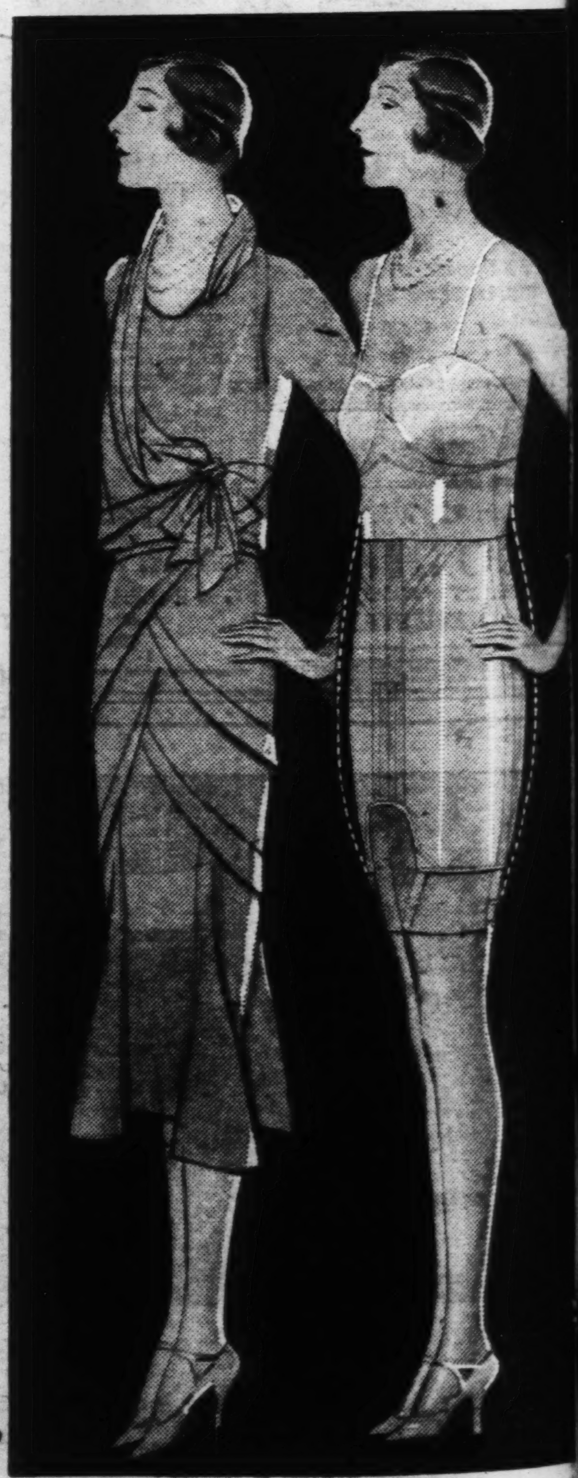
Here is a flesh-reducing garment that eliminates all the disadvantages of the old-time rubber corsets.

Marvelously comfortable to wear; beautiful in style; modelled to conform the figure to the newest fashions of today.

You can wash it and keep it fresh always. And the back lacing lets you pull it in as your hips and waist grow smaller day by day.

No excuse now for anyone looking stiff, bulky, fat! Beauty Mould gives you the smart slender figure you must have to look beautiful in the new styles, while it gradually reduces your body to lovely lines.

Find out how unbelievably slim and graceful you can look, and become . . . in the Beauty Mould.



Beauty Mould is a product of The Sandfelder Co., Chicago, Ill., and is made by the Associated Apparel Industries, Inc., largest manufacturers in the world of Corsets and Brassieres. Makers of Gossard, Modart, Nature's Rival, Beauty Mould, Jackson, Venus, and College Girl Corsets and LaMode Garments.

FRENCH MINISTER OUTLINES COURSE ON U. S. TARIFF

Flandin Says Normal Relations Between Nations Can Be Maintained Only by Reciprocity.

PARIS, June 21.—A global claim for reduction of the new United States tariff rates on a certain number of French products after careful investigation is the French Government aim made known in a formal interview with the press today by Pierre Etienne Flandin, Minister of Commerce. He said that in case the Tariff Commission should prove unable to satisfy the demands of France it would be necessary to "face the situation," he added significantly that "normal relations between the United States and France can be guaranteed only by strict reciprocity."

Flandin said he thought such modifications might be secured from the Tariff Commission. "Otherwise," he said, "we will be obliged to deal with the situation. "It is incontestable that the Hawley-Smoot tariff involves considerable increases on a number of products "considered at the beginning as a measure for the protection of the farmer, the project was extended notably to cover the industrial interests."

Some Protests Heeded.

"It is only just to recognize that we have obtained appreciable satisfaction on some points during a long discussion of the bill. For instance, Congress renounced proposed increases on lace from 90 to 300 per cent ad valorem and we thus safeguarded our industries in Calais and Caudry. But on certain other points our protests were unavailing."

He pointed out a growing shrinkage in French trade with the United States, stating that the balance in favor of the United States which amounted to 2,900,000,000 francs in 1928 had increased to 3,900,000,000 in 1929 and that this year the first three months' business showed a balance unfavorable to France at a rate of 5,200,000,000 francs a year.

Tourist Business Counted On.

"Of course," he continued, "this unfavorable balance is offset in a certain measure by invisible exports." The Minister qualified the statement by saying, "but purchases made in France by tourists, even in normal times, are insufficient to make up such a deficit and besides, it is reasonable to take into account that the tourist movement has singularly slowed up in France.

"We must not overlook on the debit side of our account with the United States sums which we are obliged to pay on war debts which amount to an average of $30,000,000 a year."

The Minister said his office was working closely in co-operation with the French Commercial Attache in New York scrutinizing the new tariffs, comparing them with former rates and with French duties and consulting all economic associations interested in the question.

BOAT SPEEDERS ON MERAMEC TO LOSE PERMITS

Customs Collector Makes Threat on Receiving Complaints Against Reckless Owners.

As a result of numerous complaints that owners of motorboats are endangering the lives of swimmers and canoeists on the Meramec River through reckless and unregulated tactics, Chief Deputy United States Collector of Customs William J. Burney announced yesterday that he will revoke the registry permit of every motorboat owner reported for recklessness. Operation without this registry permit makes the boat owner subject to a fine of $100 on each occasion he is caught operating the boat, Burney said.

The demand for action against reckless motorboat owners reached a climax with the drowning, June 8, at Lincoln Beach, Patrick M. Freeman, 24 years old, a plasterer, when a canoe he and another man were paddling was capsized by the backwash of a speeding outboard motorboat. Freeman's companion said that the motorboat passed within 15 feet of the canoe, and that the occupant made no effort to give aid after the canoe upset.

Numerous complaints involving motorboat owners have been made to the Collector of Customs, the Red Cross River Patrol, and County authorities. The river patrol has no police powers, and county authorities have no jurisdiction on navigable streams, leaving the situation in the hands of the Collector of Customs, who is authorized to act under regulations of the Department of Commerce.

Aid of Police Sought.

Chief Deputy Burney said that in the past the complaints were so general that there was not sufficient evidence upon which to revoke the registry permit. He has requested Deputy Sheriffs and Constables in Franklin, Jefferson and St. Louis Counties to obtain the registry number of any boat reported for violations, and the names of witnesses making the report. Burney also has requested reports on all unregistered motorboats.

The Red Cross River Patrol has the following suggestions to offer covering the safe operation of motor craft: That the speed be reduced to four miles an hour in congested sections of the river; that motor craft of any description give canoes a clearance of at least 30 feet; mufflers should be on all engines, as the sound of the exhaust may prevent the cries of a person in distress from being heard; operators of motor craft should maintain a viligant watch forward at all times.

An opinion from Attorney-General Shartel concerning the prosecution on charges of criminal carelessness of motor boat operators who, through recklessness, cause a drowning will be sought by P. H. Byrns, executive secretary of the St. Louis Chapter of the American Red Cross.

"I believe that there is room for all on the Meramec provided the motor boat enthusiasts use discretion," Byrns said. "We had a case last year where a member of our patrol rescued a swimmer and was taking him to shore in a canoe when a motor boat sped along side and capsized the canoe. The Red Cross man was fatigured from his first tussle with the drowning man, and had an extremely difficult time saving him the second time."

Warning to Non-Swimmers.

Byrns stressed the point that inexperienced swimmers should stay out of canoes, unless accompanied by an expert swimmer.

Included among the many protests voiced against the objectionable and dangerous tactics of motor boat owners is one from William Grossman, veteran swimmer and motor boat enthusiast, who sells many of the outboard motors now in use here.

"When I had a craft equipped with an outboard motor on the Meramec eight years ago the top speed was 12 miles an hour, and no trouble was caused. Now we have motors that will drive a boat 40 miles an hour and the fellows who run them take the mufflers off to take advantage of an additional mile an hour. Such fellows have no business on the Meramec, they should stay on the Mississippi where they won't drown anyone."

DIAL PHONES TAKEN OUT OF SENATE WING IN CAPITOL

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—Dial telephones were being removed today from the Senate wing of the Capitol and the Senate office building. A crew of 30 men began operations last night and have until midnight tonight to complete the task. They are restoring the old-fashioned type.

Capitol employes said about three-fourths of the Senators depended upon the operators to dial their number and they exepcted little change from going back to the old system.

The dial system was ordered out a month ago under a resolution introduced by Senator Glass of Virginia, who objected to being "an employe of the telephone company without compensatio-"

MOVE TO BLOCK ABANDONMENT OF FOURTH ST. LINE

Four St. Louisans Appeal to Public Service Commission—Question of Jurisdiction Considered.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, June 21.—A complaint against the plan of the St. Louis Public Service Co. to abandon the Fourth street car line and to reroute the Compton and Tower Grove lines to serve much of the territory formerly served by the Fourth street line was filed today with the Public Service Commission by four persons who assert they are adversely affected by the plan. The change in service is effective tomorrow.

They request the commission to instruct its counsel to proceed against the company to compel it to continue furnishing the service it proposes to abandon. The commission took no action but indicated the case would be set for hearing in St. Louis next week.

The complaint was filed by Dr. Carl Althans of 3248 Lafayette avenue, L. W. Blanke of 1734 South Compton avenue, Dr. Philip G. Vierheller of 3236 Lafayette avenue and G. A. Luecking of 3152 Lafayette avenue.

They charge the rerouting plan will result in abandonment of service on Lafayette avenue, between Grand boulevard and Compton avenue, and seriously inconvenience persons residing in that territory. The company did not apply to the commission for authority to make the changes and the commission is considering whether there is an abandonment of service which would give the commission jurisdiction.

NAVY TO BUILD 13,800-TON, $19,000,000 PLANE CARRIER

Craft to Be Smaller Than Four Existing Ones; Hoover Withdraws Objections.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—President Hoover having withdrawn his objection, the Navy announced today that it would ask for bids for the construction of a 13,800-ton, $19,000,000 aircraft carrier.

The ship would increase the Navy's carriers to four. The Lexington and Saratoga can carry more than 100 airplanes each and displace 33,000 tons, whereas the proposed new carrier could handle only about 75 planes.

After the London conference the President ordered construction of the new carrier, two cruisers and two submarines to be delayed, pending Congressional action on the treaty. He has not yet authorized work on the cruisers and submarines.

The Washington treaty allowed the United States 135,000 tons in aircraft carriers. With the completion of the new one, for which bids will be received Aug. 12, the total constructed tonnage would be 90,086.

PAIR SAIL FROM BERMUDA TO NEW YORK IN 15-FOOT BOAT

Girl Comes Ashore in Bathing Suit; Denies She Is Married to Companion.

NEW YORK, June 21.—Eric Johnson, 21 years old, of Bermuda and Florence Smith, 24, of Grand Manan, New Brunswick, sailed from Bermuda in a 15-foot sailboat and reached New York today. Miss Smith's coming-ashore costume was a bathing suit, red sweater and slippers. Johnson wore dungarees and slippers.

"Married? Why, we aren't even engaged," laughed Miss Smith as she leaped ashore.

Johnson built the sailboat himself. They took turns at the tiller, steering north by northeast with only a compass for equipment. Both he and his shipmate, a graduate of the University of Maine, were tanned and in fine health.

PAY AND BONUSES INCLUDED IN BETHLEHEM STEEL AUDIT

Judge Overrules Objections of Corporation's Attorneys in Merger Dispute.

By the Associated Press.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., June 21.—An examination of books and accounts of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, granted yesterday to opponents of the Bethlehem-Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. merger, will be made by Ernst & Ernst, Cleveland accountants, Judge David G. Jenkins decided today over the objections of Bethlehem counsel.

After the Judge had overruled the objection, Bethlehem attorneys offered a number of stipulations as to information that should not be included in the court order. Among the stipulations was one that salaries and bonuses should not be examined. Merger opponents have charged that excessive amounts were paid to Bethlehem executives.

Legion Ex-Officer Shot.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., June 21.—Payton H. Hoge, 41-year-old insurance agent and former national vice commander of the American Legion, is in a serious condition at a hospital today from a depressed skull fracture caused by a bullet wound. Mrs. Hoge, who was with her husband at their home when he was wounded, said he was cleaning a .45 caliber pistol which dropped to the floor and discharged.

Heat When It's Cold Cool When It's Hot!

Air Conditioning Today And Tomorrow

By Willis H. Carrier
President of the Carrier Engineering Corporation

Air Conditioning may appear to many as a new science being developed today. Yet air conditioning, as a matter of fact, has been in practical use for over 25 years. Perhaps the real reason why the "man-on-the-street" thinks of air conditioning as a new thing is because it is only recently that the principles of air conditioning have been practically applied to providing conditions of health and comfort in buildings where he can daily appreciate its benefits.

He goes to a moving picture theatre and finds that not only is it cooler than out-of-doors, but much more important, the humidity which is so oppressing out-of-doors is controlled and reduced to a scientific level of comfort and health and the air is maintained in motion to an equally scientific determined degree. He may be fortunate enough to work in an air-conditioned office so that in the winter when conditions in the average office are hot, oppressive and uncomfortably dry, he works in an atmosphere of warm moist air in gentle draftless motion. And in the summer, of course, when the outside temperature is in the 90's and the humidity makes conditions muggy and intensively oppressive, he works in a cool de-humified atmosphere and may even be reluctant to leave the office when the working day is done because of the comforts it offers.

In the theatre or the department store, and in other buildings, air-conditioning does a spectacular thing when it cools the air and de-humidifies it in the summer. Most people forget that it does an equally, if not more important thing when it prevents the overheating effect of dry hot air, by providing humidified warm air in the winter season.

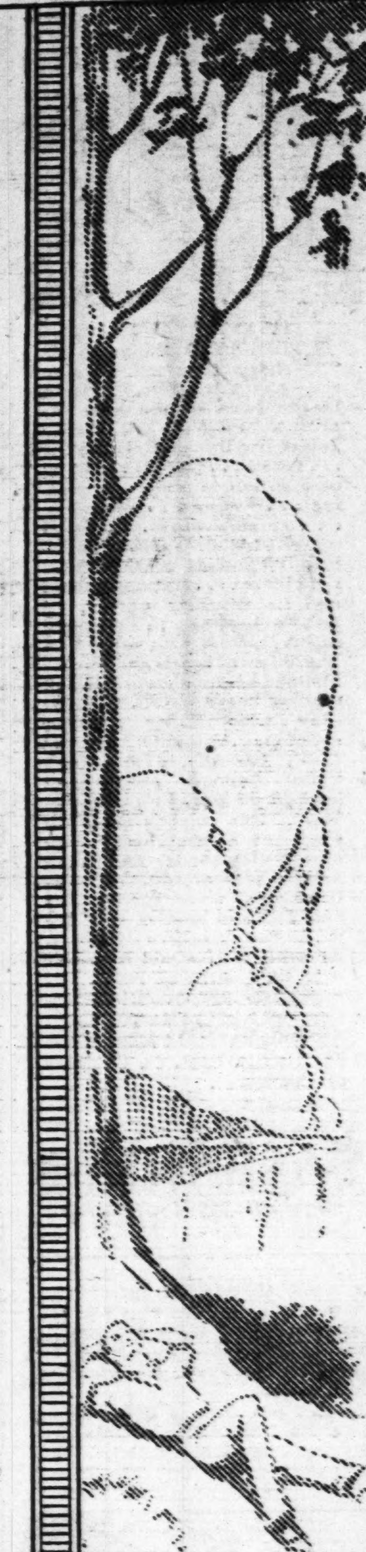
Retail stores, banks, restaurants, cafeterias, hotels—the list of buildings with conditioned air is growing daily all over the country, and the list of buildings in which air-conditioning will soon be regularly used, might be extended to include practically every type of public building.

But it would be wrong to overlook the years of service rendered by air conditioning in the industrial field. The textile industry, for example, in most of its operations requires rather moist air and where in the olden days the textile mill had to be located where the average normal humidity was high, air conditioning has made it possible to locate the textile mill close to its source of raw material because air conditioning can provide much more accurately the exact conditions required for any textile process. Candies, on the other hand, usually require cool dry air, not only to improve their quality during manufacture, but to maintain their quality and appearance after shipment. Air conditioning has long provided the exact conditions required for candy manufacture in the leading candy plants of the country. Rayon and other artificial silk fibres could not be made in the volume and quality in which they are produced today if it were not for air conditioning.

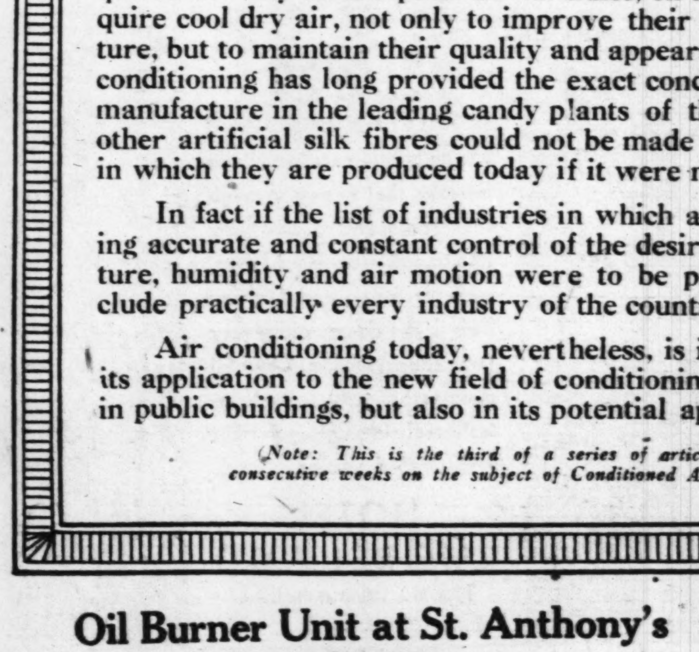
In fact if the list of industries in which air conditioning is providing accurate and constant control of the desired conditions of temperature, humidity and air motion were to be printed here, it would include practically every industry of the country.

Air conditioning today, nevertheless, is in its infancy, not only in its application to the new field of conditioning for comfort and health in public buildings, but also in its potential application to industry.

(Note: This is the third of a series of articles to appear for five consecutive weeks on the subject of Conditioned Air.)



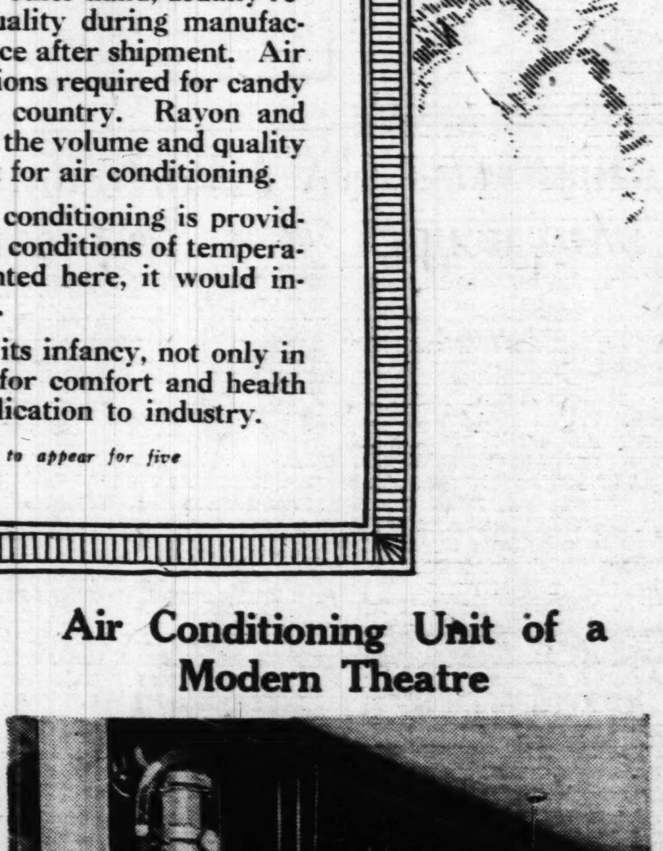
Oil Burner Unit at St. Anthony's Hospital



The St. Anthony's Hospital has installed a perfected oil burner unit which assures a regulated temperature that is a great comfort and help to the patients in the cold weather.

Hospitals throughout the country are now contemplating the installation of cooling systems in order to furnish an atmospheric condition conducive to the health and betterment of each individual patient every day in the year.

Air Conditioning Unit of a Modern Theatre



Once upon a time theatres were deserted in the summer time because the heat inside was unbearable. Now people flock to theatres that are air conditioned in order to escape the heat.

St. Louis is rapidly realizing how important to health, comfort and efficiency is the control of temperature and moisture of air wherever people congregate indoors. To meet the ever-increasing demand on our company for accurate information on this subject, a special Air Conditioning Department has been established.

On request a specially trained engineer will gladly call and help solve your air conditioning problem. There is no charge or obligation for this service. Call MAin 3222 and ask for the Air Conditioning Department.

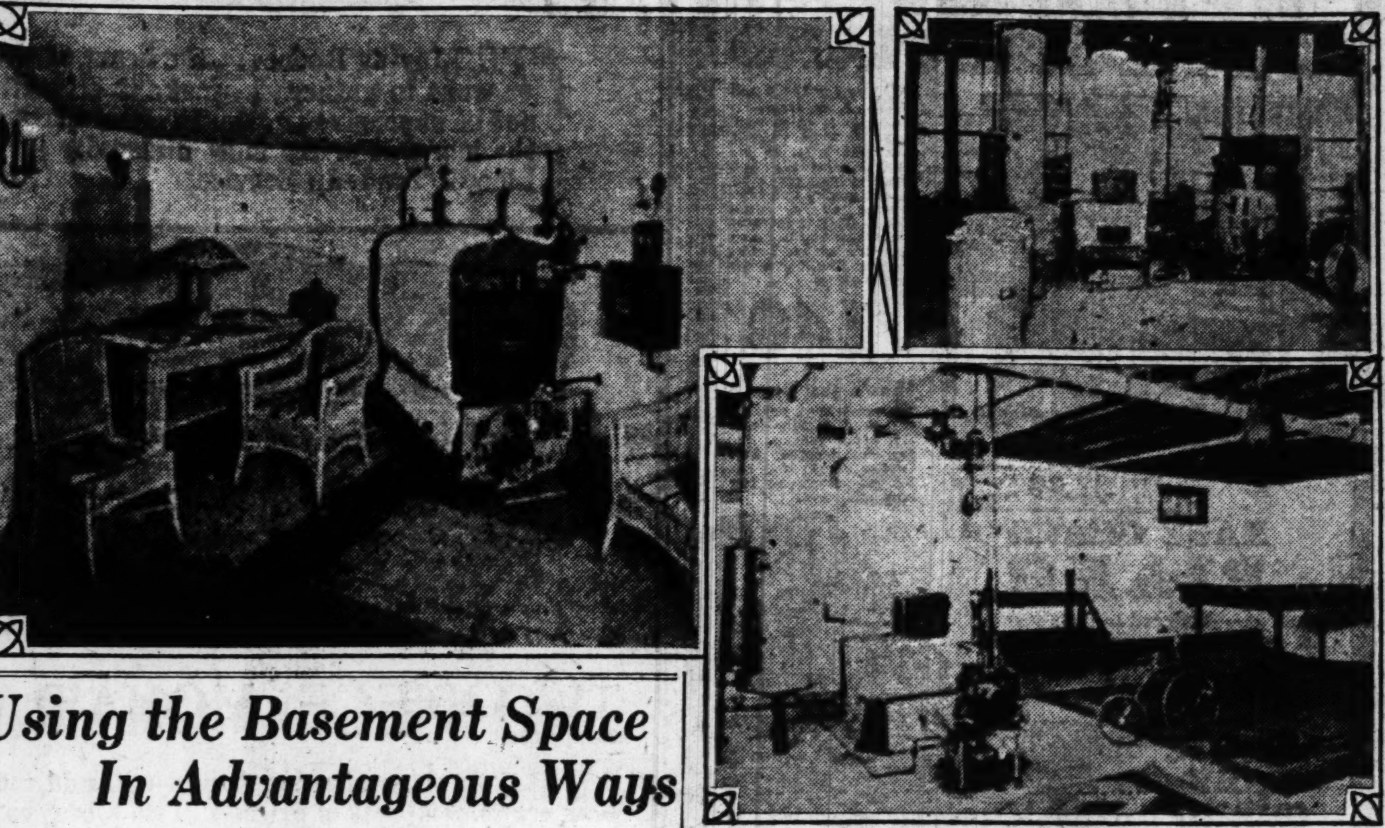
Old Cellars Go Modern and Become Basements



The people who use these pleasant basement rooms evidently find their oil heaters agreeable companions. Note the heat ventilator in the wall and the wall-lights in the living room illustration.

Using the Basement Space In Advantageous Ways

One of the Modern Ideas Is That the Basement Is Not Waste Room, But a Part of the House to Be Lived In.

According to W. F. Schroeder, president of the Oil Heating Association of St. Louis, the advent of oil heat has helped to eliminate many of the age-old nuisances and drudgeries connected with heating the home.

The old type cellar, it is pointed out, was largely dirt, debris, dust and rusty ash cans. In those days, a trip down the cellar stairs of most private residences was undertaken by the home owner only because of the necessity of attending to the furnace.

In this new era of home modernization the cellar comes in for consideration, chiefly because of the fact that the basement represents more than 20 per cent of the construction cost of a house. Properly utilized, the cellar space doubles the floor area of the bungalow type of house and adds a third more to the room area of a two-story house at no additional construction cost, according to Schroeder's estimates.

With this angle to be considered, the home owner, in planning modernization of his home, considers the utilization of the basement space as a simple business proposition.

With the installation of oil heat in a home, the basement becomes a livable part of the house through releasing the basement from its bondage to dirt, ashes and rubbish, making it available to family uses.

Uses of Basement Space.

After a basement has been made usable through the installation of an automatic oil heating plant, the amount of available floor space and the needs of the individual family will necessarily control the use to which the released space is put.

Among the suggestions offered by Schroeder for the utilization of the basement are built-in garages, children's playroom, laundry, summer kitchen, living quarters for help, chauffer or janitor; billiard room, gymnasium, man's workshop and den and game room. The suggestions cited, Schroeder said, have already proved their practicability in numerous oil-heated homes.

HOT WATER A YEAR ROUND REQUIREMENT

Automatic Water Heater Is a Necessary Adjunct to a Modern Home.

As many homes have hot water only during the winter months, when the heating plant is in operation, the summer season is the popular time of the year to install Automatic Hot Water Heaters, in the opinon of L. J. Dubuque of the R. A. Dubuque Supply Co., distributor for the Ever Hot Water Heater.

The installation of hot water heaters, according to Dubuque, takes on a big spurt in summer because occupants of homes supplied with an unlimited amount of hot water only in cold weather when the furnace is being used. are not willing to put up with the old-fashioned, obsolete methods of heating water for toilet and household purposes, when the furnace is not in use.

Hot water ready to gush forth from every faucet is a necessity in the kitchen, laundry, bathroom and lavatory.

The selection of a heater depends upon a number of factors—the size of the house, the quantity of water needed and the speed with which the hot water is desired. An important element is safety—the heater must never explode nor endanger the house by fire.

There is no reason now why anyone should remain a slave to the basement stairs and a manually operated tank heater—or any of the now obsolete methods of heating water, when it is so easy to have an automatic hot water heater installed in a residence at slight expense.

About Plumbing Fixtures.

In planning for the installation of a modern plumbing system in a home or when arranging to put in new baths, showers or lavatories, home owners will do well to remember that modern plumbing fixtures and accessories contribute beauty as well as convenience in the same proportion that the old type was ugly and awkward.

CHOOSE DESIGN THAT WILL BE PERMANENT

Standard Styles of Architecture Advised for Remodeled Home.

When the problem of modernizing the home comes up for solution, one of the first questions that must be answered concerns that of the exterior appearance of the house.

What style of building design is best suited for the home that is to be modernized?

Logically the answer will depend largely on the old lines of the house. The builder must work with the materials at hand and with the main layout of the house already established, he must use his best art in creating a finished product that is in keeping with modern architecture.

Yet it must be remembered that the house when modernized is to be used as it comes from the builder for many years. The amount of money invested in modernization precludes frequent changes in the exterior of the dwelling.

Whatever style of architecture that is selected is the style that the home owner is going to live with for the next decade or so. The remodeled house must look satisfactory then.

For this reason, the exterior appearance of the house must be in a design that is always in vogue.

A GARAGE IS AN INVESTMENT

Cost of Building a New Garage Is Not Large.

Most home owners, who embark on a modernization campaign, are sold on the idea that no improvement on the home place will add more to the appearance of the property and help more in the case of sale, than an attractive garage building

As a source of revenue, for the small amount expended or invested, there are few better revenue producers than a garage built on the rear part of a home lot as there is, in most residence neighborhoods, a continuous demand for rented garages.

Erecting a garage and renting it will in many cases pay the taxes on the property.

MANY CHIMNEYS NEED TO BE REPAIRED

Heating Plant's Efficiency Is Largely Determined by the Chimney Draft.

According to Mr. W. S. Newberger, manager of Holland Furnace Co., builders of new homes and persons who may be modernizing their old homes should pay particular attention to the chimney for it is one of the most important structural units of the house.

Being a sort of common place thing, many builders ignore the important role that the chimney plays in reducing fire hazard and in promoting heating economy. There are many chimneys in St. Louis that should be rebuilt because they are full of cracks and are improperly built, so experts say.

Due to the fact that chimney materials are subject to abnormal contraction and expansion due to frequent heat changes, it is patent that only the highest grade of materials should be used in their construction.

Bricks are included in the list of the preferred chimney materials.

They should be carefully laid up and every joint completely filled with a good grade of mortar. The chimney foundation should extend far enough into the ground to be below the frost line, and under no circumstances should the chimney be used as a support or contact for the framing members of the house. When chimneys are properly built, the chance of their settling and cracking with consequent fire hazard is reduced to a minimum.

Chimneys may be looked upon as the lungs of the heating plant. Some 200 cubic feet of air are required to insure the complete combustion of a pound of coal, and the chimney makes possible the air supply that assures thorough combustion in the heating plant.

To assure proper draft, the chimney size should be in accordance with the size of the heating system. For a system of ordinary size the flue area should be not less than 70 square inches. The ideal chimney has a perfectly straight flue, one that is free from turns or offsets, for these interfere with free draft, the lack of which results in fuel waste and increased fire hazard.

Chimney height is another important factor. It should extend not less than six feet above a flat roof and three feet above a hipped or gable roof. Thus down-drafts are obviated. In addition to being of sound construction and proper height the style in which the chimney is built should conform to the architectural motif of the house."

Handy Kitchen Cabinets.

A kitchen cabinet is a great saver of steps and is very often part of the equipment built into the modern kitchen. If not, and if there is room, one may be readily installed. The modern makes have room for the cooking utensils and all of the dry food supplies that are in common use. The broad shelf takes the place of a work table, and makes for efficiency in the saving of time.

Lure of Modernizing.

One of the most attractive features of home modernization is that owners can do as little or as much as they desire, never losing sight of the fact that modernizing on either a large or a small scale adds much to the comfort, convenience and value of the house.

A GLOOMY HOUSE HAS A DEPRESSING EFFECT

Interior of the Up-to-Date Home Should Be Bright, Airy and Cheerful.

Gloomy interiors are caused by a number of things. Sometimes the light provided is not sufficient for the room. Other times there is plenty of light, but the walls and ceiling are so dark they swallow the light. Again, the fixtures and bulbs are dirty, preventing the light from emerging from the lamp.

Dust on a shade or on the lamp bulb can absorb as much as 50 per cent of the light output.

Sometimes all of these conditions exist in a single household, keeping light and joy out of the home.

One of the large public service companies when instructing customers to check on the amount of light needed in a room, stated that when the walls and ceilings are fairly light in tone, provide one watt for each square foot of floor space.

Advice Worth Remembering

A bit of advice to the householder is never to allow the doors, interior trim, built-in furniture and stairs to become neglected or run down in appearance for need of a new coat of paint or varnish. This also applies to the kitchen and bathroom walls if those rooms have walls that are painted.

CURTIUS ADDRESSES PEACE PLEA TO U. S.

German Foreign Minister Over Radio Speaks as Fighting Man to America.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, June 21.—A fighting man's plea for peace, aimed at America across the Atlantic by the former German Captain of Artillery who is now his country's Foreign Minister, was sent from a Berlin broadcasting studio tonight.

The man behind this close range attack on war and international misunderstanding was Dr. Julius Curtius, Master of the Reich's Foreign Policy. The occasion for his radio appeal was a movement to found an academy of peace in memory of the late Gustav Stresemann, peacemaker of post-war Germany and predecessor of Dr. Curtius at the foreign office.

"Germany needs and desires peace," Dr. Curtius told his trans-Atlantic audience, "A peace honorable for everybody, a peace secured not by military armaments but by justice and good will and reciprocal sincere understanding.

"We desire such a peace not as a nation unfit or loath to bear arms. We desire it as men who know how to fight—I myself served at the front for more than four years—but who have come to understand that there are other ways of settling international controversies than by letting an inferno loose over humanity.

"We have given ample proof of that spirit. The world knows how the German people, although hit incredibly hard by the most unjust of peace treaties, renounced from the beginning any idea of revenge.

"We stand unreservedly for peaceful settlement of every kind of conflict between states. And having ourselves, in spite of all rumors to the contrary, completely disarmed following the Treaty of Versailles, we strongly insist upon an all around reduction to a minimum of all military establishments and preparations for war."

Dr. Curtius buttressed his appeal for universal disarmament by declaring that military establishments "are always a potential danger to the peace of the world, for the more guns there are, the more readily one will accidentally go off at the critical hour." He remarked that it was easy for him to speak freely with Americans. If Stresemann's death had not put him at the helm of the foreign ministry, he said he would have been now carrying out an old plan for spending a summer in the United States.

Commenting on German-American relations, he noted that "it is an outstanding feature of these relations that among our erstwhile enemies your country was the first after the expiration of the economic clauses of the Treaty of Versailles to offer Germany a treaty of friendship and commerce."

RUTH HITS HIS 23D HOME RUN; YANKS WIN, 3-0

NEW YORK, June 21.—Herb Pennock, dean of the Yankees, pitched his way to the head of the American League's hurlers today, shutting out the Detroit Tigers with five hits while New York won the final game of the series, 3 to 0. Pennock has six victories and one defeat.

Elon Hogsett pitched a good game against the Yankees, but he yielded two runs in the first inning on a pair of walks followed by singles by Lazzeri and Gehrig, and allowed Babe Ruth to hit his twenty-third home run of the season in the eighth frame. The Babe's homer was one of the game's two extra base hits in the game. Charley Gehringer touched Pennock for a double in the third inning.

ALFRED ROTHSCHILD WINS DISTRICT JUNIOR TENNIS CHAMPIONSHIP

Alfred Rothschild became the new junior district tennis champion when he defeated Harry Mendelson in the final at Triple A yesterday afternoon in four sets, 6—1, 6—4, 4—6, 6—3. Rothschild succeeds Junior Boehmer, who became too old to compete this year.

WEBSTER GROVES MEN, WESTERN A. C. WOMEN WIN IN MEET

By Damon Kerby

The Western Women's A. C. and the Webster Groves A. C. won the two divisions of the Western A. A. U. track and field meet yesterday afternoon at Francis Field. The winning women's team scored 23 points and the Webster aggregation scored 22. Eight new meet records were established.

In some cases the new records, so called, are undoubtedly not the best marks that have been established in the history of the Western A. A. U. event, extending back over 20 years or more. The old records having been lost or mislaid in the files, and the marks of 1927 were accepted as official. It was these marks that were broken in the meet yesterday.

Records made in the meet yesterday afternoon, that are now classed as official, are in the mile, half mile, 100-yard dash, discus, javelin, high jump, in the men's division, and for the women, the 100-yard dash and 50-yard dash. In the men's 100-yard dash, the new record was set by Tierney, unattached, who covered the distance in 9.8 seconds.

Team scores: Men's Division—Webster Groves A. C., 22; McKendree College, 11; Washington U., 8; Lincoln U., 7; Bradley Tech., 7; Kingdom House, 5; St. Louis U., 5; Normandy, 3; Maplewood High, 2; Y. M. H. A., 1. Women's Division—Western Women's A. C., 23; Headlight A. C., 12; Bly Moss A. C., 4; Pacific A. C., 3. The Concordia Gymnasium Society, represented in both divisions, scored a total of eight points. Unattached entries scored 41 points.

Fewer than 500 spectators attended.

Browns Outhit Boston But "Breaks" Give Red Sox 3-2 Victory

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

BOSTON, June 21.—Two freaky balls beat the Browns, 3 to 2, in the third and rubber contest of the three-game series with the Red Sox, which ended before a 10,000 crowd at Fenway Park, this afternoon.

The Browns scored their only runs in the first inning when they bunched four hits off Jack Russell, the slim Boston righthander. Thereafter they were held scoreless and never got farther than second base, with Russell going the distance in his best form.

With half a break in fortune the Browns would have won. They outhit the Sox. What proved to be the winning run was scored when a routine bounder took a freakish skid, slammed the ancient Frank O'Rourke on the shin, bounded over into foul territory and let a man tally from third with two gone. And the tying run was made when Ralph Kress, usually so steady at shortstop, fell down after fielding an ordinary bounder off Charley Berry's bat. This, too, came with two out and proved that it simply was not on the books for the Browns to win today. The Sox took two of the three games.

Breaks Against Stewart.

Walter Stewart pitched a good game. He was the victim of adverse breaks. Nevertheless there is a certain amount of blame coming his way, because he put on the first two Boston runs by issuing bases on balls.

This was the only game in the series in which Goose Goslin did not make a homer. He made a

Landis Orders Bennett Returned To the Browns

By the Associated Press.

MILWAUKEE, June 21.

OFFICIALS of the Milwaukee Association baseball team today said Commissioner Landis ordered Red Bennett, Brewer outfielder, to return immediately to the St. Louis Browns. Landis said Bennett was optioned out twice before he came here last spring. He ruled the Browns either must retain Bennett or sell him to a club outside the Browns' chain.

GARDEN OFFICIAL GOES TO BOSTON TO SEE SHARKEY

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 21.—Conferences bloomed all over town today, lawyers worked overtime, and Madison Square Garden promised something important in the way of announcements concerning Max Schmeling's return bout with Jack Sharkey, by Monday afternoon.

The formal conference between Garden officials and Arthur Buelow, deposed manager of the German, who won the heavyweight championship on a foul from Sharkey June 12, is scheduled for Monday. After that is over the Garden hopes to be able to announce that the last bar to a return match late in September has been removed.

Schmeling is ready to fight if he can gain a release from Buelow's managerial contract which does not expire until Oct. 13. Otherwise he insists that he will remain idle until the entangling alliance with Buelow is wiped out by time. Sharkey is so anxious to remove the stain of his defeat a foul that he is already on record at the New York State Athletic Commission as willing to pay Buelow's 20 per cent share in Schmeling's wages.

Bruen Goes to Boston.

Ironsides displayed the most speed from the start, raced into command under slight restraint, and gamely outstayed Mole Hill. The latter moved strongly after going a half, made a game bid, but could not overhaul the winner. Easter Stockings failed to improve her position under punishment. Thistle Fyrn, in close attendance for three-quarters, tired after reaching the stretch. Cartago was done after going three-quarters. Longus was outrun.

Two-dollar mutuels paid: Ironsides, win $6.16, place $3.44, show $2.70; Mole Hill, place $3.60, show $2.90; Easter Stockings, show $2.46.

By Dent McSkimming.

The remarkable feat of Ironsides, a 5-year-old son of Man O'War, in winning two races on successive days and smashing the track record for the mile and 70 yards raised yesterday's race program at Fairmount Park far above the level of mediocrity. Good horses have been shooting at Anaconda's track record of 1:42 1-5 since August, 1927, but Ironsides made the task look easy, doing the distance in 1:41 4-5.

It is not rare for a trainer to send a horse to the post on successive days, but usually, if he wins the first day, he scratches the horse on the second day. "Cowboy" Charles Irwin, veteran Wyoming horseman, had such confidence in Ironsides that he has also entered him in tomorrow's program, but it is considered doubtful that he will start him.

In winning Friday, Ironsides beat one of the fastest and gamest fillies in training—Nellie Custis. He came back yesterday to outsprint Easter Stockings to take the lead at the clubhouse turn and he was never headed.

Mole Hill replaced Easter Stockings as Ironsides' most serious rival at the stretch turn and he made up ground at every stride, so that it seemed for a moment that he might catch the son of Man O'War. However, Willie Moran merely looked Mole Hill over as he pushed his nose up close and then coaxed another move out of Ironsides to win by half a length. Easter Stockings was third and Thistle Fyrn fourth.

A Speedy Two-Year-Old.

Another feature of the day's sport was the uncovering of what may turn out to be the best 2-year-old of the meeting—Birthday Gift. He literally ran off and left such speedy ones as Shasta Broom, Battle Sweep, Master Halligan and Foolhardy.

Birthday Gift's victory in the two-year-old feature, "The Test" was marred by a ragged start, the only really bad start of the meeting. Broad A was left flat footed and did not race at all and six of the others were off in a tangle.

Starter Wingfield had held the field of 10 at the barrier for nine minutes trying to get the wild youngsters lined up, but they were quite unmanageable.

Shasta Broom, the favorite, shot to the front at the rise of the barrier but Birthday Gift streaked past him as if he were standing still. Going around the turn, Birthday Gift had a lead of four lengths and in the stretch Judy eased the gelding up and still won by six lengths.

Shasta Broom was all out from trying to catch him and as a result was passed up by Battle Sweep and Master Halligan.

The Audley Farms colt, Knight's Call, making his first start, showed a fair performance and finished fifth. It is said that Kay Spence thinks a lot of this youngster.

Birthday Gift's victory was his second in two starts. He has had some remarkable half mile workouts and with two successful races under his belt, he may be expected to go on to further conquests. He is owned by W. I. Kohn and trained by A. V. Thomas.

The Moon Nearly Eclipsed.

The Moon, going to the post in the first race, was a standout and he won as his rider, McMillan, permitted, which was by a length.

McMillan declined to urge his mount when Cuevas persisted in hanging on, entering the stretch, and it looked as if he did not want to expose the colt's real speed. He had Cuevas and Margaret Parker both cut off on the rail and he almost tossed off the race, for a totally unexpected dangerous ruse in Son Ami which thundered up on the outside.

The Moon had just enough of a lead to stand off this unforseen challenge. Son Ami probably will

EQUIPOISE AND JACK HIGH WIN AT AQUEDUCT

NEW YORK, June 21.—Equipoise, with the hard-riding Sonny Workman in the saddle, again answered all challenges to his juvenile championship claim as he galloped home in front of a high-class field to win the Great American Stakes and $14,450 at Aqueduct.

The victory was the seventh in nine starts for the brilliant son of Pennant, which flies the light blue and brown topped silks of Harry Payne Whitney. Early in his turf career he was defeated by the then unbeaten Vanderpool and on his next time out tossed Workman soon after the rise of the barrier for his second defeat.

Today's race was just another repetition of Equipoise's other triumphs over the Metropolitan tracks. Despite the heavy impost of 130 pounds, he sped over the five furlongs in 1:0 1-5, leading W. R. Coe's Polydorus to the wire by two lengths. Gifford A. Cochrane's Helianthus trailed another four lengths to take the short end of the purse. Equipoise was well backed at 9 to 20.

Riding a typical Workman race, Sonny got the Whitney gelding away on his toes and sent him to the front. E. R. Bradley's Boys Howdy attempted to race along with the favorite but soon found the pace too hot. In the final three-sixteenths, Laverne Fator brought Polydorus up fast on the outside, but Workman answered the challenge by using the whip and Equipoise bounded forward to an easy victory.

George D. Widener's Jack High atoned for his recent defeat by Sortie in the Brooklyn by defeating A. C. Schwartz's five-year-old gelding in the Brookdale Handicap—the secondary feature at the New York track. Willis Sharpe Kilmer's Sun Beau was third.

Packing the top weight of 123 pounds, Jack High, with Pony McAtee aboard, rode three of the field of five into submission and then withstood the stretch challenge of Sortie to win by a head.

The race was worth $6700 and the son of John P. Grier went the mile and one-eighth in 1:51.

CARNERA FACES CRUCIAL TEST IN BOUT TOMORROW WITH GODFREY

ITALIAN GIANT'S MEETING WITH NEGRO IN PHILADELPHIA SHOULD PROVE IF HE IS A TITLE HOPE

By John E. Wray

Sports Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

PHILADELPHIA, June 21.—The campaign to debunk the title pretensions of Primo Carnera, which has been continuing with increasing pressure for the past three months, will reach its peak here tomorrow night, when George Godfrey, the Black Menace, will hurl 250 pounds of ebony against the gigantic frame and huge muscles of the Brobdingnagian gladiator from Italy.

From the time of Carnera's arrival in America, it has been the prevailing indoor sport to refer to the Beeg Boy jocularly, grasping the proboscis firmly between the thumb and forefinger. It has been assumed far and wide that the Collector of the Port overlooked a big bet, when he failed to assess an import duty on 270 pounds of Italian cheese, instead of allowing Primo to enter duty free.

Carnera's parade across the United States and back, pushing over all sorts, sizes and conditions of hasbeens and setups, mingled with a sort of fighter, here and there, was performed under singular difficulties. Along the line of march, dropping of verbal stench bombs was one of the main businesses of the moment culminating in California with the planting of some real dynamite in Los Angeles, where the line of communications was blown up by the State Athletic Commission.

It was charged that Primo's opponent there was framed to "lay dawn," but Carnera's entourage countered by saying that all the framing was done by Carnera's enemies and that he was the victim of jealous promotion interests.

Primo Knocks Out Christner.

To prove his sincerity, Carnera, through Manager Leon See, offered to fight anybody with the result that two ordeals of the gloves were arranged for the Venetian pachyderm. One of these, with Kayo Christner, has been filled by Carnera, to the great anguish physically of Christner, who dallied only briefly in a Detroit ring.

Monday night comes the second ordeal. Because of the remarkable publicity Carnera has been given, because of the cynicism on one hand and enthusiasm of his supporters on the other, a great interest has developed in this final test—admittedly the hardest that Carnera has faced.

The fact of the matter is that the test is so severe that none of the white boys who have been campaigning for titular honors in this country have cared very much about dallying with the alleged Black Menace. The dark meat is too tough a portion, seemingly.

This may account for the enthusiastic reception given the idea that Carnera meet Godfrey by all the fighters of the title division.

It is not to be thought that these rivals viewed with alarm the advent of this mammoth fighter on the championship horizon, or that they feared having some day to encounter him. Far be it from such! All they wished was that the Black Menace would knock Carnera loose from his understanding for a period not shorter than 10 seconds and not longer than a couple of hours.

It's this way—when one is a white logical candidate it is easy to draw the color line against the dusky branch of the profession. But one can't very well bar a Dangerous Giant simply because he happens to have been born under the same banner as Benito Mussolini.

Godfrey Has Best Record of All of Carnera's Opponents

The fact of the matter is, it would appear despite all conversation to the contrary, that the entire white roster of heavyweights is hoping that Jawge pops Primo on the chin early and often, so that they will not have to risk being run over by the white steam roller. In other words, it is "Let George do it."

Bout to Draw Big Gate.

But can he? That's the question that will pack the dollars around the ringside tomorrow night. A great deal of conversation has been spilled about this hypothesis. But conversation is not proof, and the matter will have to be settled right out there in the ring.

The question to be decided is, whether a 23-year-old, 270-pound, splendidly built near-novice can defeat a 250-pound veteran of many battles, and 30 hard winters.

There are many questions that arise concerning the two, but the most important of these would inquire how much of a novice is Carnera and how near to a champion is Godfrey.

The natural thought would be that 20 younds of mass is not going to offset the difference between championship quality and a beginner. That view will have the indorsement of all those who are considering the coming event as an honest effort.

There are others, however, who think that this is just another event that is in the bag, as the vernacular has it. By this it is meant that the result has been prearranged, regardless of the abilities of the fighters. "The party of the second part"—dark in this instance—"for value in hand this day received," etc., "does hereby agree to take one on the chin and remain horizontal during an elapsed period of not fewer than 10 seconds"——

The cynical would have us believe this Carnera-Godfrey fight is all contracted for, ready to deliver. However, it's just an unsavory guess, at best.

Is He a Bum?

Many times this writer has been asked how good is Carnera. Another inquiry is: "how bad is he?

That, of course, cannot be answered. The Godfrey fight will tell the story.

Carnera has many boxing faults. He is vulnerable to a snappy hitter. Any determined heavyweight ought to score hard against Carnera's body.

Then we come to the very important question: Are those who hit him able to hurt him?

This writer believes that no fighter of ordinary proportions is able to hit Carnera effectively in the head. With his height he leans back out of reach and has learned the trick of rolling his dome with the punch. Christner played for the head and landed only with diminished force by reason of physical handicaps.

And as for his body, the opponent is there again confronted with the problem of getting by those enormous gloves and that amazing reach with an effective punch. No short-arm jolt is going to drop this Colossus. It will take all the length and drive the hitter can summon to make that gigantic torso even feel the force of the blow.

If Jack Dempsey were young and fast as a few years ago, with his power and speed one would give Carnera about three rounds. It would be sock! A right to the heart or solar plexus. And then Wham, with a left hook to the jaw, and that giant would be shaken out of his primitive defense. There is always the probability that this fellow is too big to be hurt by the smaller men among the fighters.

Godfrey is more nearly of a size with Carnera than any other boxer and therefore more dangerous.

If Carnera stands this test we will have to recognize that another year will see him insisting on a championship match.

GARDEN OFFICIAL GOES TO BOSTON TO SEE SHARKEY

Bruen, general manager of the Garden, left for Boston tonight to talk with Sharkey and his manager, Johnny Buckley, as to the terms of the purchase. Sharkey's answer probably will be enclosed in Monday's proclamation. Buelow is reported willing to tear up the Schmeling contract for about $50,000, which would approximate his share in the Teuton's profit from a return match.

There are other minor differences to be adjusted before the match can be made. Joe Jacobs, Schmeling's manager of choice, insists that he be reinstated by the New York State Athletic Commission as a manager so that he may officially stake his claim on the German the minute Buelow's contract is dead. Jacobs has been on the commission black list since Schmeling developed managerial trouble and refused to fight Phil Scott. He was granted a temporary license as a second for the Schmeling-Sharkey match.

There is also a dispute as to the qualifications of radio announcers for the return match and various legal entanglements that go with the disbursement of every large sum of money in the fight game have caused trouble.

Plenty of Attachments.

Before the fighters' and managers' share of the $750,000 gate in the Yankee Stadium could be awarded almost everyone with any sort of claim to part of the money hired lawyers and went around slapping "plasters" on the checks.

"Plasters" to the fight folk are attachment on money. Jacobs put a "plaster" on Buelow's share of Schmeling's money and so did his attorney. One "plaster" led to another until the financial situation was in a state of chaos. This part of the problem will be solved by awarding everyone a draw and calling off all attachments.

In the meantime, Schmeling and Jacobs conferred all around today and then went yachting with friends over the weekend. They will return Monday for the final verdict. Then all hands are scheduled to rush off to Philadelphia to see Primo Carnera fight George Godfrey Monday night.

Heavies Who Meet in Bout Tomorrow

Some 510 pounds of beef will be on exhibition in the Philadelphia ring when PRIMO CARNERA, the Italian Giant (left) opposes GEORGE GODFREY (right). Primo weighs 270 pounds and Godfrey 240. It will be a real test for the Italian title candidate.

WRAY'S COLUMN

"Can't Miss"

PHILADELPHIA, June 21.

AFTER six rounds of mauling three sparring partners, George Godfrey, who may be described as the darkest and sweatiest 250 pounds of fighting meat the writer has ever looked upon, sat on the edge of his rubbing table in his dressing room at Chester, Pa., this afternoon and allowed that Primo Carnera might linger around for three rounds Monday night. Asked what were his reasons for this strong statement, Jawge mopped his shiny black poll with a bath towel and replied:

"They's three mighty good reasons, Mistuh. Hyahs one (holding out his right hand), hyahs another (holding out his left), and the place I'm agoing to pahk both of 'em is the yuthah.

"Aw ain't agoing to waste no time fooling around with that there man. I'm just agoin' to pahk my right han' where he feeds and my left on his whiskers and I can't miss. That pahkin' space is too big"—and Jawge laughed clear down to his belt.

"Yessuh. 'Thass the only weak spot that big man has got.

"They's so much of him you can't miss him. I aim to hit him."

Dates Mixed?

GEORGE was asked if he knew more about Primo than hearsay.

"Yessuh, I does. I seen him fight Ace Clarke. Ace give him a right smaht fight."

"Didn't Ace give you a longer fight than Carnera?"

"Deed he did, Mistuh. Ace's a right nice young felluh. I hated to spile him at all, an' I couldn't make up my mind to do so for seven, eight rounds."

"You don't think much of Carnera, do you?"

"Yassuh, I thinks $10,00 wuth of him. That's what I'm going to get for distributin' him, Monday night. If you means what I think about his fighting—I think his calendar ain't right. He thinks it's 1932, and he's grown a bit biggern he is. He better be sumpin'.

"Taint always the size, though ah'm kinda hefty myself. Ah'm going into the ring Monday night weighin' pretty nigh 250 pounds and thass only a little bit under that eyetalian man. Toughest man I evuh met was Sam Langford, and he was only 5 feet 4 inches high. But man, how he could heave gloves! I'm glad it's Primo I'm fightin' Monday night, and not Sam, like he used to be."

About George's Condition

GODFREY talks as if his fight with Carnera were just a joke, but his manager, Jimmy Dougherty, the "Mayor of Leiperville," is taking no chances. He has had George working hard for several weeks. Dougherty says that when Godfrey began training three months ago with the idea of getting back into the fight game, he weighed more than 275 pounds. Hog fat and soft, was the big former riveter. There are no scales around Godfrey's training quarters, but the big fellow told me he would weigh about 250 when he entered the ring against Carnera.

Godfrey will present far from the trim, athletic appearance of Carnera. His face is as round as a new moon. He has a double chin, slight but unmistakable. He has a roll of fat over each hip and he has a layer of fat all over his body and muscles. The back of his neck rises in a straight line from the shoulders to the shaven crown, except where two wrinkles cut deep gashes in the hard fat. His upper legs are enormous, and there is no doubt that his arm measurement is greater than Carnera's. His wind is fairly good, although he slowed up in his appearance aganst each of three ham and egg sparring mates with whom he worked. Godfrey let the men pummel him soundly and Jimmy Dougherty apologetically explained that "George had had too much work," in accounting for his inferior showing. Godfrey did nothing but box today, and not much of that.

You Never Can Tell

LIKE all Negroes, Godfrey is probably in better shape than he looks, and if he has been working for the length of time Dougherty declares, he will be in plenty good condition to give Carnera the test of his life.

As it is, after looking him over, it is hard to pin faith in him. I would not bet a dime on a man no finer conditioned than he, ordinarily. Still, he is in good enough shape to go half a dozen rounds at top speed. He thinks that will be long enough.

Apparently Philadelphia does not know what to make of the fight as a betting proposition.

The prevailing opinion tonight was that Godfrey can win. But WILL he? You get the smell?

One thing is certain. The weather man being kind, there will be a sell-out at the Phillies' park. Which means an attendance of close to 40,000 persons.

Out-of-town newspaper men have taken an interest in the show and Max Schmeling himself, the champion of the world, is among those present.

Seat tickets are selling at from $2 to $12.50.

GERMAN SOCCER TEAM DEFEATS AMERICANS

FRANKFORT-ON-MAIN, Germany, June 21.—The South German champion team, "Eintracht," defeated the touring German-American soccer squad today, 4 to 0. The score at half time was 0-0. Deither scored two goals for the home time, while Dietrich and Krohn contributed the others. It was the Americans' third defeat of their tour. Their last German appearance will be at Carlsrube on Wednesday.

Athletics Drop Harris

PHILADELPHIA, June 21.—Spencer Harris, substitute outfielder for the Athletics, will be returned to the Minneapolis club in the American Association, the Philadelphia club announced tonight. Harris came to the Athletics from Detroit, which had obtained him from Minneapolis. Under the rule he will be sent back to the latter club.

Max Says He's a Smart Boy And When He Gets Punch on Chin He Learns Something

By Max Schmeling

Heavyweight Champion of the World.

(As Told to a Representative of the Post-Dispatch.)

ATLANTIC, CITY, N. J., June 21.—When everything is all right, I mean when you have nothing to worry on the mind, fighting is fun.

I enjoy it. I enjoy the training. I enjoy being in the ring. No, I do not enjoy a good hard punch on the chin any more than you would, and I do not try to tell you that.

When I get one it makes me mad that I have been so stupid. But that is the sport, the excitement of the fighting. To learn, to keep the other from doing it to you again, to beat him at it.

Sharkey made me mad in our fight. I mean he made me mad at myself. He hit me a good punch on the chin. I know he hit me many punches in that third round, but they not all land where you think they land.

Otherwise, if they do, maybe I not here now, but this one is good. Why I have my head up like an amateur. Quick I learn something. The next round the chin is down where he does not hit it any more.

See, that is the real sport of fighting, use the mind as well as the body, just like in football or tennis.

Looks Forward to Fight.

That is why I look forward to fighting Sharkey in September again as the best and most exciting fight I ever make. If things work out the way I hope, my manager troubles are over for good. I have nothing to worry about. No one will annoy me, no one will sue me. I am in good hands. Then everything is fun. The training, the life in the country, and the fight.

To fight right you must feel right. I felt sorry for Sharkey when he was introduced at the Yankee Stadium and the crowd made "boo" that is a terrible thing to have happen.

You can pretend that you do not care but that is not so. That is why I never wish to fight as an unpopular champion.

Money is not everything. Sure, I am like everyone else, I like to have plenty of it, but I know there is something besides.

I think you see that I sacrifice plenty of easy money so I can fight Sharkey again in September.

Carnera or Stribling?

And in June who? Carnera? Stribling? Campolo? You see how boiling is the heavyweight busness when there is a champion? Stribling's one round of Von Porat is good. I think it is the first good man Strbling have knocked out. Now Stribling is back again, no? If he knocks out Phil Scott with a fair punch, perhaps it is Stribling in June.

And Monday Carnera tries against Godfrey. You know I have the feeling some how that perhaps the one who fights me in June must first defeat Carnera. At first I do not think much of him. Now I go to take a look. If he has learned something, maybe I learn something, too. Tomorrow I tell you who I think wins the fight Monday night, and why.

MEMPHIS POLO TEAM DEFEATS ST. LOUIS FOUR

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., June 21.—Riding hard and stroking accurately, the Memphis Hunt and Polo Club four defeated the four of the St. Louis Country Club today in the first of a series of two games on the Polo Club Field. The score was nine goals to five, with two of the Memphis markers being presented them on a handicap arrangement.

The Memphis four didn't need any handicap at all, so co-ordinated was their attack and so tight their defense. They played the same kind of heads-up polo that found them conquering the Missourians twice on the St. Louis field a couple of weeks ago.

The locals concentrated their attack in the third chukker when Burr Chapman, Dunbar Abston and Sam Rembert counted in rapid succession after St. Louis had taken the lead at 4 to 3 for a brief moment at the beginning of the period.

From the third chukker on, the game was all Memphis'. The invading four, with their star, Mahlon Wallace, back in harness after being on the ground because of injuries for several weeks, tried their best tactics, only to have Memphis check them in every department.

Rembert and Chapman featured the individual play of the Memphis team with Niedringhaus outstanding for St. Louis.

The lineup:

MEMPHIS (9).	POSITION.	ST. LOUIS (5).
Abston	No. 1	Simmons
Rembert	No. 2	Love
Chapman	No. 3	Wallace
Fly	Back	Neidringh's

Score by periods:

Memphis .... 103 111—7
plus 2 handicap—9
St. Louis .... 111 101 —5

Memphis scoring: Abston, 2; Chapman, 3; Rembert, 2.

St. Louis scoring: Niedringhaus, 2; Love, Wallace, Simmons.

Referees—Curtis King and Bob Carrier.

WRAY BROWN TO PLAY IN STATE TENNIS TOURNEY

By Davison Obear

The annual Missouri State tennis championship will open on the courts of the Triple A Club in Forest Park, June 28, according to an announcement made last night by Dr. Frank E. Diekneite, chairman of the tournament committee of the St. Louis District Tennis Association, which organization will have charge of the tournament. There will be events for men and juniors in singles and doubles.

Fred D. Royer of Tulsa, Ok., is the present men's singles champion, but it is not yet known whether he will defend his title. John Barr and James Quick, the Texas team, won the men's doubles championship last year but their entry is doubtful.

It has been many years since the Missouri State men's championship has been played in St. Louis. The Rockhill Tennis Club in Kansas City has been the scene of the State event for over ten years with the exception of four years ago when it was held in St. Joseph.

Wray Brown, present Missouri Valley and St. Louis district title holder, will participate in the Missouri State this year. He won the singles championship in 1927. Brown will play with Teddy Eggmann in the doubles event.

Junior Boehmer and Karl Hodge are expected to form a new team in the doubles event. Charlie Barnes and Karl Kammann are expected to play while nearly all of the other top ranking St. Louis district stars are expected to enter.

The tournament committee has decided to limit the entry to 64 players in the men's singles and 32 teams in the men's doubles. Entry in the junior events will be limited to 32 in the singles and 16 teams in the doubles.

According to present plans the men's singles will open Saturday at 1 p. m., while the men's doubles is scheduled to open Sunday at 2 p. m. First round matches in the junior singles will probably not start until Monday morning.

The committee hopes to complete all events by Friday, July 4, in order that the players may leave for the Missouri Valley championship, which opens in Des Moines on July 7. Several St. Louis players will participate in an exhibition at Burlington, Ia., on the way to Des Moines.

Entries for the Missouri State tournament may be sent to Dr. F. E. Diekneite, 825 International Building. The entry fee in the men's singles is $1.50 and $2 a team in the doubles. Junior entry fees are $1 for singles and $1 a team in the doubles. Entries will close Friday, June 27, at 5 p. m.

Stretch!

WHEN judged by population gains
Our trouble now is growing pains;
Restricted on the east and west,
The buttons fly from off our vest.

A county line, the town surrounds,
Which sadly cramps our metes and bounds:
Until we rearrange the map,
The populace will overlap.

St. Louis County cramps our style,
And for relief we'd walk a mile;
Restrictions are so keenly felt,
We yearn for an elastic belt.

Okay.

A bunch of German Fascists when ordered to remove their uniform brown shirts walked the streets shirtless. However, the police had nothing on them as they quickly acquired a coat of tan.

"Tariff One of the Big Issues in Fall Elections."

The wets and drys, however, won't lack for something to talk about.

The wets and drys will be going strong when the tariff has ceased to be an item of front page importance.

That was a hot little contest the other evening between Announcer McNamee and Announcer Humphrey. Joe, however, hadn't a chance as Mac succeeded in drowning him out just as the radio audience was about to get an earful of who the performers for the evening were.

Stand by, Folks.

In the meantime we are anxiously waiting for Henry Burbig to inform the radio world in his clear and concise manner about what was going on in the ring that night. Henry plays no favorites and will give us the low down be it ever so low.

The new tariff may increase the cost of eating by few hundred millions or so but the public right now is more interested in drinking than eating.

It always has been the custom for the President to explain why he vetoes a bill. But now he has to explain why he signs one.

Tariff bills are always named after somebody. And then they spend the rest of their lives trying to live it down.

We haven't heard anybody cheering wildly for the Hawley-Smoot bill but being of the flexible variety the rubber interests might get a kick out of it. I dunno.

How Odd.

THOUGH he wields a wicked racquet
On the tennis court, we fear
That he'd have a strong objection
To the name of "racqueteer."

The man who had his first automobile ride the other day after spending 21 years in prison had no kick coming. He wasn't going anywhere.

In spite of the absence of steps the city is taking steps to have a big celebration on the opening of the new civil courts building.

By Knute Rockne

Chairman All-America Board of Track and Field.

(Title Registered U. S. Patent Office.)

THE All-American track team picked by a fine group of track coaches is without a doubt as great an aggregation as this country has ever seen. Whereas picking an All-America football team is often largely a matter of opinion, the choosing of the members of a track team is based on actual performances of time or distance. The task is, therefore, comparatively easy. The fact that these track coaches were unanimous in their choice in many of the events was impressive and interesting.

Track and field is a wonderful sport and is entitled to a great deal more popular interest than it receives at present in the United States.

The coaches who developed the individuals on this team are deserving of a lot of credit for their excellent work. All America Track certificates will be awarded to 19 athletes representing 13 colleges scattered from Southern California to the far East. It is not surprising that four colleges on the Coast—Southern California, Leland Stanford, Washington and California account for six of the 15 honor titles but it is interesting to note that several of the best performers of the year come from small colleges with limited enrollment.

Two Real Sprinters.

In the sprints Wykoff and Simpson were chosen unanimously. Nor was there much doubt about Bowen of Pittsburg in the quarter or Chapman of Bates in the half-mile. In the mile there was considerable difference of opinion. Hill of Oregon, Martin of Purdue and Sivak of Butler all received votes and so did Lermond of the Army. The majority of the votes went to Bullwinkle for his impressive race at the Eastern Collegiates and his 4:15.8 effort a week later at the New York A. C. games. Lermond of the Army was unfortunate in that West Point's competition was so restricted that he did not have a chance to compare with the others.

Manning of Wichita, the two-mile sensation of the year, was chosen almost unanimously and so was Anderson of Washington in the high hurdles and Sentman of Illinois in the low hurdles. Rockaway of Ohio State was never quite able to reach his great form of a year ago when he ran the low hurdles in 22.8 seconds.

Although Gorden of Iowa defeated Hamm at the National Collegiates in the broad jump, the Georgia Tech. boy received a large majority of the votes on his very impressive performances throughout the year. The only time he was unable to reach 25 feet being on the occasion of the meet in Chicago.

In the high jump there were four men who received votes. These were O'Connor of Columbia, who won the Eastern Collegiates at 6 feet 3 inches, Sherby of Oklahoma, who won the event at the Drake Relays at 6 feet 5 inches, and Shaw of Wisconsin, who lifted himself 6 feet 6 and 3-6 inches at the Kansas Relays. However, Stewart of Southern California received the highest number of votes. Stewart won from both Shelby and Shaw at the National Collegiate, although beaten by O'Connor at the Eastern meet. Stewart jumped 6 feet 5 inches rather consistently all year and this no doubt was what impressed the coaches.

Warne Gets All but One Vote

In the pole vault Warne of Northwestern received every vote but one, while in the shot put Rothert of Stanford was unanimously chosen.

In the discus throw several of the coaches voted for Jessup of Washington on account of his victory over Krenz of Stanford in the National meeting. However, Krenz had beaten Jessup in previous competition, won the Eastern meet as well as having established a new world's record in the California Intercollegiates of 167 feet 5¾ inches. He was therefore considered by most of the coaches the logical man.

Conner of Yale was the unanimous choice in the hammer throw, and so was Churchill of California in the javelin throw.

The wide choice of men for the one-mile relay team was rather pronounced. Several coaches picked either the Stanford or Missouri relay team intact, but the great majority of the committee named an All-America Relay Team by selecting the best performers from the entire field. This narrowed the list of candidates down to the four who were selected—Engle of Yale, Walters of Northwestern, Williams of Southern California, and Bowen of Pittsburg. Besides the four chosen—Wilson of Notre Dame, Morrison of Stanford, Hersley and Dill of Missouri, Monroe of Harvard, Graham of Syracuse and Long of Utah received votes. However, the quartet named could probably run the one-mile relay in about three minutes and ten seconds, which would just about smash all existing one-mile relay records for keeps and forever.

The track season was characterized by a distinct improvement in the mile and two mile runs. If this continues until 1932 there is no question but what we will give the English, Swedes and Finns much more competition in these events than in the last two or three Olympiads.

Compete in A. A. U. Meet

No doubt a large majority of this All-America track team will keep in training for the A. A. U. games this summer in which case the American team which will meet the All-British team in Chicago on Aug. 27 will be as classy as one could wish for. All in all this team could compete on even terms with the best in the world except in the javelin throw. Here we Americans have still not attained the high standards achieved by the Finns, Swedes and New Zealanders.

Every part of the country received representation except the Southwest. When Rice and Leland, the two outstanding men of that section, were out-sprinted by Wykoff and Simpson the only chance that area had went glimmering.

HOMERS ENABLE MACK'S MEN TO TAME INDIANS

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, June 21.—A crowd of 20,000 saw the Athletics make a clean sweep of the four-game series with Cleveland by taking the final today 7 to 1. Rube Walberg, fourth pitcher of the series to go the distance for the champions, gave up only four hits and did not allow a safety in the last six innings.

Three home runs, all made off Mel Harder, accounted for six of the victor's tallies. Foxx hit his seventeenth home run of the season and the third of the series, with one on in the sixth that broke up a 1 to 1 tie. In the next inning Bishop and Simmons hit for the circuit, the latter's coming with two on base.

WHITE SOX BUNCH HITS TO DEFEAT SENATORS

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—Chicago outhit Washington and combining their triple, two doubles and seven singles with the Senators' errors today won the second game of the series 7 to 2.

Brown was found for six hits in as many innings by the visitors who scored twice in the fourth and three times in the sixth when Burke replaced him. Thomas succeeded Burke after he had been taken out for a pinch hitter and Chicago added two to their score in the eighth.

Braxton facing his former team mates allowed them one run on the seven hits they made before he was taken out for a pinch hitter in the eighth.

over the pavilion, scoring behind Watkins.

Collins got the next three men, striking out Gelbert and Haines, and the Phillies added their seventh run in the seventh. Southern singled, O'Doul dropped a double between the right field pavilion wall and its protective wire screen and Klein walked, filling the bases. While Whitney was forcing Klein at second, Southern scored.

In the Cardinal half Adams' single and passes to Frisch and Watkins filled the bases with two out, but Smythe came to Collins' rescue and clipped over a called third strike on Pinch Hitter Peel to end the inning.

Six for Fillies in Eighth.

Then came the Phillies' big frame. Friberg singled and Thevenow sacrificed. Smythe singled, scoring Friberg and after Southern popped out, Cherlock singled, scoring Davis. O'Doul singled to right, filling the bases, and when Douthit missed connections with Klein's bounding single to center O'Doul and Klein followed Smythe and Sherlock over the plate.

Singles by Gelbert, Haines and Adams produced the Cards' third run in the eighth inning.

It was a little too hot for baseball and the Cardinals didn't play much of it.

Redbird Notes

BURLEIGH GRIMES will make his Cardinal debut this afternoon, pitching against the Phillies in the second game of the doubleheader. Sylvester Johnson will be the Cardinal hurler in the opener. Sweetland and Collard probably will work for the visitors.

Manager Gabby Street and Outfielder Ray Blades drew a three-day suspension as a result of their argument with "Partial Interference" Magerkurth in Friday's game. They will be eligible to return to duty Tuesday. Street watched the game from a box near the Cardinal dugout and frequently passed the time of day with Coach Wares.

Advertising dodgers, passed out with score cards sold at Sportsman's Park, invite the fans to come out and welcome Bill Sherdel and Fred Frankhouse, who will appear with the Braves in a series starting tomorrow.

The dodgers also inform the public that headache powders will be sold at the cigar stand, which may or may not be a dirty dig.

Jimmy Wilson still is nursing a badly split index finger on his right hand, so Gus Mancuso again was behind the bat. Wilson may be out for two or three more days.

Chick Hafey was in uniform yesterday for the first time since he was sent home for eye treatment. Chick looked good in a workout and will be in left field in a few days.

The paid attendance was announced as 4800.

Bottomley went hitless in five trips to the plate and now has gone to bat 23 consecutive times without a safety.

Giants Cancel Option.

The New York Giants have cancelled their options on Bill Powley, Ray Fitzgerald and Lou Allen with the Bridgeport club of the Eastern League.

ROBINS TAKE DOUBLEHEADER FROM THE REDS

By the Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, June 21.—The Brooklyn Robins came back today when their hold on first place in the National League was seriously threatened and made it safe for a while by taking both games of a double-healer from the Reds. The scores were 4 to 2 and 5 to 3, the second game being halted after the eighth inning to allow the Robins to make a train for home.

The Robins combined timely hits with walks to win both games. Archie Campbell walked in one run in the opening contest while Rixey issued more passes. Ray Phelps held the Reds to seven hits, a homer by George Kelly bringing the only Cincinnati runs. The second game was a close affair until the eighth, when Red Lucas, sent in after Jakie May had been lifted for a pinch batsman, gave three hits and two runs.

RUSSELL OUTPITCHES STEWART AND BROWNS LOSE TO RED SOX, 3-2

hit to center in the first inning which scored a run, but did not bother the opposition for the balance of the afternoon.

Twice Catcher Charley Berry hurt St. Louis' chances by good throws. In the second he caught Ferrell off second base after a pitchout and in the seventh he threw out Melillo, trying to steal second on a pitchout which broke up an attempted hit and run.

Blue started the ball rolling for the Browns by beating out a hopper to Sweeney at first base in the opening frame. Badgro's single to center sent Blue to third and Lu tallied when Goslin Goose slammed a single to the same spot, sending Badgro to third. After Kress had fanned, Gullic's scratch single, a topped roller down the third base line, enabled Badgro to score with the second and last St. Louis run of the game.

Stewart got into trouble in the second. For a starter he walked Webb. Miller flied out to Badgro and O'Rourke made a fine play in retrieving Narlesky's hot carom off Stewart's glove. Webb had his head up and raced all the way to third, although Kress made a great one-handed catch and stab which almost nailed the big rightfielder of the Sox.

Hal Rhyne delighted the home guard and dismayed the foe by hitting a double to right center. Charley Berry got a scratch single when Kress fell down fielding his ball, which base-runner Rhyne let bound through his legs to bewilder Kress, and Russell slapped a single to left. All this meant two runs for Boston and a two-all tie.

Rick Ferrell started the second with a double to left and then was caught off base by Berry's surprise peg to Rhyne at second, on a pitchout.

Two were gone in the fifth when a pass to Oliver started Stewart gliding. Sweeney's long single to right put Oliver on third. Scarritt hit a hot grounder to O'Rourke and the ball took a mean hop, caromed off Frank's shin as a base hit and Sweeney scored the deciding run.

IRONSIDES SETS TRACK RECORD IN WINNING ST. LOUIS HANDICAP

be hard to beat in his next start.

Willie Moran, on Thistle Arias permitted Pegg to set the pace for three-quarters of a mile in the second race and didn't make his move until they were half way around the far turn. Then he dug his heels into his mount and there was nothing more to the race.

Renick followed Moran's move and succeeded in getting Queen Whims up to place, just ahead of the tiring Shasta Belle. None of the others was prominent at any stage. Finland ran a very dull race.

Coots, Favorite, Defeated.

Coots was again the defeated favorite when the R. C. Stable's filly Poppyfield matched his every stride in a thrilling stretch duel to win by a head in the third event. Poppyfield running the six furlongs in 1:11 4-5, seems to be at the peak of her form and should repeat. Essie, another game and consistent filly, was third. Coots in his last previous race was beaten unexpectedly by Mortana.

Patti Louise, a filly which should have won her race of a few days ago but for Cimerak's poorly-judged ride, proved her ability when she outlasted Thistle Spray to win the sixth race in a drive. Cimerak this time made no mistakes. Tahoka was third.

Oleman Sunshine was a strong factor for the first three-quarters, but tired, as he occasionally does.

The favorite, Violin, was practically left in the stall barrier, but he made up lots of ground to finish fourth. Pegg showed a lack of skill in picking holes for Violin, else she might have done even better.

The refund was $9.06 for $2.

Judy's Second Winner.

Judy rode his second winner of the day in forcing Melita to hang on to withstand Mascara's prolonged drive in the seventh race.

The distance was a mile and a quarter and when Judy sent Melita to the front at the start, it was generally assumed that the horse would be unable to stick it out. But when the late starters made their charge after going three-quarters, Melita, running just ahead of Mascara, had too big a lead to be reached. Lincoln Plaut finished third.

The winner refunded $18.06 for $2.

Yalovian took the closing race, getting his head in front of Shark in one of the most exciting finishes of the meeting. Webster, in third place, and Ethel Galliger, fourth, were both within a neck of the winner.

Cimerak thus closed the day with two winners.

The stewards announced that Apprentice Jockey McMillan was suspended for rough riding in the first race, in which he piloted The Moon. His suspension will start Tuesday and will last for 10 days.

About 7000 persons witnessed yesterday's program.

MORRISON FINED $250 BY ROBINS' MANAGER

By the Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, O., June 21.—John Morrison, Brooklyn National League pitcher, today was suspended and fined $250 by Manager Wilbert Robinson for violation of the club rules. The latter said Morrison relieved Adolfo Luque in Thursday's game here and that he has not seen Morrison since then.

CUBS WIN TWICE FROM BRAVES BY 5 TO 4 SCORE

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 21.—The Cubs copped the night cap this afternoon against Boston to make it two for the afternoon. Both scores were 5 to 4. The Cubs, by their two victories, were only keeping pace with the leading Dodgers, who also managed to win a twin bill.

The victories gave the Cubs a record of 17 out of the last 22 games, a winning streak which started after the death of Hal Carlson and the loss of Roger Hornsby.

Teachout and Zachary started to oppose each other, but both were relieved when they proved none too effective. The game was tied up at 4-all as late as the eighth, when the Cubs nicked Cunningham, who relieved Zachary, for three hits and the winning run.

About 40,000 people attended the two games.

GIANTS COME FROM BEHIND AND WIN FROM PIRATES, 6-5, IN TENTH

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURG, June 21.—Pete Donohue gave the New York Giants a 6 to 5 victory over the Pirates in the rubber game of their series today, driving Jackson home with the winning run in the tenth inning. Donohue relieved Clarence Mitchell in the eighth and held the Pirates scoreless the last two innings.

The contest was a close one, New York tying it up in the ninth after trailing most of the way. The Giants had tied the count once before, only to drop back again when Comorosky hit a home run in the fourth. Ott and Leach led the Giant attack, each making four hits.

Snowflake raced as if best, under Schaefer's heady ride, and was kept prominent on the outside, in close pursuit of the pace made her run entering the the stretch came steadily through the final eighth, gradually wearing down and outgaming Pansy Walker in what was a mild drive for the winner. Pansy Walker was rated along in front, went well but could not match the winner's resolute challenge and was under severe drive at the end. Alcibiades raced forwardly on the inside, saved ground all the way, had no mishap and kept the others safe. Vermiculite could not improve her position. Tippy Toe was shut off midway of the back stretch. Erin and Chelys tired badly.

$2 mutuels paid: Snowflake, win, $5.52; place, $3.38; show, $2.54. Pansy Walker, place, $5.26; show, $3.88. Alcibiades, show, $5.26.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 21.—Coming from behind in the stretch to win by a neck, Walter J. Salmon's Snowflake strengthened her claim to the 3-year-old filly championship as she carried off the honors in the Illinois Oaks at Washington Park today.

Jockey L. Schaeffer rated the brillant turf Miss Back of the pace-setting Pansy Walker, a blood sister of Gallant Fox from the Texas-owned Three D's Stable, but when the call came at the head of the stretch, the Salmon star answered with a burst of speed that carried her out in front. Pansy Walker finished second, while H. P. Headley's Alcibiades trailed three lengths for the show money with Vermiculjite, owned by former Senator J. N. Camden, fourth.

Snowflake was assigned the top weight of 121 pounds along with Alcibiades, but the Salmon filly raced and won as if much the best. The big disappointment of the rich stake was the showing of the Wheatley Stable's Erin, which finished seventh in the field of eight.

On the basis of her third in the Preakness and first in the American Oaks at Belmont Park, Snowflake was made the favorite to win the $9500 that went to the owner of the winner, a $2 mutuel ticket returning $5.52.

Gallant Knight In Fine Workout For Latonia Race

Gallant Knight, star 3-year-old of the Audley Farm Stable, showed an unmistakable liking for a fast track when he displayed unusual speed in his mile and a half workout at Fairmount yesterday morning. He is being prepared for the Latonia Derby next Saturday.

Carrying full derby weight of 126 pounds, with Herman Schutte in the saddle, Gallant Knight stepped the half in :49 3-5; the three-quarters in 1:15 1-5, the mile in 1:41 1-5, the mile and a quarter in 2:07 and the mile and a half in 2:34.

His appearance at the conclusion of the work seemed to say that he likes to go a distance. His failure in the Cleveland Derby, which was run over a muddy track and his success in the Kentucky Derby, Fairmount Derby and American Derby, in which he finished second, first and second, proves that Gallant Knight wants the track dry and fast.

128 Women Enter 11th District Golf Tourney

By W. J. McGoogan.

Members of the St. Louis Women's District Golf Association, to the number of 128, will tee off at the St. Louis Country Club tomorrow morning, starting at 9 o'clock in the qualifying round of the eleventh annual district tournament.

Match play is scheduled to start Tuesday in all flights, the second round is set for Wednesday, semi-finals Thursday, and the finals Saturday. The final matches will be at 36 holes while al others are scheduled for 18 holes.

Sixteen women are to qualify in the championship flight, sixteen in the second flight and sixteen in the third. On Friday, an open date in the tournament schedule there will be a mixed 2-ball foursome.

Mrs. I. S. Hynes, Normandie Golf Club, will defend the championship she won at North Hills last spring, from Mrs. Mahlon B. Wallace, St. Louis Country Club, who also is entered in this year's tournament together with Miss Virginia Pep, Midland Valley, a former title-holder.

While these three are the pre-tournament favorites to fight it out for the championship there may be an upset, such as that which occurred at Tulsa, Ok., in the Trans-Mississippi tournament when Mrs. R. J. Kohn defeated Mrs. Hynes.

The Country Club course is regarded as one of the most difficult in the district with a total length of 6386 yards and a par of 71. Its fairways have recently been reseeded and should be in fine condition, while the greens are always excellent.

Pairings for the qualifying round:

Mack Says Manush Is Not in Goslin's Class As All-Around Player

By Connie Mack.

Manager of World's Champion Athletics.

PHILADELPHIA, June 1.—Deals during the playing season often have a big bearing on the pennant races, and in the American League two of the four contenders in the keenest race in the junior circuit in many years have been able to exchange players with other teams.

Connie Mack

Trades cannot be made after June 15 but as the date fell on a Sunday this year the limit was extended one day and both American League and National League teams got under the wire on the last day in the nick of time.

The Athletics had some trades in mind but it was impossible to close any of them. The team holding a world's title has to offer a great deal of material to get any man that might help them.

I resolved that I would not part with my seven regulars who won the world series, Catcher Cochrane and my first string pitchers, so I couldn't make a deal for it was my best material that other clubs wanted.

Cleveland perhaps was not keen to make any deals because they are equipped in all departments with such excellent reserves.

Two Trades.

New York and Washington were two contenders who made deals which I believe helped them both. The Yanks figured in two transactions. They sent Outfielder Durst to the Red Sox for Pitcher Charley Ruffing. That was a helpful move for the Yanks. They could spare Durst and in letting him go they received a right hander of experience in Ruffing, who has bolstered Shawkey's pitching staff. Ruffing can stand lots of work and in addition he is a hard hitter.

Then Ruppert closed another transaction in which he gave Pitcher Waite Hoyt and Shortstop Mark Koenig to the Tigers for Outfielder Harry Rice and Pitcher Owen Carroll.

All season Manager Shawkey has been yearning for a really good outfielder to play along with Ruth and Combs and he certainly picked the man in Rice, who is a hard hitter, fast fielder and an experienced player of the highest order.

The acquisition of Rice was immediately reflected in the improved playing of the Yanks who landed just the type of player they needed to round out the team. It remains to be seen where Carroll will be better with the Yanks than with Detroit, but there is no doubt that Rice was the real object of the trade.

At the same time Hoyt and Koenig should help the Tigers, who are coming along faster, and who so far have not regretted the deal. I think this swap helped both clubs.

Washington officials were very busy in those late hours just before the closing of the trading season, and were rewarded with three quick deals. In their first deal they sent Outfielder Barnes to the White Sox for Outfielder Dave Harris. They did this to acquire a right-handed hitting reserve outfielder and pinch hitter.

Goslin-Manush.

It was the next deal made by Washington that had the fans buzzing every place they met. The Senators sent Outfielder "Goose" Goslin, one of the outstanding clean-up hitters of the game, to the Browns for Outfielder Henry Manush and Pitcher Alan Crowder. At first it looks as if Washington had the better of this deal, but later on results might cause fans to think differently. What makes the deal look good in Washington is that the Senators obtained one of the leading pitchers in Crowder at a time when it seemed as if they needed one more first-class curver to keep them in the pennant hunt, and with him a heavy hitting outfielder in Manush.

While Manush might not quite be in Goslin's class as a player, yet the end of every season finds him close to the top in the American League batting column. Indeed he led the league in 1926 as Goslin did two seasons later.

St. Louis received in Goslin one of the shining luminaries of the garden. Goslin came back this year with his old dash. While his average just at this time is not as good as it has been in the past, he still hits with lots of power and is always dreaded by the pitcher. At the bat you will always find Goslin swinging his hardest and is never better than with men on bases. He drives in lots of runs every season.

Perhaps the difference in the Washington and St. Louis parks have been overlooked by the fans in discussing this deal. Goslin is a long distance right field hitter and in Washington right field is not only deep but flanked by a high wooden wall. Consequently there are fewer homers in Washington than in any other park in the circuit. Yet the Goose thrived at a park where there were no easy home runs possible.

Now in St. Louis it is vastly different. Right field is short and the playing space cramped. While the stands there have been screened yet it is not much of a feat for a hitter of Goslin's power to drive the ball either to the roof or over the stands entirely.

So the Goose has a favorable target to shoot at in St. Louis that he didn't have in Washington. One thing the Browns are sure to gain by this deal is in Goslin's wonderful fielding.

In Washington the Goose had one of the foremost left fields in the league to cover and nobody could equal him in patrolling it. He will cut down many a drive for the Browns that used to go safe. In Washington, Manush will have the toughest field to cover that he ever had in his career.

The Senators were destined to close a third swap in the last minutes of the open season. They gave the White Sox pitcher Braxton and catcher Tate for first baseman Art Shires. This deal should help both clubs. Washington has a good reserve first baseman and pinch hitter in Shires, who has been a tractable young man this spring.

In the National League, the Cardinals and Braves closed a big deal at the last minute when Boston sent pitcher Burleigh Grimes to the Cardinals for pitchers Sherdel and Frankhouse. If Grimes can win for the Cardinals it may complicate the National League race. Sherdel and Frankhouse will make good men for the Braves.

JIM MANION TURNS IN A 73 IN PRACTICE FOR T.-M. TOURNEY

EVENT OPENS TOMORROW AT BROADMOOR IN DENVER

By the Associated Press.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., June 21.—Par and sub-par practice rounds by some of the favorites entered in quest of the trans-Mississippi golf championship, to be played here over the Broadmoor course next week, were taken to mean today that Robert McCrary, the defending champion from Des Moines, most likely would have plenty of competition in his efforts to repeat.

The most sensational of today's contributions in low scores was from Denny Miller, also of Des Moines. Miller, a stranger to the sporty Broadmoor course, went around in 70, one under par. In his morning round. To prove it was no fluke, Miller turned in an afternoon round in the same figure. After this exhibition of shot making Miller was looked upon as considerable of a threat.

McCrary himself sounded a warning note that his game is right for the tournament. He played the course in 71. Bud Maytag of Newton, Ia., last year's finalist, also sunbmitted a 71 for serious consideration.

Two youngsters from Omaha, Rodney Bliss and Perry Garver, the latter only 17, made a distinct impression with 73's. Both were deadly in their short game.

Jimmy Manion of St. Louis, a former champion, had a 73; Harrison Smith of Oklahoma City, 73; Frank Howard of Salt Lake, 74, and Ed Guettell, Kansas City, 76.

The field of starters for the 36-hole qualifying round is expected to be between 150 and 200. Thirty-two will qualify.

George Cimerak Leading Jockey At Fairmount

George Cimerak, leading the Fairmount riders for the meeting, with 29 winners, drew the biggest pay check for last week's work. His fees totaled $277. Following is the standing of the leading riders for the meeting, including races of Friday:

	First.	Second.	Third.
Cimerak	29	29	26

Lary, Yankee Star, Will Be Out for 3 Weeks

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 21.—Lyn Lary, Yankee shortstop who was injured playing against Detroit yesterday, turned up at today's game to report the extent of the injury to his right thumb. An X-Ray examination had disclosed that the digit was both dislocated and fractured in the first joint, he said, and the injury probably would keep him out of action for three weeks.

ILLINOIS MOSAIC NET TEAM WINS INTERCLUB TILT FROM TRIPLE A

The Illinois Mosaic Tennis Club defeated Triple A three matches to two, yesterday in an inter-club match on the Triple A courts.

The results:

Wray Brown, Triple A, defeated Junior Boehmer, Illinois M. C., 6—1, 6—1.

Teddy Eggman, Illinois M. C., defeated Fred Josties, Triple A, 6—1, 7—5.

Edmund Serrano, Illinois M. C., defeated Karl Hodge, Triple A, 8—6, and default.

Brown and Josties, Triple A, defeated Boehmer and Martin, Illinois M. C., 6—1, 6—0.

Eggman and Serrano, Illinois M. C., defeated Kammann and Barnes, Triple A, 6—4, 6—1.

SIX AUTO RACES ON CREVE COEUR PROGRAM TODAY

The second program of automobile racing will be presented at the new track at Upper Creve Coeur Lake, this afternoon, with a card made up of three five-mile preliminaries, a five-mile cup race, a five-mile "straw-hat derby" and a 20-mile main event for the three survivors of each of the three preliminaries.

Twenty-one drivers out of 30 entered will qualify in the speed trials, which began yesterday afternoon and will be continued until noon today. The nine making the best time in the trials will go to the post in the first preliminary, the three winners qualifying for the 20-mile test, and those finishing fourth, fifth and sixth going into the second elimination race, with the six making the second best time in the speed trials. The three winners, likewise, go into the main event, with the next three going into the third preliminary against the six making the third best time. The three winners of this event, as in the other two, qualify for the 20-mile special race, making a total of nine to start the long grind.

Program Opens at 2:30.

The first preliminary will start at 2:30 o'clock with races at half-hour intervals. Mart Molloy, track manager, stated the races would be run off on time.

Purses will be $500, $250, $100 and $50 for the main event, and $50, $30 and $20 for each of the five-mile affairs. Under the plan of operation, no driver may win more than three purses.

The Shamrock Cup race will be for the six making the best time in the trials and the "straw-hat derby," instead of being open to all, as previously announced, will be limited to those failing to finish in the money in the three preliminaries. In this race, a driver will be disqualified if his straw hat blows off, or if he holds it on while driving, and those who finish first, second and third, with their hats on, will get the cash prizes.

List of Drivers.

Drivers with their car numbers:

Young Howdy Wilcox No. 1; John Boyd 3; "Shorty" Copeland 7; Fred Leill B-2; Howard "Speed" Adams 300; Vernon McComb 500; Sam Hoffman 2; H. N. Fox 77; Al Thiesen 29; "Red" Campbell 7; Earl Hovender 60; J. Davis 7-11; George Barringer 22; Fred Littleton 76; Toots Campo 38-2; Pat Cunningham 700; James Ewers 87; Teddy Barnes 12; Pete Alberts C-4; M. R. Clark 200; Dick Glover 6; E. Houchin 3-diamonds; Arthur Knepper 1; Kirkwood 55; John Tersinor V-5; Ogle Brown 29; Art Withrow 26; Fred Fansin 8; Bryan Saulspaugh 100, and J. M. Cagany 10.

The fact that there are two Nos. 1, 7 and 26 is not expected to cause any confusion, as Louis E. "Ed." Montgomery, president stated the cars likely would be grouped in different races.

Drivers have pronounced the track excellent since the spreading of oil over it to make it "dustless."

The management has added 6000 seats since the races two weeks ago.

KAREL KOZELUH WINS "PRO" TENNIS TITLE

AUTEUIL, France, June 21.—Karel Kozeluh of Czecho-Slovakia defeated Roland Najuch, German professional, in straight sets today in a match billed here as for the world's professional championship. The scores were 6—2, 6—2, 6—4.

Najuch gave Kozeluh, who was recognized as the champion after defeating Vincent Richards in a match in the United States, a much harder battle than the scores indicate. A majority of the games went to deuce several times. The 26 games lasted two hours and 20 minutes.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 21.—Another week of ruthless grinding down of prices in most of the organized markets of the world has destroyed resistance points of long standing and convinced a large portion of the financial community of Wall street that something fundamental is going on in world economics.

Prices of shares traded on the New York Stock Exchange, in the aggregate, have been reduced to the lowest levels since November, with many individual shares the lowest in several years. Chicago wheat and New York cotton prices have been reduced to the levels of 1914. Sugar futures have gone below all low levels ever recorded on the New York market. The decline in bar silver has carried further, making still new historical records.

How much the break in stocks has influenced wheat and cotton, and how far wheat and cotton have influenced stocks is a question which cannot readily be answered. Wall street is more inclined to look for fundamental causes effecting all three.

A World-Wide Situation.

Indeed, with the depression extending to almost all corners of the globe, there is now little inclination to attribute the financial and industrial difficulties to the effects of a mere shake out of an over-extended speculative position in this country last fall.

Prominent bankers are inclined to the opinion that world productive capacity has outstripped normal consumptive capacity, a fact which may have been obscured during the past two years in America by a roaring bull stock market. Curtailment of production, or the finding of new means of increasing consumption are regarded as presenting, the only apparent solutions.

There is a feeling in some quarters, however, that the situation now appears exaggerated, owing to the seasonal slacking of industrial activity which appears at this time, and also, perhaps, because of uncertainties over the effects of the new tariff measure which became law this week.

Upon the stock market, apparently, converged the pessimism which has fairly thoroughly enveloped Wall street. Selling early in the week was in large volume, and much of it was described by brokers as coming from important sources. A sharp technical rebound on Thursday was canceled by hangover liquidation and bear selling at the end of the week. Inauguration of a 2½ per cent rediscount rate at the New York Federal Reserve Bank, the lowest in its history, and a drop of $211,000,000 in brokers loans failed to halt the decline.

LOCAL STOCK SALES TOTAL 25,000 SHARES

Declining Prices During Week Reflect Conditions on the New York Exchange — Wagner Electric Leads Trade and Has Downward Range of 6 Points.

Prices of securities listed on the St. Louis Stock Exchange, followed, to a great extent, the course of values on the New York board during the last week—falling with turnover large. Rebounds from the lows, however, marked later trading. Sales aggregated 25,977 shares, nearly treble the total of previous week. The downward range of moderately priced shares extended to 12 points, while among the high-priced issues one declined 17½ points. There was a suggestion that short selling played a part in the movement of at least one issue.

Wagner Electric was the outstanding issue of the week, selling down more than 5 points to a new low of 20 for the 1929-30 period on a turnover of more than 8000 shares, approximately a third of the week's business.

National Candy, the second most active issue, had a downward movement of only a little over 2 points on turnover of 2580 shares. International Shoe touched a new 1929-30 low, although it sold off only a little over a point. Missouri Portland had 1¼ point decline. Rice-Stix at 13 was unchanged.

Dr. Pepper sold off 12 points to 37. The stock, a newcomer on board this year, had sold as high as 50. Coca-Cola Bottling had a 4-point range. Laclede Steel and Johnson, Stephens, Shinkle were both off 3 points at one time.

In the banking group, Mercantile-Commerce sold as low as 249⅞, a decline of 18 points, while Franklin-American went down 15 points on 50 shares. First National Bank sold at 79, off 3 points.

SPECULATIVE MARKETS ARE DOWN TO NEW 1930 LOWS

The selling, however, appeared to be more professional than it had been earlier in the week.

With wheat off a cent and a half or more and cotton showing an extreme drop of about $2 a bale, the stock market leaders displayed little resistance to selling. Short covering in the late trading cut down some of the losses, but net declines of 2 to 6 points were common.

The closing price index on 90 leading shares stood at 156.2, a loss of 4.6 points and a new low on final quotations since the fall panic. This figure, however, was half a point above the 1 p. m. level of Wednesday. All of the groups represented in the composite index ended the two-hour session below their previous 1930 minimums. Allied Chemical made the session's maximum decline, dropping 15 points to 236, a new low for both 1930 and 1929.

Pressure against U. S. Steel quickly sent the stock a full point below its so-called resistance level of 155, although it closed more than a point above the low for a net loss of 2¾. American Can touched 110⅛, or 3⅜ below the 1930 previous low, and finished at the bottom, off 5⅞ on the day. New York Central sagged to 155⅛.

Some of the New Lows.

New lows were also made by Bethlehem Steel, International Harvester, J. I. Case, Allied Chemical, United Carbon, Sears Roebuck, Auburn Auto and Johns Manville among the industrials, and by Southern Railway, Union Pacific, Canadian Pacific, Rock Island, Delaware & Hudson, New Haven, Kansas City Southern, and Great Northern preferred, in the rail group. Southern Pacific, Radio and Westinghouse came within an eighth of a point of their 1930 minimums.

Secretary Mellon's statement on the tariff, which expressed the opinion that the new measure would not have an adverse effect on the nation's foreign trade, was the chief item in the day's news of interest in financial circles, but it failed to stabilize the markets. There was report of price cutting on petroleum for export and one of the large producers announced that it had withdrawn its decision to stop buying crude in six counties in Texas.

Wheat closed weak, off 1½ to 1¾ cents to the lowest prices in years. Bearish reports from the Dakotas, bearish weather forecasts and offerings of new grain in Illinois, as well as the softness of stocks, were contributory factors. Corn finished easy, ⅜ to 1⅛ cents lower. Cotton, however, rallied appreciably from the mid-morning towns and the close was steady, 26 to 34 points lower.

Shares losing 3 to 4 points included American Telephone, Consolidated Gas, General Electric du Pont, Public Service of New Jersey, Westinghouse, Union Carbide and Atchison. Radio, Sears Roebuck, Standard Oil of New Jersey, General Motors and Bethlehem Steel yielded a couple of points net. Gillette Safety Razor was one of the few prominent shares to advance. It rose a point.

Foreign exchanges were easy, sterling sagging ⅛. The Spanish peseta was again heavy.

ST. LOUIS MARKET

WEEKLY COPPER REVIEW

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 21.—The recent weak spell in copper was followed by the development of a steadier position late in the week when the heaviest buying by European consumers since May was attracted by prevailing low record prices. The revival of buying by foreigners started at 11½ cents and continues at 12 cents, where the market appeared to become more stabilized. Export sales were estimated at 6625 tons, understood to be for August-September and later shipment. Domestic business continued light.

Lead prices were reduced $2 a ton and sellers reported a better business, especially for July shipment.

Zinc was quoted as weak with free offers from sellers, largely smelters, for prompt June and July shipment.

$20,000,000 MERGER O K'D BY ELY-WALKER

Directors Approve Formation of Manufacturing and Selling Holding Company.

Formation of the United Dry Goods Corporation, a holding company for the $20,000,000 system of wholesale dry goods manufacturing and merchandising interests being assembled by the Ely-Walker Co. of St. Louis was approved today at a special meeting of the board of directors of the St. Louis firm.

Announcement of the creation of the holding company follows arrangements for the acquisition several weeks ago of the most recent group to be included, the Wyman Partridge Co. of Minneapolis. The Walton & Moore Co. of San Francisco, and the Watts-Ritter Co. of Huntington, W. Va., are also to be included, with the prospect ultimately of acquiring more concerns in the field.

The officers of the new company it was announced, will be chosen from the member companies. Central offices will be in St. Louis.

$20,000,000 MERGER O K'D BY ELY-WALKER

Directors Approve Formation of Manufacturing and Selling Holding Company.

Formation of the United Dry Goods Corporation, a holding company for the $20,000,000 system of wholesale dry goods manufacturing and merchandising interests being assembled by the Ely-Walker Co. of St. Louis was approved today at a special meeting of the board of directors of the St. Louis firm.

Announcement of the creation of the holding company follows arrangements for the acquisition several weeks ago of the most recent group to be included, the Wyman-Partridge Co. of Minneapolis. The Walton & Moore Co. of San Francisco, and the Watts-Ritter Co. of Huntington, W. Va., are also to be included, with the prospect ultimately of acquiring more concerns in the field.

The officers of the new company, it was announced, will be chosen from the member companies. Central offices will be in St. Louis.

REGULAR CLOSE TO BOND MARKET

Weak Share Trade and Dullness of Short Session Are Influences.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 21.—A weak share market and the usual dullness of a short session proved a combination too strong for the bond market to make any material advance today, despite the extremely favorable credit conditions.

The list closed irregular. Moderate strength was shown by a few first grade rails. An easier tone prevailed in the group. Interest centered in railroad and utility issues and price changes for the most part were unimportant. Convertible issues softened in sympathy with stocks. United States governments were quiet, with the inquiry chiefly for Liberty 4th 4¼s which sold off at the close. On a few sales, Liberty 1st 4¼s and Treasury 3¾ issues of 40-43 and 43-47 established new highs for the year, the latter gaining one-half point.

American Telephone 4½s, off 2½ points; Atchison 4½s, off 2, and International Telephone 4½s, off 2, lost the most ground among convertibles. International Telephone bonds were at new lows for the year.

Railroad issues moved narrowly for the most part. Erie 5s, Great Northern 7s, Louisville & Nashville 5s, Northern Pacific 4s, New York Central 4s and Pennsylvania 4½s yielded fractionally. St. Paul 5s, Missouri Pacific 5s, Pennsylvania 4¼s, Southern Pacific 4s, San Francisco 4½s gained about one-fourth point. Illinois Central issues were strong, moving up 2 and 3 points. Louisville Railway 5s, an inactive issues, rose 6½ points to a new high for the year.

Utilities were firm. Illinois Bell Telephone 5s, Kansas City Power and Light 5s, St. Louis Gas and Electric 5s, American Telephone 5s were moderately accumulated, and slightly higher.

Weakness of sugar company bonds was one feature of industrial issues. American Beet Sugar convertible 6s declined 2½ points to a new 1930 low and Vertientes Sugar 7s dropped five points. Some industrial bonds were steady and firm, while others eased.

Activity in the foreign group centered in South American issues, most of which lost ground. Uruguay 6s, Brazil 7½s and Chile 6s lost more than a point. Bolivian 7s rebounded 2⅜ after the sharp break earlier in the week. German 7s, the Dawes issue, reached a new low for the year, selling off

DRY GOODS MARKET REVIEW

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 21.—Cotton goods sales for the week showed a little improvement compared with a week ago as to volume, but at lower prices. Primary merchants are becoming more active in offering new fall lines. Raw silk was steady and unchanged. Burlap markets were quiet. More interest in developing worsted dress fabrics. Considerable curtailment of production is planned by textile mills for the holiday period of Fourth of July week.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 21.—Total sales amounted to $5,219,000, compared with $11,149,000 yesterday, $4,916,000 last week and $6,752,000 last year. Total sales from Jan. 1 to date were $1,415,545,000, compared with $1,245,149,000 a year ago and $1,634,577,000 two years ago.

Quotations on all Liberty bonds are in dollars and thirty-seconds of a dollar. That is, for instance, a sale printed 99—24 means $99 and 24 thirty-seconds of a dollar, and not $99.24.

Following is a complete list of bonds traded in on the New York Stock Exchange today, giving sales, highest, lowest and closing prices. In sales, 000 omitted.

MANY NEW LOWS FOR YEAR ON THE CURB

Trend of Market Appears to Be Merely in Sympathy With Other Centers.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 21.—Curb market shares attracted little support today, and a further trickle of liquidation, together with fairly active bear selling, was sufficient to depress a wide assortment of issues to new lows for the year or longer. Sales for the two-hour session aggregated 568,300 shares.

The trend on this market appeared to be merely in sympathy with the downward tendency on other speculative markets, as news developments regarding Curb shares were meagre. Electric Bond and Share was a target for bear selling, touching a new low for the year at 71⅛, and closing at 72⅝, off more than 4 points. Cities Service was an active feature, and closed about a point lower at 27⅛.

American Gas dropped 7 points to a new 1930 low at 108 and American Commonwealths B, Electric Power and Light warrants, and United Light A lost about 3 to 4 points. The Associated Gas Issues, and Rochester Central power also recorded new low levels for the year. Oils were not very active, but inclined to heaviness. Gulf dropped 7 points to 119, a new low.

In the Industrials, Aluminum Co., which fell 45 points yesterday, rallied 10 points today, then lost half its gain. Deere was a weak spot again, declining about 10 points to a new bottom at 85⅛, compared to the year's high of 162⅝. Among comparatively inactive issues, Singer, Raytheon, Royal Typewriter and Pittsburg and Lake Erie lost 5 to 10 points, also reaching new minimum levels.

Goldman Sachs was again a soft spot, reaching a new bottom at 18, and closing at 18⅝, off 1 point. Trans-America closed at 29, off 1½.

WHEAT BELOW $1 A BUSHEL ON ALL CHICAGO FUTURES

Market Has the Lowest General Close in Many Years Being Dominated Largely by Crop and Weather News.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 21.—Accentuating a two weeks' record-breaking fall in grain prices, all future deliveries of wheat plunged down today to below $1 a bushel. December wheat contracts, which alone have heretofore held up decidedly above the dollar level, tumbled today to 99⅞c.

The market had the lowest general close in many years, being dominated by acute weakness of securities, by timely rains in Canada, and above all, by increase of arrivals of newly harvested domestic wheat, augmenting the huge supply left over from last year.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsteady at but little above the day's bottom point and 1¼@2c a bushel lower than yesterday's finish. Corn closed ¼@1⅝c down, oats ⅜@1⅝c off and provisions showing 12@60c decline.

Despite heavy profit taking today on the part of recent speculative sellers, the wheat market showed little power to rally. One reason for this was that forecasts of continued favorable weather next week for the domestic harvest were generally construed as pointing to no cessation of the rush of rural marketing of wheat, heedless of world-wide downward plunge of prices. Meanwhile, the shadow of the 1930 harvest movement was manifested in Chicago by sales of wheat to arrive here as far ahead as August and September, and the receipts of wheat this week at all primary terminals were shown to be of materially greater volume than during the week previous.

Canadian reports of rains, wonderful as relief from moisture shortage which had been threatening Canadian wheat production this season, were responsible for much of the stampede of stop-loss selling on the part of wheat traders here. Besides, the Canadian downpours were shown to have spread to adjoining dry districts of domestic spring wheat territory, North Dakota and Montana, in particular. The effect was to eclipse entirely any results which might otherwise have developed from news that black rust had been reported in wheat fields near Aberdeen, S. D. Damaging stages of the rust, though, are not expected to come about until mid-July. Every other stimulating factor was likewise virtually ignored, but sharp notice was taken that export demand for wheat from North America remained slack, notwithstanding that wheat values have now dropped more than 24 cents a bushel in some cases, compared to a year ago.

Prices for corn and oats ran downhill along with wheat. Hot weather likely to promote growth of the new corn crop tended to accelerate the movement of the corn market toward a lower level.

Provisions responded to weakness of grain and of hog values as well.

Fluctuations of the past week sent grain pit statisticians into a huddle and they came out with these figures:

Closing at 92¼ after a low of 92 cents, June sales of July wheat compared with $2.40 wheat in 1917.

Since 1907 this months' sales of July wheat have been below $1 but seven times. Trading in wheat futures was suspended during the war crises from Aug. 25, 1917, until July 15, 1920.

September delivery wheat, closing at 95¼, was the lowest June in 15 years and has only been lower six times in the last 24 years, touching a low of 76⅞c in 1914 and a high of $2.11 in 1917.

December delivery wheat closing at 99⅞c to $1 held a similar low record of the lowest price in 15 years and had gone below $1 but six times in 24 years.

July corn at 75c was at its lowest June price in eight years and has sold below that figure but twice in the past 13 seasons, both times during the agricultural deflation period. In contrast high prices of $1.83 were touched in both 1919 and 1920. Todays' low was 73⅝c.

July oats, touching 35 cents today, and closing a quarter cent stronger, has been lower but once in 23 years, dropping to 33¼c during 1922 and selling as high as $1.08 two years before.

July rye closing at 46½c was at a low for the season and other options for corn, oats and rye were relatively the same as July.

LOCAL WHEAT PRICE CONTINUES DECLINE

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE June 21.—Wheat continued its descent today, under influence increase of arrivals of newly harvested domestic wheat at points and anticipated larger movement, timely rains in Canada and according to one quarter the weakness of stock market. Liverpool closed ⅜d to ⅛d lower. Corn was influenced by weather.

In the cash grain market, soft wheat was down 3c to 4c. Premiums were off 2c to 2¼c. Offerings were light and did not include anything choice, and the demand was limited, although there were unfilled orders for choice No. 2. The available supply cleared closely. Sales of No. 2 were on a basis 2¼c to 3c above the Chicago July figure and No. 3 even. Prices on No. 2 were the lowest since 1923 when in July of that year this class sold at 93¼c and 94¼c. Hard wheat was down ½c to 2¼c, with sales mainly at prices 1¼c to 2c lower. Receipts were heavy and were practically all contract No. 2 to National Grain Stabilization Corporation. There was not much demand for the few cars on sale. A few orders were on hand for choice country run wheat, which went on a better basis, but local demand was quiet. Sales of No. 2 winter and No. 2 yellow were on the basis of the Chicago July figure and No. 3 winter 2¼c below. Selections of yellow corn were 1¼c and 2c higher. White No. 1 showed a ¼c decline. Mills, elevators, shippers and industries were the purchasers. Oats were unchanged. Premiums were better. Offerings were limited. The chief buyers were local interests.

Closing prices were as follows: July wheat 90¼c, September wheat 93⅛c, July corn 75c, September corn 74c, December corn 66⅞c.

Wheat opened fractionally lower and then sold off 2c on September. Corn ranged down a cent early.

July wheat opened at 91⅝c, September wheat 94⅜c, July corn 75⅛c, September corn 74½c and December 69⅝c.

Local wheat receipts, which were 231,000 bushels, compared with 40,600 a week ago and 82,600 a year ago, included 137 cars local and 28 through. Corn receipts, which were 43,400 bushels, compared with 123,200 a week ago and 184,800 a year ago, included 26 cars local and 5 through. Oats receipts, which were 37,400 bushels, compared with 70,400 a week ago and 99,000 a year ago, included 13 cars local and 4 through. Hay receipts were 12 cars local and 1 through.

CATTLE PRICES DOWN IN TRADE FOR WEEK

Steers, Mixed Yearlings and Heifers Sell 50 Cents to $1.00 Lower During Period.

NATIONAL STOCKYARDS, Ill., June 21.—(U. S. Department of Agriculture.)—On account of too many cattle and the difficulty which packers claim in moving dressed beef, all classes took another material decline this week. Compared with the close of last week, steers, mixed yearlings and heifers sold 50c to $1.00 lower, fed descriptions down the least; cows 50c to 75c lower; cutters and low cutters 25c to 50c lower; bulls 75c lower; vealers and stocker and feeder steers, $1.00 lower; feeding cows and heifers 50c lower. Tops for the week: 976-lb. yearling steers, $11.75; 620-lb. heifers, $11.50; 1369-lb. steers, $11.10; 785-lb. mixed yearlings $10.65; cows, $7.75; medium bulls, $6.75; vealers, $10.50; stocker steers, $9.00. Three loads of steers, averaging 1317 and 1369 lbs., scored $10.00 and $11.10, while 1205 to 1281-lb. averages ranged from $7.90 to $10.75, bulk $9.15 to $10.25. Steers scaling 1101 to 1188 lbs. ranged from $8.25 to $10.50, bulk $8.25 to $9.85. Lightweight native steers ranged from $8 to $11.75, the majority $8.25 to $11.00, which was also bulk of all natives. Western grass steers ranged from $5.75 to $7.50. Most fat steers went from $9.75 to $11.25. Bulk of fat mixed yearlings and heifers scored $9.00 to $10.25; medium fleshed descriptions largely $7.75 to $8.75. The mine run of beef cows earned $5.50 to $6.50, while most low cutters went from $3.00 to $3.75. Best sausage bulls claimed $6.00 Friday, while vealers landed $9.50. Bulk and top prices the corresponding week last year were as follows: Steers, $12.50 to $14.85, top $15.35; fat mixed yearlings and heifers $13.50 to $14.40, top $14.60; medium fleshed mixed yearlings and heifers $12.50 to $13.00; cows $8.25 to $10.00, top $12.00; low cutters $6.00 to $6.75; top sausage bulls $9.75; top vealers $15.00; bulk stocker and feeder steers, $9.85 to $11.90, top $12.25.

Hog Market Is Lower.

Receipts of swine this week approximated 59,000 head compared with actual arrivals of 64,538 last week and 69,572 corresponding week last year. Following a strong opening on Monday when a liberal number of hogs topped at $10.35, shipping interests largely removed their support from the market and prices dropped steadily. This was mostly a reflection of the dull trade and lower prices affecting dressed pork though the sharply lower deals in the cattle yards were undoubtedly a contributing factor. The slump was temporarily checked on Thursday but increasing bearishness on the part of packers again started the downturn and the week closed at the lowest point since last December 21, when the extreme top was fixed at $9.50. Compared with the close of last week, all classes and grades were 50c to 75c lower. The Saturday deal opened steady to 5c lower but with shipping orders filled, later trade was 10c to 15c lower, some late bids off more. Sows shared the declines while the few pigs sold steady to weak. Practical top was $9.65 with a few small lots at $9.70. Most 160 to 250 pounds weights went at $9.50 to $9.65 with late sales around the lower figure. No heavies were offered. Most of the 100 to 140 pounds pigs and light lights cashed at $9 to $9.25 though it was considered that better 140 to 150 pound weights were eligible to around $9.40 or $9.50. Packing sows bulked at $8.35 to $8.50.

Fat Lambs Higher.

Receipts of sheep and lambs this week approximated 21,000, as compared with 23,732 last week and 18,948 corresponding week last year. Fat lambs proved to be the only exception in the falling livestock prices this week and finished with a strong to 25c higher deal for the Saturday-to-Saturday period. Light receipts early this week assisted sellers and prices went steadily upward for two days only to meet increasing resistance and, with pressure exerted after midweek, most of the advance was lost. Lower grade lambs and all grades of sheep failed to share the early advances and recorded no change for the period. An extreme top of $12.50 was paid on Tuesday for a deck of prime graded lambs, aside from which no lambs were able to pass the $12 level. On Friday bulk of desirable lambs went to packers at $11 to $11.25, with one choice deck at $11.50. A load of choice graded lambs realized $11.75 with a small lot of prime grade at $12. Buck lambs were sorted off at a discount of $1. Yearlings were practically lacking all week. One load of medium grade 2-year-old wethers sold at $4.75. Clipped ewes bulked at $3 to $3.50.

Horses and Mules.

NATIONAL STOCKYARDS, Ill., June 21.—Horse and mule market for the week ushered in light supplies and there was only one day's auction. Some sold through dealers' alleys, too. Prices followed the usual trend at this time of the year, showing a somewhat easier tone.

NATIVE HORSE QUOTATIONS.

Good to choice draft, $125 to $150; medium to good draft, $100@125; good to choice chunks $75@100; medium to good chunks $50@60; choice Southern horses, $40@55; fair to good Southern horses, $25@35; smooth-mouthed Southerners, $15@25; plugs, $5@15.

COTTON LOSES GOOD PART OF RECENT RALLY AT WEEK END

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 21.—Cotton lost a good part of its recent rally during today's trading under realizing by earlier week buyers and a renewal of selling promoted by weak cables, further declines in grain and stocks and favorable weather reports.

July contracts sold off to 13.51c, making a net decline of 43 points, while the new October declined to 12.85c, or 40 points net lower. Closing quotations were several points up from the lowest on covering and the final tone was steady, but the market showed net losses of 26 to 34 points for the day. Spot quiet. Middlings, 13.70c.

The opening was barely steady at a decline of 15 to 24 points in response to the lower Liverpool cables and the favorable overnight weather advices. There was some trade buying and covering at the decline, but the demand from shorts was much less active following the rallies of Thursday and Friday, and the trade demand was also less in evidence. At any rate, it was quite readily supplied and the market showed increasing weakness on reports of continued favorable weather in the South and the unsettled showing of the wheat and stock markets.

Some stop orders were uncovered as prices worked lower with the decline extending to 13.16c for the old October and 13.04c for new December later in the morning. Covering steadied the market at these prices, with the close showing rallies of about 9 to 12 points from the lowest. The closing quotations for July showed a premium of 63 points over the new October, compared with a difference of 69 points at the close of the previous day.

Cotton men here with trade connections abroad said that there was some further European buying this morning but that it was less active than earlier in the week. Technically the position seemed to have been eased somewhat by the rally of some 70 to 80 points from the low prices of the week, and this was probably reflected by the smaller volume of covering noted during the morning.

Liverpool cables reported local and continental liquidation in that market and referred to a disappointing absence of support, while they also complained of a poor demand for cotton cloth from India and China. The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 70,000 bales, against 83,000 last year and 84,000 two years ago.

New York Cottonseed Oil.

NEW YORK, June 21.—Cottonseed oil was very quiet today, but displayed a fairly steady tone in the face of the weakness in other markets.

There was no sign of selling pressure, with indications that July liquidation has ceased for the time being at least, while a small week-end covering demand was in evidence, with refiners' brokers bidding for July. Old contracts closed 1 to 5 points lower and new contracts 7 points lower to 2 points higher.

Sales were 2200 barrels, including 1900 of old and 300 new. Prime crude nominal; prime summer yellow spot old $8.10; July closed $8.10, Sept. $8.11, Oct. $8.12; Dec. $8.01. New: Dec. $7.63, Jan. $7.75, March $7.90.

CONDEMNATION FOR BALLAS ROAD WIDENING ORDERED

County Court Wants to Establish 60-Foot Highway Between Manchester and Olive Street Roads.

The St. Louis County Court has ordered condemnation proceedings for the acquisition of additional right-of-way to widen Ballas road from 40 to 60 feet for nearly five miles, between Manchester road and the Creve Coeur branch of the Missouri Pacific Railroad, a short distance south of Olive Street road.

The widening would consist, in the main, of taking a 10-foot additional strip on each side. It has been proposed to replace the present bituminous surface with a 20-foot concrete pavement. The county had proposed to take 20 feet from each side, making an 80-foot right-of-way, the extra space being desired for future wedening of pavement as a major highway.

Owners of property between Conway road and the Missouri Pacific tracks meeting about six weeks ago to hear the plan, were divided in sentiment, some opposing any widening of the right-of-way, some favoring a 60-foot width and some agreeing to the 80-foot scheme. Opponents said they would not donate right-of-way for widening and would oppose condemnation. They argued that Ballas should not be a major highway and was good enough as it is for a local road.

The county decided to proceed with the 60-foot plan chiefly because that width is enough for present needs and the additional right-of-way can be obtained more cheaply than for the 80-foot plan. The section covered by the present proceeding stops at the railroad instead of Olive Street road, because it is desired to eliminate a jog and extend Ballas straight north. This is part of a proposal to extend Ballas at both ends, providing a 14-mile highway between Big Bend road, Osage Hills and St. Charles road, Pattonville.

Dorsett Road Contract Let.

The County Court has awarded a contract for a 20-foot concrete pavement on Dorsett road, between Link and Fee Fee roads, and on Fee Fee road, between Dorsett and Midland avenue, a distance of 10,032 feet, to the William A. Riley Construction Co., for $63,110.

Advertisements calling for bids in the near future have been published by the County Court for the improvement of the following roads:

Delmar boulevard, University City, 20-foot concrete for 3238 feet, between North and South and Old Bonhomme roads. There already are two 17-foot side strips for two blocks, between North and South and Warder avenue, making a 54-foot roadway. Similar strips will not be provided to the west by the town for the time being because the need has not developed and sewers have not been installed.

Big Bend boulevard, Webster Groves, 20-foot concrete for 2.4 miles, between Wilshusen avenue and the southwestern town limits, at Glendale road. This will provide pavement on Big Bend from Delmar boulevard, University City, to the western end of Webster Groves. Pavement is being completed on Big Bend through Kirkwood, between Denny and Barrett Station roads. It has been proposed to pave this highway also between Webster Groves and Denny road and, with an extension, from Barrett's Station road to Valley Park.

Jennings Station road, 20-foot concrete for 6312 feet, between Florissant road, Jennings, and Hall's Ferry road. This will provide a direct connection with the new Chain of Rocks drive, opened and paved last year, leading to Bellefontaine road and Riverview drive, Chain of Rocks.

Maryland avenue, Clayton, 20-foot concrete from Hanley road to the western town limits, 4331 feet. Maryland becomes Ladue road and the west. There is to be a cutoff from its western end to Forsythe avenue, Clayton.

Ladue road, 20-foot concrete, for 3692 feet between Warson and Denny roads.

Denny road, 20-foot concrete for 3180 feet, from Gravois road, Sappington, to the new State Highway No. 77 at the corner of Sunset Country Club. North of this point No. 77 is Denny road.

Graeser road, 20-foot bituminous surface on stone base, for 6613 feet, between Olive street and Ladue roads.

Condemnation Suit Ordered.

Condemnation proceedings have been ordered by the County Court to eliminate two bad, unpaved stretches of North and South road in Brentwood. One of these is "Dead Man's Curve," a hill with an S-turn, which earned its bad name in the early days of motoring. The new location there will be to the west of the present road and will eliminate the S-turn. It will have a right-of-way, 60 to 100 feet wide, with a 20-foot concrete pavement a quarter of a mile long. Condemnation is required for about 1000 feet. The maximum depth of fill needed is 20 feet.

It is also proposed to straighten the Deer Creek branch of River des Peres, at the Brentwood-Webster Groves boundary, by moving the channel a maximum of 320 feet to the north. A strip, 135 feet wide and 565 long, will be condemned for this. As a result, a bad jog in the road can be eliminated. The new route will be from the present south end of the pavement to a point on Shady avenue, Webster Groves, 140 feet south of the present bridge. A 60-foot right-of-way is required for this. Five frame buildings stand in the way.

A survey is under way preparatory to planning a new concrete pavement on Clayton road, between North and South and Lay roads.

Details of the probable costs of these various improvements have not been prepared. They will be financed by the $10,000,000 county road bond issue of 1928. Much other important road work is being carried out and planned by the county and the State Highway Department in St. Louis County.

19 PLEAD NOT GUILTY IN OHIO IN ALLEGED PRICE-FIXING PLOT

Electrical Employers and Three Union Officers Indicted for Conspiracy.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, O., June 21.—The 19 defendants indicted for an alleged price-fixing conspiracy in the electrical construction business, pleaded not guilty when arraigned today. Sixteen defendants are contractors and three officers of the electricians' union. They are charged with violation of the Ohio Anti-Trust Law.

All were released on bonds of $1000 each. Their attorneys demanded immediate trial and said they would attack the validity of the indictments.

When the indictments were returned, the grand jury reported it had evidence that similar alleged price-fixing conspiracies existed in other trades and recommended that the investigation be continued.

According to Prosecuting-Attorney Miller, the union officers forced the contractors to bid on contracts at fixed prices, that they decided in advance who was to be the successful bidder, choosing by rotation, and thus cost Cleveland builders many thousands of dollars in recent years in excessive charges.

MINNESOTA WOULD PREVENT NORTHERN PACIFIC MERGER

State Rail Board Tells I. C. C. Union With Great Northern Is Against Public Interest.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—A petition filed today with the Interstate Commerce Commission in behalf of the State of Minnesota asks for reopening of the merger case of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific Railroads and withdrawal of the permission which those two corporations now hold for consolidating.

The Minnesota Railroad Commission contends the proposal for organization of the Great Northern Pacific Railway Co., which is intended to acquire control of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific, is against the public interest.

The competitive situation in railroad service throughout the Northwest would be seriously damaged by the merger, the petition proceeds, while, in addition, the possibility of reduction in the number of railroad employes by the merger is said to be "taking from thousands of railroad employes, for false economy's sake, their means of livelihood," at a time "when there is absolutely no rational call or necessity for it."

CHECK ON REPORTED ERRORS IN CENSUS BEGINS TOMORROW

Supervisor's Office to Examine List of Those Said to Have Been Missed.

Census Supervisor Hassall, in charge of the decennial census in St. Louis and St. Louis County, assured Chamber of Commerce officers yesterday that two of his clerks would be assigned, beginning tomorrow, to check data obtained by the chamber in its survey of a cross section of the city, which was undertaken to determine accuracy of the official enumeration.

The chamber has a corps of men listing names of residents in a strip between the river and the city limits. So far, the force has canvassed 48 city blocks, but until the findings are checked against the census records no announcement can be made of the extent to which residents may have been missed by the enumerators.

GOVERNOR GENERAL RESIGNS IN PORTUGUESE WEST AFRICA

Col. Bento Roma Said to Have Quit Post After Recent Difficulties.

By the Associated Press.

LISBON, June 21.—It was reported today that Col. Bento Roma, Governor-General of Portuguese West Africa, had resigned.

The situation in Portuguese West Africa has been disturbed for some time. The outstanding difficulty occurred recently at Loanda, the capital, where Lieut. Moraes Sarmonto, Deputy High Commissioner, was shot during a mutiny. The army was split and much criticism of Portuguese Colonial administration followed.

Many St. Louisans To Join Colonies at New England Resorts

Mrs. G. Hayward Niedringhaus Among Newcomers to Manchester; Newport Season Opens Early.

BOSTON, Mass., June 21.

LATE June finds New England summer resorts anticipating a busy season. North shore estates open earlier each year, and May and even April found some of the houses occupied. By the first of July the social calendar is well under way.

Mrs. G. Hayward Neidringhaus of St. Louis will be among the newcomers to Manchester this summer, as she has taken the house occupied last year by the first secretary of the German Legation, Rudolf Leitner. Mrs. Robert S. Potter of New York, sister of Mrs. Niedringhaus, is also of the Manchester colony having a cottage in the Smith's Point colony.

Col. Edward M. House and family of New York are to return to Manchester, having a house on University Lane.

Mr. and Mrs. Luther Ely Smith and family of St. Louis have taken a cottage on Adams Hill Road, Annisquam, for the season. For many years they have been with Mrs. Smith's mother, the late Mrs. Samuel M. Kennard, a member of the Magnolia colony.

Mrs. Greenfield Sluder of St. Louis is to arrive shortly with her family at The Pines, Annisquam, for the season.

Mrs. Hugh McKittrick Jones and children of Clayton are to spend the summer at Edgewise cottage, Squam Rock Road, Annisquam.

George K. Miltenberger of St. Louis, has taken a studio at Annisquam for the summer. This section of the North Shore entertains a large number of artists from all sections of the country and is noted for its fine art exhibitions. The annual exhibition of the North Shore Arts Club opens at East Gloucester on July 5.

Among early festivities at Harvard commencement were the exercises of Phi Beta Kappa fraternity, whose literary program was given in Sanders Theater, followed by dinner at Harvard Union. Among the seniors who are members of the Harvard Chapter is George Winslow Simpkins of St. Louis.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Roy Joslyn, whose wedding at Chestnut Hill, Boston, was an event of last week, are at home at the Bellerive Country Club in St. Louis. A week of festivities preceded the wedding which took place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Adams. The bride wore her mother's wedding gown of ivory satin and old lace and a tulle veil. A dinner at the Marblehead home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert P. Adams for the two families of the pair and a dinner by Mr. and Mrs. Reed P. Anthony of Boston for the bridal party were among the affairs of the week.

NEWPORT, R. I., June 21.

MANY of the large estates have been occupied for the last month and the Casino, Golf Club and other meeting places have taken on almost midsummer gayety.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel W. Jones of St. Louis have opened their summer home at Portsmouth, near Newport, and last week Mrs. Jones was a luncheon hostess at the Clambake Club.

Rear Admiral and Mrs. William S. Sims, who have spent the winter in Boston, have returned to Newport and opened their house on Catherine street for the season. An event in the family was the birth of a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Hopkins early in June. Admiral and Mrs. Sims are the grandparents. Mrs. Hopkins was Miss Margaret Sims, and is a niece of Mrs. John F. Shepley of St. Louis.

A. L. Abbott of St. Louis is in Providence attending the reunion of the class of 1880 at Brown University, of which he was a member. Of the 30 living graduates, 25 were present at the class dinner and two members who did not graduate joined the party. They were entertained at the University Club at luncheon and later at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry D. Sharpe of Providence. One member of the class came from Japan and another from Porto Rico for the occasion.

Lord and Lady Camoys have come from England with their two daughters to spend the summer at Newport.

WATCH HILL, June 21.

Bradford Shinkle of St. Louis was among the early season visitors to Watch Hill, coming for a few days to look over his summer home and to see that the affairs of the Misquamicut Golf Club of which he is an officer were running smoothly. Later Mr. and Mrs. Shinkle and family will come to their cottage, Meadowcrest, for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Singleton of St. Louis have taken Greycote, a cottage at Watch Hill, for the season.

Parties in Honor of Out-of-Town Guests

FORMER Judge and Mrs. Franklin Ferriss of La Jolla, Cal., who are visiting their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Henry T. Ferriss, 18 Lenox place, will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary this evening at an informal reception to be given by Mr. and Mrs. Henry T. Ferriss at their home. About 50 close friends of the guests of honor have been invited to call between 5 and 7 o'clock. Judge and Mrs. Ferriss were married 50 years ago Feb. 10, at St. George's Episcopal Church on Pendleton avenue. They were unable to be in St. Louis Feb. 10, deferring the celebration of the event until today. Judge and Mrs. Ferriss will remain in St. Louis until July 1, when they will depart for Chautauqua, N. Y., for the summer.

Several other parties for out-of-town guests are occupying important places on the week-end social calender. Mr. and Mrs. George Thomas Moore will entertain a group of their friends at a tea this afternoon at their home, 2361 Tower Grove avenue, for their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Gaunt Moore, of Cambridge, Mass., who are visiting them. The guests have been invited for 5 o'clock. A group of Mrs. Moore's friends have been invited to assist, and a number of young matrons, friends of Mr. and Mrs. Moore's daughter, Mrs. Boyle O. Rodes, will serve from the flower bedecked tea table in the dining room. Mr. and Mrs. Moore Jr., will motor East after a few days to spend the summer in Wood's Hole, Mass.

Miss Marian Davis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Lionberger Davis of Brentmoor, is planning a dinner and dancing party tomorrow night in honor of her guests, Miss Elizabeth Frothingham of Glen Cove, L. I., and Miss Mary Carson of Williamsport, Pa., classmates of their hostess at Vassar College. Miss Frothingham has been here several days. Miss Cameron arrived yesterday. They will depart Tuesday for their homes.

Miss Florence Rock of Bayside, L. I., is being much entertained as the guest of Miss Elizabeth Ferguson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John David Ferguson, 6325 Washington boulevard. Mrs. Ferguson and her daughter gave an informal tea for 40 of their friends yesterday to meet the visitor, and tonight Miss Ferguson will give a buffet supper at the Glen Echo Country Club. Miss Katherine Koerber, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Koerber of Hampton Park, will be hostess at a dinner and opera party Tuesday night and Friday night Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sullivan and their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Sullivan will entertain at dinner at the Frank Sullivan home on the Berry road. There will be two luncheons, one by Miss Marian Bischoff Tuesday, another by Miss Anne Sipple Thursday at the St. Louis Country Club.

MRS. CHRISTOPHER A. DALTON JR., a bride of June 14, who was Miss Eleanor Holt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Holt Jr. —Schweig.

MRS GEORGE H. McMANUS JR., formerly Miss Marie Louise Hornsby, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Hornsby. She was married June 17. —Schweig

MRS. WALTER L. METCALFE, who was until her marriage, June 17, Miss Carol Conde Crowe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Crowe. —Schweig.

Engagement of H. M. Aloe And Miss Emma Adler

MR. AND MRS. CHARLES W. ADLER, Cincinnati, O., announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Emma Margaret Adler, and Harry Marx Aloe, son of Mr. and Mrs. David B. Aloe of the Congress Hotel. The wedding will take place in the fall.

Miss Adler is a graduate of Wellesley College and has traveled abroad extensively. She is now in St. Louis as the guest of Mrs. Emil Nathan Jr. Mr. Aloe is a graduate of Tome College, Fort Deposit, Md., and is a member of the Westwood Country and Criterion clubs.

Mrs. Trifon von Schrenk, 8116 Milan avenue, and her daughter, Betty, have gone to Cincinnati to visit Mrs. Norvell Werner of St. Louis, who has just organized the Cincinnati Sebago Club, similar to the St. Louis Sebago Club organized by his brother, Matt Werner.

Mrs. Hermann von Schrenk, 4906 McPherson avenue, who with Dr. von Schrenk, has been traveling in Europe for several months, is now in Paris for a month. Dr. von Schrenk is in Berlin where his wife will join him in July. They will return home in August.

SUMMER TRAVELERS AND GUESTS

MRS. CHARLES PARSONS PETTUS, 33 Westmoreland place, and her daughters, Miss Martha and Miss Mary Pettus, will spend next month at Teepee Lodge, Sheridan, Wyo., departing Friday. They will go to Southampton, L. I., in August to be guests of Mrs. Pettus' brother, Thomas H. Wright, and Mrs. Wright, 46 Portland place, at their cottage.

Mrs. H. Blaskley Collins, 50 Portland place, will leave early next week for Kennebunkport, Me., where she has taken a cottage for the summer. She will be joined late in July by her daughter, Mrs. Henry M. Cook, 4 North Kingshighway, and her young daughter.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Wright, 46 Portland place, are in New London, Conn., where they attended the Yale-Harvard regatta held last week. With them are Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Byers of Pittsburg, Pa., who have been entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Wright at their summer home at Watch Hill, R. I.

Mrs. Lloyd P. Wells, 4456 Maryland avenue, and her family will spend the summer at Northport Point, Mich., where Mrs. Wells has taken a cottage. They will depart Thursday. At the same resort will be Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hall Knight, 320 North Union boulevard, and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence O. Gamble, 5327 Waterman avenue, and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas K. Smith, 23 Kingsbury place.

Mrs. George Whitman Updike of the Kings-Way Hotel will depart late this month for Chautauqua, N. Y., to spend the summer. Miss Laura Perry of the Kings-Way Hotel, will also spend the summer at Chautauqua.

Miss Marian Davis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Lionberger Davis of Brentmoor, is entertaining Miss Elizabeth Frothingham of Glencove, L. I., and Miss Mary Carson of Williamsport, Pa., who will remain in St. Louis a fortnight. Among the parties to be given in their honor will be a dinner dance tomorrow evening which Miss Davis will give at her parents' home.

Early Summer Weddings

THE wedding of Miss Emma May Dorris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Preston Dorris, 4904 Fountain place, and Harold Howard Giger, son of Harvey Milton Giger, Elmdale, Kan., took place at 8:30 o'clock last night at Kingshighway Presbyterian Church. The Rev. Dr. Arnold H. Lowe performed the ceremony before a candle-lighted altar garlanded with greenery and banked with ferns and palms.

The bride was preceded to the altar by Miss Madeleine Closs as maid of honor and by Miss Marcella Chapman, Mrs. Albert Kurrus, Mrs. William Mansfield and Mrs. Paul F. Keatinge, Chicago. William Berman was best man and the ushers were Bartlett Adams, William Mansfield, Thomas O. Tarrant, Thomas Gebhart and Preston and Krenniing Doris, brothers of the bride.

The bride's attendants wore point d'esprit vailing crepe de chine to match; Miss Closs in canary yellow and the bridesmaids in green. The gowns were made with long circular skirts trimmed with four circular ruffles. The bodices were designed with V necks and small capes over the shoulders. Velvet ribbon to harmonize with the frocks encircled the waists. The flowers were yellow roses and daisies.

The bride wore cream colored satin, fashioned on close fitting princesse lines to the hips, where the long circular skirt was attached in points. A collar of old family lace adorned the bodice and there were long satin sleeves. A satin train fell from the bodice points. A wired coronet of lace held in place the tulle train, bordered with deep lace bands. She carried lilies of the valley and wore a strand of pearls, the gift of the bridegroom.

Mr. Giger gave his groomsmen silver belt buckles and watch clasps. The bride presented her attendanst with pearl and crystal necklaces.

Following the ceremony a small reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. The receiving line stood before the mantel in the living room which was banked with spring flowers. The dining room was decorated with pink and white blossoms, with the wedding cake forming the centerpiece of the table.

Mr. and Mrs. Giger will spend their honeymoon in Colorado Springs, Colo., and will take possession of their apartment on Cabanne avenue on their return.

The bride is a graduate of Washington University and is a member of Pi Beta Phi sorority. Mr. Giger is a graduate of the University of Kansas and is a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity.

The marriage of Miss Charlotte O'Gorman, daughter of Mrs. Clemence O'Gorman, 2502 Florent avenue, to Edward Hanson, son of N E. Hanson, 4208A Lawn avenue, took place at 8 o'clock Wednesday morning at the Immaculate Conception Church with the Rev. P. J. Ryan officiating.

The bride wore a gown of ivory satin made on princesse lines with long sleeves. The veil of tulle was fastened to the hair with a cap of lace and small sprays of orange blossoms. She carried an arm bouquet of Angelus roses and lilies of the valley. The bridesmaid was Miss Vivian O'Gorman, a sister of the bride. She wore a frock of rose net over pale pink taffeta, made with a tight bodice and flared skirt trimmed with a flat tier of the net. Large bows of rose satin tied in the back with streamers reached to the hemline of the long skirt. She wore a large hat of blue hairbraid with slippers to match and carried an arm bouquet of Joanna Hill roses and blue delphinium.

After a wedding breakfast at the home of the bride's mother, Mr. and Mrs. Hanson departed for a short honeymoon. They will be at home at 7931 Lorrance avenue on their return.

Early Summer Weddings

yesterday at the home of her uncle, Louis Moller, Clifton Heights, to Charles Carl of East St. Louis. Mr. and Mrs. Carl will be at home after Aug. 1 at their new home on North Park drive, East St. Louis.

The marriage of Miss Sarah Lee Budowsky, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. Budowsky of Dumright, Ok., to David Bluestein, June 15, at the Jewish Old Folks Home. The ceremony was performed in the evening, with Rabbi Halpern officiating in the presence of the immediate families and friends after which a dinner and dance were held. The altar was decorated with ferns and all flowers of the summer.

Miss Margaret Budowsky was maid of honor for her sister, and wore a gown of lace and tulle. She carried an arm bouquet of pink roses. Milton Bluestein, brother of the groom was the best man.

The bride wore a gown of white satin. Her veil of filmy illusion caught to her hair in a cap of lace. She carried white roses and lilies of the valley arranged in a shower bouquet, and wore a necklace of pearls.

Mrs. M. J. Sass, of Springfield, Mo., sister of the bridegroom, was matron of honor. The bridesmaids were the Miss Edna Shramm, Miss Ethel Budowsky, Miss Ruth Radloff, and Miss Margaret Pearlmutter, of Chicago. They wore dresses of rainbow colcrs and shoes to match.

The groomsmen were Julius Budowsky, brother of the bride, Dave Rudloff, William Shramm and Harry Budowsky of Chicago.

Yetta Glen, cousin of the bride and Maurine Rothman were the flower girls. Vellie Wittles acted as the train bearer, and Jerry Wittles as ring bearer.

The bride is a graduate of Drumright High School and attended Washington University. Following a honeymoon trip to Chicago and Detroit, Mr. Bluestein and his wife will reside in St. Louis.

The marriage of Miss Etta Friedman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Friedman of 5832 Page boulevard, to Morry A. Rosenbaum, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. Rosenbaum, 4167 Shaw boulevard, took place Sunday evening, June 8, in the crystal room of Hotel Jefferson with Rabbi A. L. Halpern officiating.

The bride was attended by Mrs. Louis Goodmana, sister of the bridegroom as matron of honor, and by Miss Ida Friedman, sister of the bride, as maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Miss Mary Berger and Miss Thelma Winterman, Miss Betty Jean Sophir, a niece of the bridegroom, was flower girl, and Leonard Bernstein was ring-bearer.

The bridegroom was attended by his brother, Harry Rosenbaum, as best man, and Louis Goodman, Joseph Friedman and Harry Weiser as groomsmen. Mr. Rosenbaum and his bride, who are spending their honeymoon in New York and Philadelphia, will return to St. Louis the first part of July.

The engagement of Miss Sue Madden, daugher of Mr. and Mrs. D. Madden, 536 North Nineteenth, East St. Louis, Ill., to Charles H. Sandler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Sandler of 4709 Vernon avenue, will be anounced this evening at a dinner given in their honor at the home of Miss Madden.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Darevsky, 5633 Easton avenue, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Ida Darevsky, and Nathan Kravitz, 1455 Clara avenue, June 15, at the Kings-Way Hotel. A reception followed the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Mollencott, 4914 Terry avenue, announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Neola Frances, to Alfred S. McKenzie at a bridge tea given for 32 guests at her home yesterday afternoon.

Announcement was made last week of the engagement of Miss Mignon Kopolow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Kopolow, 6219 San Bonita avenue, to Sidney I. Siteman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Siteman, 5721 Labadie avenue. The wedding will take place this summer.

Miss Madelyn Klinedinst, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Noah Klinedinst, 4623 Carrie avenue, became the bride of William Paul Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Beverly Brown, 5719 Kansas street at 9 o'clock yesterday morning at St. Englebert's Church, the Rev. Albert Von Brunn officiating.

The altar was decorated with palms and ferns and vases of Briarcliffe roses, lavender larkspur and white phlox. The wedding party passed through an aisle marked by palms and standards of the same kind of flowers that decorated the altar. The bride was attended by Miss Helen Sander and Miss Katherine McAuliff. Joseph Moloney was best man and Cyril Cantwell was groomsman for Mr. Brown. Rosemary Snyder and Marjorie Busman were flower girls and the bride's young brother, Lloyd Klinedinst, was ring bearer.

The bride wore a gown of white satin made princesse with a long train. Her veil was of tulle and lace held in place by orange blossoms and she carried orchids and lilies of the valley. The bridesmaids wore gorwns of peach toned taffeta and tulle with hats of natural hairbraid. They carried Joanna Hill roses. The flower girls were in frocks of peach colored taffeta and carried baskets of sweetheart roses, delphinium and baby's breath.

Following a honeymoon in Canada Mr. Brown and his bride will live at 5517 North Kingshighway.

Activities of Women's Clubs

MISS FRANCES CUMMINGS, educational secretary of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, will be the guest of Miss Martha Connole, legislative chairman of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs June 28 to July 3.

Miss Cummings is coming to speak at the educational meeting of the Business and Professional Women's Club of St. Louis on June 30 at 6:30 p. m. at the Town Club.

Miss Grace Kinney, local chairman of the educational committee is in charge of the program and other entertainment for Miss Cummings. Members of the St. Louis Club will attend a dinner on Sunday evening with Miss Cummings as guest at St. Alban, Mo. On Saturday evening Miss Cummings will be the guest of the Business and Professional Women's Club at the municipal opera.

Miss Cummings' purpose is to guide the educational chairman of the local club in arranging and expending the established scholarship fund.

The West End Woman's Republican Club will hold a mass meeting Wednesday evening at 7:15 p. m., at the Forest Park hotel.

Judge Charles W. Holtcamp has been invited by the president, Mrs. J. Edwin Allen, to serve as master of ceremonies. The program will consist of brief speeches and music, directed Mrs. Clara E. Thomas. The public may attend. Members of the executive board will serve on the reception committee.

Meetings of the club will be suspended until the fall season.

Athena Delphian Chapter held its last meeting of the season at the home of Miss Rosalie Nutt, 5948 De Giverville avenue, Wednesday evening, June 11 and elected its officers for the coming year: Mrs. Ione T. Gilmore, president; Miss Ann Knickman, vice president; Miss Ann Gerock, secretary; Miss Lida W. Collins, treasuref; Mrs. W. C. McNutt, chairman of advisory board. This chapter will resume its study of poetry and music early in September, beginning with "Wordsworth and Coleridge."

The fifteenth annual picnic of the Monroe Parent-Teacher Association will be held Thursday, June 26, at Carondelet Park, picnic grounds number three. Mrs. L. Otto is chairman of the arrangements.

The board of the University City League of Women Voters gave a luncheon for the retiring president of the University League, Mrs. W. J. Dick, Thursday at Pine Tree Inn. Those attending included the incoming president, Mrs. J. O. Price, Mrs. Emilt P. Williams, Mrs. W. E. Barker, Mrs. E. W. Swingley, Mrs. William J. Abbott and Mrs. A. B. Crowe.

A luncheon honoring Mrs. Edward Thurman Smith, retiring vice president for Missouri, of the National League of American Pen Women, was given at the Westborough Country Club, Friday. Sixty women were present and Mrs. J. Leyden White, president of the St. Louis branch, presided. A program arranged by Mrs. H. Langdon Brown, was opened with a piano number by Mrs. Verner Sharp. "Memories," a play by Mrs. Brown, with a cast composed of Miss Betsy Dee Mason, Miss Irene Miller, Miss Katherine Queal, Miss Lucy Queal and Miss Charlotte McFarland, members of the Junior Artisans, followed. Mrs. Harold Cross read an original story and Mrs. Carl Hoffman told of the use of music in the hospitals of St. Louis, illustrating her talk with selections on the violin.

To Mrs. Smith was given a pair of book ends in the form of the emblem of the National League of American Pen Women in appreciation of her work for the league.

The Women's Councils of the Christian Churches of St. Louis and St. Louis County will meet Tuesday at 10:30 a. m. at the Union Avenue Christian Church, Union and Enright avenues. Mrs. Jesse M. Bader of Indianapolis, will talk on the Prayer Chapel of the International Christian Church in Washington, D. C., to be dedicated this fall.

On Monday night, at the Brownsom Hotel in Maplewood, the Business and Professional Women's Club of St. Louis County, will celebrate its second anniversary. New officers will be installed at a dinner meeting. The newly elected officers are: Mrs. Nora F. Coats, president; Mrs. Blanche Shipman, vice president; Mrs. Maudie Whitfield, treasurer; Miss Lucy McElhinney, recording secretary, and Miss Lotus Foval, corresponding secretary.

To Address Women's Ad Club.

Joseph P. Licklider, president of the Advertising Club of St. Louis, will address the Women's Advertising Club at their meeting at Hotel Statler tomorrow noon.

EAST ST. LOUIS SOCIAL NOTES

MISS GRACE TAGGART.
Niece of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Harper, 723 North Twenty-fourth street, East St. Louis, whose marriage to Benjamin F. Romberger, Abilene, Kan., took place yesterday afternoon.

MISS GRACE TAGGART, niece of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Harper, 723 North Twenty-fourth street, and Benjamin F. Romberger, Abilene, Kan., were married yesterday afternoon at Hotel Chase in St. Louis. The Rev. Frank L. Eversull performed the ceremony.

The wedding came as a surprise to the guests assembled for luncheon. Announcement of the engagement was made, shortly after which Miss Taggart and Mr. Romberger slipped out of the room to re-enter while a wedding march was being played.

The bride was attired in a blue chiffon frock and carried an arm bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley. She was attended by Miss Helen Fitzsimmons as maid of honor. Miss Fitzsimmons wore a flowered chiffon crock and a corsage of gardenias. Joseph McHase, Chicago, attended the groom.

Following the ceremony the pair left for Lambert Field, where they left by airplane for Chicago to spend two months.

Miss Taggart was graduated from the University of Illinois and is a member of Alpha Gamma Delta Sorority. She also is a member of the Junior Service League, College Club and for the last year has been a member of the faculty of the local high school.

Mr. Romberger also was graduated from the University of Illinois and is a member of the High School faculty.

The guests at the luncheon and wedding were: Mr. and Mrs. Lacy Leinert, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Leinert, Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Eversull, Dr. and Mrs. C. S. Skaggs, Miss Helen Fitzsimmons, Miss Lorraine Marchand, Miss Winifred Halpin, Miss Margaret Campbell, Miss Maude Rae Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Kent, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Kent Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Robert Barr, Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Tolson, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Cline, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bullock, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Daniel, Mrs. Ella Moore, Mrs. Sally Logan, Mrs. Cora Rollo, Mrs. A. R. Carter, Mrs. Mary Wall, Miss Nina Blue, Miss Fanny Elise Tolson and John Alexander, Murphysboro, Ill., Miss Benetta Billington, Wickliffe, Ky.; Miss Virginia Payne, Cairo, Ill.; Miss Orine Rendell, St. Louis; Dr. and Mrs. C. F. Harmon, Springfield, Ill.; Mrs. George Braun, Abilene, Kan.; Mrs. T. C. Thomson and Mrs. Lois E. Wiley, Kansas City, Mo.; Mrs. Mark E. Noblitt, Englewood, Cal.; Mrs. Katherine McClintock and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Elliot, Jackson, Tenn.; Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Montieth, Campbell Hill, Ill.; Joseph McHase, Chicago; Ray Walton, Vernon, Ill.; Henry Portica, Chicago; Robert McClintock and S. L. Montieth Jr., St. Louis.

Miss Martha McQuilkin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. McQuilkin, 4015 Lincoln avenue, will depart July 1 for California to spend the summer.

Miss Mary Zeigler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Zeigler, 556 North Twelfth street, and Harry B. Hoffman, Peoria, Ill., were married at 8 o'clock last evening at First Methodist Episcopal Church. The Rev. O. L. Markham officiated.

The bride wore a gown of white laces fashioned along princesse lines with puffed sleeves. The gown was finished with a deep flounce of net which formed a train. Her long veil was held in place by a cap of the same kind of lace as her gown. She wore long white gloves and carried a bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley.

Miss Dorothy Elliot, Chicago, was maid of honor. She wore an orchid georgette frock, the ankle length skirt being made of two deep flounces. She carried a large bouquet of Pernet roses.

Mrs. Harry Zeigler, Miss Virginia Herman and Miss Charlotte Gauer, Chicago, were bridesmaids. Their frocks were of similar design, Mrs. Zeigler's frock being light green chiffon and Miss Herman and Miss Gauer wore apricot colored georgette. They carried arm bouquets of Talisman roses.

Mary Claire Halpin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Halpin, was flower girl. She was dressed in pink point d'esprit and carried a small bouquet. Bobbie Lee Nowland, son of Cecil Nowland, was ringbearer.

Corliss Anderson, Chicago, served as best man and Arthur Zeigler, New York City, and Harry Zeigler, brothers of the bride, and Carlyle Hittle, Peoria, Ill., were groomsmen. Samuel Jenkins, Shelbyville, Ill., and John Thomason, Onarga, Ill., were ushers.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. Mr. and Mrs. Hoffman have departed on their honeymoon. They will reside in Peoria, Ill.

Miss Frances Harper departed last week for New York City, where she will spend several days before going to Chicago, where she has accepted a position.

Miss Leonore Livesay, 1632 North Forty-fifth street, will leave this week for Cleveland, O., for a visit of several weeks.

Mrs. John M. Sullivan, 538 North Fourteenth street, is in Denver, Colo. She will return July 1.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Harper, 723 North Twenty-fourth street, entertained at dinner at the Castilla in St. Louis Friday evening. The guests were out-of-town guests for the Romberger-Taggart wedding.

Mrs. Emmet P. Griffin of the Broadview Hotel was hostess to her bridge club at luncheon at the hotel Tuesday afternoon. The guests were Mrs. Alex Wilson, Mrs. William L. Hanson, Mrs. Jo Bowman, Mrs. William Nester, Mrs. O. E. Schaeffer, Mrs. Lawrence E. May, Mrs. John Thomas and Miss Harriet Ann Sullivan.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Lillian Mary Edmond, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Edmond, 1407 North Thirty-first street, to Edward Kerr Hutton, Winsted, Conn. The wedding will take place in October. Miss Edmond is at present in New York with the Harry Girard Singing Ensemble.

Miss Winnifred Willoughby of North Thirteenth street is visiting her sister in Fort Wayne, Ind. From there she will go to New York City to attend the summer session at Columbia University.

Mrs. Edna Potts of the Beulah Club returned yesterday from Asheville, N. C., where she spent five weeks with her son-in-law and daughter Mr. and Mrs. Robert Monteith Caine.

Sigma Epsilon Sorority Meeting.

Sigma Epsilon Sorority will hold its convention from Sunday to Friday at the Hotel Jefferson. The convention will open this morning with the registration of delegates. Sunday at noon a tea and reception will be held and a bridge party will be held Wednesday afternoon at Hotel Jefferson. The final meeting of the convention is scheduled for Thursday morning, but the delegates will not leave until Friday.

Wedding of Miss O'Toole

The wedding of Miss Josephine O'Toole, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George O'Toole, 6330 San Bonita avenue, and William Aristides George, son of P. D. George, 3311 Hawthorne boulevard, took place at 9:30 o'clock Wednesday morning at St. Luke's Church, the Rev. Joseph McMahon, officiating. The bride was attended by Miss Mary George, sister of the bridegroom as maid of honor and Miss Marian Collins, Miss Bernice Smith, Miss Alice Nobel and Miss Helen George as bridesmaids. Patricia and Betty Slattery were flower girls. Mr. George was attended by David Livingston as best man; John Kielly, Eugene Tichacek, Walter George and George O'Toole Jr., as groomsmen, and Jack Plunkert and Paul George as ushers.

The bride's gown of pearl satin was made on princesse lines with a square neck line and long sleeves of rose point lace. There were two short trains on either side of the skirt and a longer circular train. The bride wore a veil of ivory tulle attached to a cap of rose point lace and carried a fan-shaped bouquet of lilies of the valley.

Miss Mary George wore shell pink chiffon and lace and a hat of pink hairbraid. She carried spring flowers. Miss Helen George wore green mousseline de soie; Miss Collins was in orchid net and lace; Miss Smith's costume was of yellow lace and Miss Noble was in blue point d'esprit. All wore lace mitts and hats to match their frocks and carried spring flowers. The flower girls wore frocks of peach colored tulle.

The bridal party passed through an aisle marked by tall lighted cathedral tapers to the altar which was adorned with lilies against palms and ferns and illuminated by ivory tapers.

Kirkwood

MISS MARGARET BURGESS of Pana, Ill., has been the guest of her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Leet, 607 South Kirkwood road, and is being entertained at several informal affairs.

Miss Jane and Miss Katherine Barnes, 929 West Big Bend road, and their uncle, Gerry H. Barnes, are making a month's tour of the West Coast resorts. They will visit Grand Canyon, Yosemite National Park, Hollywood, Seattle, Vancouver, B. C. Banff and Lake Louise.

Mrs. A. B. Boyer, 520 South Clay avenue, and Mrs. Louis P. Wingert of Clayton, were hostesses at a tea at the home of Mrs. Boyer, Tuesday afternoon, in compliment to Mrs. A. M. Russell and Mrs. Frank Selinger of Webster Groves who will depart in the near future with their families to live in New York. Mrs. Russell and Mrs. Selinger also were guests of honor at a dinner party given Tuesday at Bevo Mill by Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Switzer, 3 Forest Ridge.

Mrs. F. M. Gibson of Hot Springs, Ark., is the guest of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John Gano Bryan, 521 Scott avenue. Mrs. Bryan's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Gibson of Cleveland, O., have taken the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Walker, 316 North Taylor avenue, for the summer months. Mr. and Mrs. Walker and their daughter, Isabel, and their son, Joseph, will spend the summer at Champaign, Ill.

William Vincent Byars, 425 North Taylor avenue, celebrated his seventy-third birthday anniversary yesterday afternoon at his home with an informal reception of friends and former business associates. He recently returned home from St. Luke's Hospital where he was confined several months following a serious accident. One of his visitors was Walter B. Stevens, his first city editor. Among the congratulatory messages was one from Alfred J. Stofer, veteran Washington correspondent who worked in the early eighties with him on the old Missouri Republican.

On June 13, the Osage Hills Garden Club held a flower show at the home of the president, Mrs. C. L. Cox. The member's displays were judged by W. A. Rowe, horticulturist. In the evening the club held a reception for residents of the community.

Blue, white, yellow and special merit ribbons were awarded to displays as follows: Single specimens, Mrs. J. H. Williams, blue; Mrs. W. S. Fitzroy, white; and Mrs. Hupp Tevis Jr., yellow.

Collection of six, Mrs. J. H. Williams, blue; Dr. T. J. Walo, white; and Mrs. Grace Osborne, yellow.

Basket arrangements, Mrs. J. H. Williams, blue; Mrs. T. J. Brown, white; and Mrs. F. de Suza, yellow.

Center pieces, Mrs. C. L. Cox, blue; Mrs. Hupp Tevis Jr., white; and Mrs. R. S. Baker, yellow.

Hall decorations, Mrs. C. L. Cox, blue; Mrs. Grace Osborne, white; and Mrs. Hupp Tevis Jr., yellow.

Wild flowers, baskets, Mrs. Grace Osborne, blue; and Mrs. J. H. Williams, white.

Dressing table decorations, Mrs. J. H. Williams, blue; and Mrs. G. F. Seaver, white.

Special merits were awarded as follows: Wall pockets, Mrs. M. J. Hunt; breakfast tray, Mrs. W. J. Power; tea for two, Mrs. W. S. Fitzroy; luncheon table, Mrs. R. E. Graves; luncheon for two in grandmother's day, Mrs. C. L. Cox; garden collection, Dr. T. J. Walo; rock garden, miniature, Mrs. C. L. Cox; and aquarium, Mrs. J. M. Ebeling.

Mrs. Anna M. Mitchell and her son, Darragh, have moved to Webster Groves for the summer months where they have an apartment in the Rockwood Court. Mrs. Mitchell is building a new home on the site of her former home at Bodley and Kirkwood road, and it will be ready for occupancy early in September.

Mrs. Ida Brunner, 336 West Madison, with her daughters, Laura and Frances, have gone to Bay View, Mich., to spend the summer at their cottage. While they are away Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Akerley of Philadelphia will occupy the Brunner home on Madison avenue.

Miss Virginia Orrick, 418 North Taylor avenue, departed Monday for Springfield, Ill., where she will be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. James Brown Hitt at their country home.

Miss Lillian Herron, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Herron, 307 North Dickson road, departed Wednesday for Springfield, Mo., to spend three weeks with relatives.

Mrs. R. J. Compton, 405 East Adams avenue, will depart this week for a visit with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. David Carter Cummings of Shreveport, La.

Mr. and Mrs. Curt Gallenkamp of East Washington avenue are expected home this week from a motor trip of three weeks through the South. They spent a fortnight at Dallas, Tex., as guests of Mr. Gallenkamp's mother, Mrs. Alice Gallenkamp.

Mr. and Mrs. John S. McMillan, 404 East Jefferson avenue, and their children will depart this week for Cape Girardeau, Mo., to make their future home.

Mrs. Roy Chamberlin of Kansas City and her daughter, Claire, arrived last week to spend a month with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Gould, 401 South Kirkwood road.

Mrs. Vance Saylor, 335 North Kirkwood road, entertained Thursday afternoon at a luncheon in compliment to her sister, Miss Elizabeth Lewis of Fayetteville, Ark., who is her guest for a few weeks. Mrs. Sailor's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur T. Lewis, and two other daughters, Virginia and Louise, are also spending a short time with their son-in-law and daughter.

The Kirkwood Choral Club is sponsoring a card party to be given tomorrow evening at the High School Auditorium. Mrs. George S. Jackman and Miss Sallie Hardeman Crosby are in charge of the affair.

Choral Club Ends Rehearsals.

The Bel Canto Choral Club last week held its final meeting rehearsal for the season. Social meetings will be held throughout the summer. For next season, beginning in September, the following officers have been elected: President, Mrs. R. Turner; vice president, Mrs. W. Hawtin; recording secretary, Mrs. A. W. Dubach; corresponding secretary, Mrs. L. A. Gunther; treasurer, Mrs. P. Busach; librarian, Miss S. Albers; auditor, Mrs. L. Kellar; official board, Mrs. D. Todd, Mrs. I. Kinder, Mrs. L. Aldridge; voice committee, Mrs. A. W. Kirby, Mrs. A. Lynnroth, Mrs. V. Gillian; director, Prof. Wade O. Fallert.

Improvement Federation Meeting.

Miss Mathilda Gecks, district superintendent of public schools, and John F. Green, chairman of the tax committee of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, will be the principal speakers at the monthly meeting of the Federation of Improvement Associations at 12:15 p. m. Friday at the Hotel Jefferson.

Class Piano Recital Tomorrow.

Miss Lillie Rose Gavin, 4119 Page avenue, will present her piano and voice pupils in a recital at Baldwin Hall, 1111 Locust street, tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock.

Time for the TRUTH about Washing Machines!

Announcing the new DEXTER Fastwin

IN spite of much washer advertising to the contrary, the truth is, that in order to keep clothes permanently free from "that all-over grayish tinge" and "that harsh feel"—it is absolutely necessary to either use chemicals—or boil the clothes—or run them through "two successive suds."

Good Housekeeping Institute and other authorities advocate the latter method—"two successive suds"—as being even better than soaking and boiling.

Boiling is not, of course, convenient with any type of washer, and there is only one washer in the world with which the superior "two successive suds" method is thoroughly convenient—that washer is the sensational new

DEXTER Fastwin

See a Demonstration

The DEXTER CO. Fairfield Iowa

1 Even for a small washing the Dexter "Fastwin" saves handling at least one tub of water, and saves time and effort, as compared with any single-tub washer properly used.

2 The Dexter "Fastwin" can wash properly at least twice as much clothing per hour (including all operations from hamper to line) as any single-tub washer made.

3 Only by the "2 suds" washing method (which is thoroughly convenient only with the Dexter "Fastwin"), can that "grayish tinge" and that "harsh feel" be kept out of clothes month after month without soaking or boiling.

4 The Dexter "Fastwin" thus offers a very substantial and easily demonstrated advantage over any single-tub washer that is, or ever can be built—even though the Dexter Company builds the finest of single-tub washers also.

5 Builders of fine washers for more than a quarter century, the Dexter Company originated the double-tub type of washer 16 years ago, and the first one ever made is still in weekly use.

6 More than 100,000 delighted users say they could never again be satisfied with any mere single-tub washer.

Dexters can be purchased on convenient Terms

Low Priced DEXTER Speedex

Although the Dexter Fastwin is more convenient, more thorough and faster than any single-tub washer, there is, nevertheless, a demand for a really dependable and good looking single-tub washer at a very low price. For women who are willing to do the extra work which is necessary with any single-tub washer in order to keep clothes free from grayness the Dexter Company builds the Dexter Speedex, which offers utmost mechanical perfection, plus the colorful beauty of an outside nickel finish, plus the efficiency of a submerged agitator combined with a round-bottom tub—all at a rock-bottom price. Also available with beautiful porcelain tub.

Jack Ryan, St. Louis Humorist, in New Programs on KSD Press Syndicate to Build Four 10,000-Watt, Long Wave Stations to Send News by Radio to Newspapers—Beatrice Belkin to Sing at Metropolitan Opera—KSD's Transmitter on Air Eight Years.

JACK RYAN.

A new KSD feature, beginning tomorrow and running every Monday, Thursday and Saturday night, from 10 to 10:15 o'clock, will feature Jack Ryan, whose humorous stories have won him fame as a banquet speaker all over the country. The program will be called the "St. Louis Dairy—Jack Ryan" series.

Ryan is a native St. Louisan. He began as a bellboy at the old Southern Hotel in 1889. In this capacity he met many of the prominent men of the time—statesmen, actors, baseball players, musicians—who made the Southern their headquarters in St. Louis. Ryan became well acquainted with Presidents Cleveland, McKinley and Roosevelt. He was on intimate terms with Edwin Booth and Barrett, Comiskey and McGraw, P. S. Gilmore and John Philip Sousa, band masters, and many other old-timers of greater or lesser fame.

In 1897 Ryan went to New York to work at the Holland House. In 1904 he was back at the Southern again, entertaining the celebrities who came to see the World's Fair. From 1908 to 1916 he was again in New York, then for a couple of years he was attached to the staff of the president of the Wabash Railroad, getting much business for the company by calling on large shippers and telling them his droll stories. During the war he was called back to New York, but in 1920 he returned to St. Louis to make his home here.

He gets his stories from everywhere. Many of them are original, comical tales of incidents built up from things and persons he sees in daily life. Many stories, too, are told him by well-known friends, among them George M. Cohan. So great is Ryan's reputation that he is being constantly invited to banquets all over the country to brighten the occasions with his wit.

As a dialect impersonator, Ryan is hardly less famous.

His imitation of a German is so clever that one old woman who heard him insisted that, despite his said Irish ancestry, there must be some German blood in him. He can do as well when imitating a Scotchman, and, of course, an old-time Mick.

AN EXPERIMENT of significance has been authorized by the Federal Radio Commission in granting to the American Radio News Corporation, a Hearst subsidiary, a permit to build four high powered long wave radio stations for transmitting signals to operate multiple printers in newspaper offices 250 to 500 miles distant.

The Hearst organization will erect four 10,000-watt stations, operating on 95 and 99 kilocycles, at New Rochelle, N. Y. (A suburb of New York City): Atlanta, Ga.; Chicago and San Francisco. The stations will send out news reports which will be picked up by special aerials and receivers in newspaper offices that are connected to automatic printing machines.

This method of news transmission parallels the development of radio facsimile services, and may in time largely replace the leased wire system now used by news associations and newspapers for gathering news.

By means of facsimile radio reproduction, of the same general character as that used by the New York Evening World in experiments at Atlantic City during the recent radio trade show, it is expected that ultimately it will be possible to transmit whole pages of newspapers from city to city and reproduce them.

Sentiment in the Federal Radio Commission appears to favor increasing the power of KGO, Oakland, Cal., to 50,000 watts for use on the same channel of 790 kilocycles on which it now operates with 10,000 watts simultaneously with the 50,000 watt WGY, Schenectady, N. Y. General Electric, which owns both stations, is reported to be willing to try the experiment of operating two 50,000 watters an the same channel. Such a test would determine, of course, the feasibility of duplicating superpowered stations on a wave length.

A project in importance in the opening up of Asia to the outside world is expected to result in the erection of a chain of 10 radio telegraph stations in Tibet and Outer and Inner Mongolia.

An orchestra to be known as the Anheuser-Busch Sparklers, led by "Mike" Child, is to broadcast over KMOX every night from 10:30 to 11 o'clock, beginning July 1. The orchestra will include 13 musicians playing 33 instruments. Woody Klose will be the announcer, as

New Radio Serial On NBC Network Six Nights a Week

Phillips H. Lord of 'Seth Parker' Fame and Arthur Allen in Chief Roles.

"Uncle Abe and David," a radio serial which will portray the daily happenings in the lives of two rural characters who are in partnership as owners of a general store in Skowhegan, Maine, will begin tomorrow night.

The new program will be broadcast every night, except Sunday, through an Eastern network of NBC stations, including WEAF, from 4:45 to 5 p. m. The program will be repeated for Midwest listeners at 9:15 p. m. KSD will be able to broadcast it on Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday nights.

The series of episodes will be written by Phillips H. Lord, who is better known to radio listeners as the "Seth Parker" of the "Sunday Night at Seth Parker's," which also is broadcast by KSD.

Lord also will play one of the characters and the other will be played by Arthur Allen, known to listeners in the Midwest for his work as "Gus" in the Schradertown Band programs.

Lord, the son of a minister, was born in Vermont and was graduated from Bowdoin College in Maine in 1925. He went to New York determined to get into the magazine business.

One night he heard a radio program with a country setting and immediately realized it was not genuine. He started to write one which he felt was genuine, one built around some neighbors who went to an old fashioned singing school each Sunday. He remembered a little town on the coast of Maine, and he chose Jonesport for the setting and the name "Seth Parker" for the main character. He sold the scripts to the National Broadcasting Co. and soon "Sunday Night at Seth Parker's" had become a favorite Sunday night program.

Allen was born in Gowanda, N. Y., and studied at Oberlin College, Oberlin, O. He became a church organist and an actor in stock before he began broadcasting. Some of his best known roles on the air are "Jeff Peters" in the Re-Told Tales series, "Gus" in the "Schradertown Band," and "David Harum." His rural characterizations in "Soconyland Sketches" are said to be unequalled.

In the opening broadcast tomorrow night "Uncle Abe" and "David" will be seated at the cracker barrel in their country store in Skowhegan, Me., discussing plans for a long deferred vacation to New York, a project they first thought of 25 years before when they became partners.

Ohio River Race Finish On NBC Chain Saturday

The finish of the annual Ohio River steamboat race, as it looks to a person aboard one of the racing packets, will be described for NBC listeners next Saturday. The National Broadcasting Co., in cooperation with WLW, Cincinnati, will broadcast a description of the last half hour of the race between the river steamers Betsy Ann and Tom Greene.

George Hicks, NBC announcer, will be at a microphone in the pilot house of the Tom Greene. His description will be relayed by a short wave transmitter to an NBC network headed by WJZ and to WLW. With Hicks will be Robert Brown, WLW announcer, who described last year's race, in which Tom Greene crossed the finish line only 20 feet ahead of the Betsy Ann.

The race is the climax of an old rivalry between Frederick Way Jr., captain of the Betsy Ann, and Tom Greene, captain of the packet that bears his name. The trophy this year is carved from a timber of the historic Robert E. Lee, record-breaking Mississippi River steamboat.

The race is to be over a 22-mile course upstream. It will begin at 1 o'clock St. Louis time. The network will pick up the story of the race at 3:30 and will continue for 30 minutes. The first 90 minutes of the race will be broadcast by WLW.

The roar of the straining engines, the whistle blasts, the jingle of bells, the cheers of the deckhands and the music of a band aboard the packet will be blended into the announcer's description of the race.

During the race the boats are seldom more than a few yards apart and shouts on one vessel can plainly be heard on the other.

Allie Lowe Miles, who plays Amy, the mother, in the Bon Ami broadcasts over KSD Thursday mornings, has been in many stage productions and screen shows. Bonnie is impersonated by Winifred Toomey, child actress.

Tour of Minnesota Attracts Motorists

Northward-Bound, Route Leads Through Twin Cities Into Lake and River Country Around Brainerd and Bemidji.

By HELEN KIRKSEY.

TO the vagrant motorist, Minnesota, "the land of sky-tinted water," with its 10,000 lakes and as many miles of good roads, offers a variety of attractions. Hills and woods and waters, fashionable summer resort hotels, picturesque tourist camps, hunting and fishing lodges, an impromptu and alluring camp site at every turn of the road—everything—anything! Whether you have a definite objective in Minnesota or are just roving about the mid-continent's playground, or even if you plan to travel into the Black Hills country of South Dakota, every mile you motor in Minnesota will reward you for your choice.

The gateway to the vast vacationland is the Twin Cities—St. Paul and Minneapolis. From St. Louis to the Twin Cities by motor the most direct route is through Iowa, geographically interesting, and, by virtue of the excellent roads, an easy run of two days.

Leaving St. Louis an early dewy morning in June we followed the Chain of Rocks route out of the city past the Chain of Rocks Park, where one tunes in for the great open spaces more readily than by crossing one of the lower bridges and threading the way through the industrial sections. We might have continued on the Missouri side to the Alton bridge but that meant crossing both the Missouri and Mississippi Rivers and it seemed a little early in the day for so much bridge, so we crossed on the Chain of Rocks bridge and took up Illinois State Route 3 through Alton to Jacksonville.

New Paving in Prospect.

At Jacksonville Route 3 turns east, then swings around north and west again to the town of Virginia. It is all paved. But a concrete road straight through to Virginia from Jacksonville is nearing completion and will cut off 18 miles. We followed the new route and had a detour of only five miles, a fair road and a glimpse of real backwoods. It seemed quite worth the mileage saved. The paved road is expected to be open all the way some time in July.

The entire Illinois route to Rock Island is of concrete and through gentle hills and homey farms, and at this time the fields are like brown and green brocaded velvet. It is all colorful and charming and we take back all—well, almost all—of the unkind things we have thought about Illinois scenery or the lack thereof.

At Beardstown we crossed a toll bridge over the Illinois River and continued north to Rock Island where there is another toll bridge across the Mississippi into Davenport, Ia., a city of stately homes and majestic trees.

We followed United States Route 61 north out of Davenport to a place called Dewitt which is on the corner of 61 and the Lincoln Highway, United States 30. We turned west on 30 to Cedar Rapids, about 340 miles from St. Louis, where we stopped for the night. Three hundred and forty miles, as simply achieved as a prolonged drive through a lovely park.

We drove north from Cedar Rapids on routes 30 and 218, leaving the Lincoln Highway about 20 miles out. So this is Iowa! The tall corn country! Iowa under Florida skies, wild roses beside the road and an undulating ribbon of concrete to Waterloo. If you are thirsty at Waterloo, and who wouldn't be, drive up the main street for two blocks past where 218 turns left, and dive into a place called "The Submarine." From the walls, painted the color of tropic seas, florid fish stare a really wall-eyed stare. The lights are sea shells, the tables and counters are mirrors and Davy Jones' Locker is a telephone booth!

Travel Bureau Aids Motorists Planning Vacation Journeys

WITH vacations and vacation trips a topic of the day, the Post-Dispatch Resort and Travel Bureau is prepared to furnish tour information, much of which is offered without charge, covering the entire United States, parts of Canada and some foreign countries. The bureau's facilities have been augmented by a fresh supply of maps, complete as to details, as well as travel folders and other literature. Prices of maps and the special 50-page auto trails atlas are obtainable on request.

Little Aviation Activity.

One notices the lack of aviation activities along this route. Not a plane was sighed between St. Louis and St. Paul. Air races to be held in the near future were advertised at Cedar Rapids but the only field we saw for two days was inactive and for sale. Every inch and acre seems to be under cultivation. At Cedar Rapids glorification of Iowa's corn-raising fame is carried to the point of a great roastin' ear in electric lights.

About 50 miles above Waterloo the road becomes gravel, hard and smooth, for 50 miles to Austin, Minn., where we came to the concrete road that leads to the Twin Cities. Towns, even villages, are rather far apart in Iowa and Southern Minnesota.

The farmhouses in Minnesota, many of them imposing old brick mansions, are screened on the north and west sides by impenetrable-looking wind-breaks of evergreen and other trees that give evidence of long, hard winters. But the village of Blooming Prairie must have been named just about this time of the year. It describes the situation as it is right now.

At Owatonna we left Route 218 for U. S. 65 through Faribault to Farmington. In going to the Twin Cities if we had not already decided whether we were going to St. Paul or Minneapolis, Farmington would have been the place to make up our minds, so as to avoid the delay of going through one city to reach the other. Farmington is at the fork in the road.

Fur City on the Bluffs.

St. Paul is the capital of Minnesota and the Capitol building is very imposing on a hill overlooking the city. St. Paul is called the Fur City and is built on bluffs overlooking the Mississippi. The first settlement there was called Pig's Eye!

Minneapolis has a newer look, wider streets, more hotels and theaters, more points of interest to the visitor, it seemed to us. It lies on both sides of the river at that point, quite immature. Minnehaha Falls, a spot of rare beauty, is in Minneapolis, and Fort Snelling, full of historic interest, is between the two cities. Lake Minnetonka is a few miles southwest of Minneapolis.

Both of the cities have small revolving semaphores in the center of the street crossings, traffic signals that are visible only to the driver at the head of the procession, and the visitor marvels at the speed of the traffic in spite of what seems an unsatisfactory system.

Return to St. Louis May Be Made via Capital of Wisconsin and Dells of the Wisconsin River, Near Kilbourn.

From the Twin Cities the highways to the most popular of the summer resort sections follow the Mississippi River to St. Cloud. This is United States Route No. 10. From St. Cloud route 10 is paved almost the entire distance of 75 miles to Alexandria, which is the center of a well-known resort community. Within four or five miles of Alexandria are 15 lakes, some of them connected, making a canoe trip of 70 or 80 miles possible, without a portage.

Where Lindbergh Spent Youth.

To taste more of the delights of the wide wilderness and land of lakes we drove over to Little Falls—this is where Lindbergh grew up—and 32 miles up to Brainerd in the great pines. Brainerd is another and lesser gateway to the summer resort region. About 100 miles west, towards Fargo, are the Detroit Lakes in the center of the district known as the Park Region, having 412 lakes within a radius of 25 miles. North of Brainerd we came to Bemidji, a small city near where the Mississippi gets its start. It is one of the most popular of the summer playgrounds of fashionable St. Paul and Minneapolis. A winding road called the Trail of the Whispering Pine circles Lake Bemidji, but we promised not to tell any of its secrets, so you will have to go listen for yourself.

Minnesota State Route 8 takes you from Bemidji through Grand Rapids to Eveleth and Virginia in the iron belt. From Bemidji east we were in Minnesota Arrowhead country, which is 20,000 square miles in area. There are three iron

Yellowstone Tour Offers Exceptional Scenic Lures

Trip From St. Louis May Be Made in Less Than Three Weeks, With Time to Enjoy Geysers, High Waterfalls and Lofty Mountains—Circle Route Is Suggested.

By ROBERT L. BRADLEY,
Automobile Editor.

ONE of the most pleasant vacation motor tours at this season leads through Denver, Colo, with its beautiful background of the Rockies, and Cheyenne, Wyo., where the annual Frontier day rodeo will occur the latter part of July, and to Yellowstone Park, whose boiling springs, fitful geysers, jagged mountain peaks and kaleidoscopic colors form an attraction for all time.

The trip may be made in a day or two more than two weeks, but, if possible, should cover three whole weeks. Roads to the park are mostly concrete and gravel, with graded dirt between Casper, Wyo., and the east entrance, while in the park itself the same uniformly smooth highways will be encountered as have excited favorable comment for several years past.

Doubtless the best route from St. Louis is over U. S. 40 to Kansas City, Mo., all paved, with a brief stretch of uneven macadam just out of Boonville. Number 40 passes on into Kansas and over more prairies. At Manhattan, U. S. 40 South is taken through Salina, Hays and Oakley, Kan., and into Colorado at Cheyenne Wells. From Cheyenne Wells, No. 40 South leads to Limon, where U. S. 40 is again encountered, taking the traveler into Denver.

Pikes Peak a Side Trip.

Colorado Springs, of course, is less than three hours by motor south of Denver, over concrete, and if the traveler has an extra day, he may take the famous highway trip up Pikes Peak. There are many other attractions at the Springs, as the seasoned traveler has long since discovered—Garden of the Gods, Cave of the Winds, Cheyenne Mountain, Seven Falls and the widely known Ute Pass highway to Cripple Creek, one of the "ghost" mining camps that exist where once were booming gold rush settlements.

One should not pass through Denver without at least a few hours spent in the justly renowned mountain park system, owned and maintained by the city for the pleasure of the natives and visitors alike.

From the Colorado capital, the route lies north on U. S. 85 to Cheyenne. In a few weeks Indians and cowboys will be performing their picturesque and dare-devil stunts. Usually, an entire tribe of braves, squaws and stolid papooses are imported for the Frontier celebration. Movie "Western" stars, in late years, have more or less usurped the spotlight at the great open air arena, but the old-time cowhand, with a wad of "plug" in one jowl and a five-gallon hat shoved rakishly over one ear, still draws much of the applause and, more important to him, most of the prize money in the various contests.

On to Yellowstone.

Leaving the "cow-town" atmosphere of Wyoming's capital city,

No Curtailment Of Automobile Output in June

Rumors of Retrenchment This Month Denied as Sales Hold Firm.

By MARC BRAUN.

DETROIT, Mich., June 21.—As far as is known, there has been no curtailment in June production schedules by the automobile manufacturers. The number of cars which it was planned to build this month are being built. There have been some rumors that sales have been slowing down and that some manufacturers have decided to retrench their output for the current month. These rumors were unfounded and, on the contrary, it is said that sales have been as good as during the corresponding perod in May, and in some cases even better.

"It is unfortunate," said one official, "that so frequently misleading rumors are spread, but that has been the case practically every year. Conditions generally speaking, are satisfactory. It seems almost certain that at the end of the year no new records will have been established, but we will have our industry on a more stabilized working basis.

Reports received by manufacturers from different parts of the country show that stocks of new cars in dealers' hands are nearing a normal point and that their stocks of used cars is also decreasing. There are sections in the country where business is much better than in other parts, but, taken as a whole, the country shows a much improved condition.

Interest in New Cars.

The new cars and models brought out by manufacturers recently are attracting many prospects to the showrooms where the latest motor cars are on display. Several of the biggest car producers are said to be ready for the showing of entirely new lines.

An example of how manufacturers are operating in order to help dealers reduce their stocks is shown in the case of Studebaker. A. R. Erskine, president, announced that May production was 1000 cars less than May sales. Total dealer stocks of Studebaker cars aggregated 10,911 units, compared with 17,529 a year ago. New cars on hand in the United States and abroad totaled 4528 units, compared with 7130 in June, 1929.

Several manufacturers are reported to be planning a more extensive foreign trade campaign. While a good many officials fear that the tariff will eventually mean a decided reduction in American motor car exports, there are others who believe that the foreign field is so vast and the American car so well liked, that there will be plenty of export trade for a long time to come. This, however, does not refer to every country. France and Belgium may take further steps to make the cost of importing American cars almost prohibitive. But France and Belgium are by no means the only countries to do business with. One plant official asserted that South and Central America, China and Japan have greater opportunities for the American motor car exporter than most any country in Europe.

According to some foreign publications, new laws will be passed in certain countries which will compel foreign automobile manufacturers who have established branch plants, to close them down. It is claimed that these establishments are the cause of compelling smaller native concerns from closing down. There are, however, other publishers who speak decidedly in favor of the American branch plants, and point out that they really ought to be looked on as benefactors and a welcome guide in bringing about a much desired change.

This week the Ford Motor Co. celebrated its twenty-seventh anniversary, having started in business on June 19, 1903. At that time the company had 96 men on its payroll, was making a two-cylinder car and ended the year 1903 with a grand output of 195 cars. The model T was not even thought of then. A Ford six was brought out before the model T.

Willys '6' Appeals To Women Drivers

While its speed attainment of 72 miles an hour is a feature of the Willys six, its less sensational features have special appeal for the ever-increasing number of women drivers who find its arrangement of control and simplicity of operation among its chief attraction.

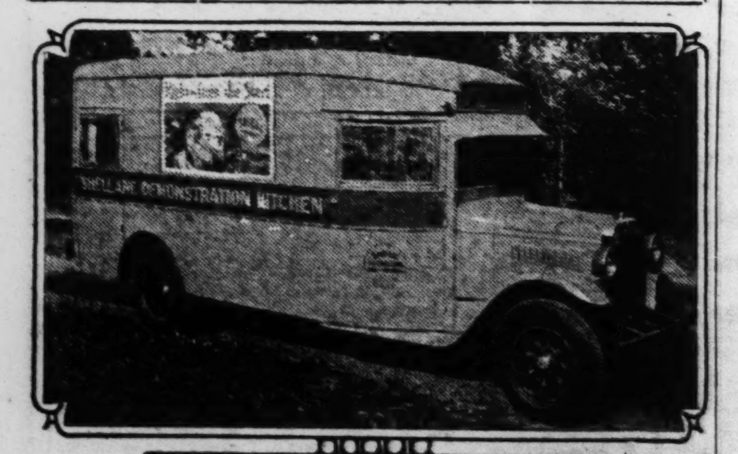
With its trim lines, tasteful upholstery and rich colors, the Willys six presents a pleasing appearance.

"Finger-tip control," featured on all Willys-Overland cars, removes the objections so many women had to driving. No longer is it necessary to search about the foot to locate the starter button on the floor. All operations of starting the motor, switching on or off the lights and sounding the horn are controlled by the button located in the center of the steering wheel. With "finger-tip control" it is not necessary to remove a hand from the steering wheel in traffic, and this advantage is considered by many as important as was the self-starter which first made automobiles practical for women drivers.

Auto Trunk Sales Increase 50 Per Cent

Sales of auto trunks have increased more than 50 per cent in the last year, particularly in the St. Louis district, according to Al Stratton, president of the Auto Trunk Co., 3321 Washington boulevard. This type of carrier has the appearance of a custom-built trunk and is useful on long motor trips. Sales outlets have been established in Kansas City, Mo.; Wichita, Kan., and Evansville, Ind., Stratton stated.

Oil Company's Demonstration Truck



The accompanying photograph shows the exterior and interior views of a novel demonstrating truck designed and operated by the Shell Petroleum Corporation.

The object is to show the adaptability of Shellane gas, which is a harmles gas for cooking purposes and used in connection with the ordinary household type of gas stove.

The body is mounted on a regular 1½-ton Dodge Brothers truck chassis equipped with dual wheels in the rear which was delivered by the Milstrand Motor Co., Dodge Brothers distributers.

This body was designed under the supervision of Mr. F. A. Jones who is in charge of all automotive equipment of the Shell Petroleum Corporation.

The interior is equipped with gas stove, hot water heater and refrigerator, all of which are operated by Shellane gas.

The interior, while small, is completely equipped for the ordinary kitchen work and is a marvel in design and efficiency.

R. N. Soule Made Zone Manager of Buick Motor Co.

John F. Dawson, Formerly With Vesper Company, Sales Manager.

Appointment of Ralph N. Soule as zone manager here for the Buick Motor Co. is announced. John F. Dawson has been made sales manager. The company recently purchased the Vesper-Buick Auto Co., formerly distributer of Buick and Marquette automobiles in this territory, which includes Eastern Missouri, Southern Illinois and Western Kentucky.

A branch of the factory is now being operated at the Vesper location, Vandeventer avenue and West Pine boulevard to Laclede avenue. The entire plant, erected about two years ago, has been leased by the Buick Motor Co.

Soule has been actively associated with Buick for several years, having served in various zone and regional capacities. His experience dates to 1909, and has embraced almost every phase of sales and service activities.

Dawson was formerly connected with Vesper-Buick in various executive capacities.

The branch will operate in the wholesale field only, in this territory. The Willcockson Buick Co., as has been announced, has taken over the retail sales of Vesper-Buick, at the same location.

In addition to the Buick-Marquette dealers located in the territory outside of the metropolitan district, the following dealers in the metropolitan area will continue to handle retail Buick-Marquette sales and service as in the past: Kuhs Buick Co., 2837 North Grand boulevard; Schnure Motor Co., 2218 Locust street; West Side Buick Auto Co., Kingshighway boulevard and McPherson avenue; South Side Buick Auto Co., 3654 South Grand boulevard; St. Louis County Automobile Co., 7919 Forsythe boulevard, Clayton; Willcockson Buick Co., 3900 West Pine boulevard; Webster Groves Motor Co. and East Side Buick Co.

The World on Wheels.

A total of 6,295,352 automobiles was produced throughout the world in 1929.

Eliminate Detour On Highway No. 61

The two-mile detour which has been used just south of Farmington on U. S. Route 61 while concrete construction has been under way, has been eliminated. All traffic is now using the pavement, according to announcement by the Automobile Club of Missouri. The new pavement runs from Farmington to Fredericktown, 25 miles, and is part of this important highway which connects St. Louis and Little Rock, Ark.

Hoffman Magneto Opens Carburetor Sales Department

A separate department for the installation and servicing of Winfield carburetors has been added by the S. G. Hoffman Magneto Co., 3134 Washington boulevard, distributer of these carburetors, according to J. R. Medart, president. D. Rogers is in charge of the department. He has had seven years experience in carburetor installation and repairs.

Discusses Chemical Process of Removing Carbon From Motor

How an automobile engine becomes caked with carbon is described by J. M. Frier, president of the Alemite Co. of St. Louis. He says:

"Road dusts, once drawn through the intake valves and trapped with carbon particles and with the gummy coating (deposited from oil and gasoline under combustion) on the pistons, on the head of the motor and the intake valves, the pressure and temperature of the engine solidifies all into a hard mass and the engine is carbon caked.

"This process is going on all the time. During the second 500 miles, a new car may develop a knock or 'ping.' Retarding the spark relieves this temporarily, but another 500 miles causes drivers to complain of slow getaway and poor pickup, little realizing that carbon deposits are capable of impairing engine efficiency fully 50 per cent.

"Few motorists ever go to the trouble and expense of de-carbonizing until they have to. Formerly the engine head had to be removed, the carbon scraped or burnt off and often the valves ground.

"But now a chemical carbon remover has ben discovered—Carbo-Solve.

"Applied by means of an injector, fastened to the dash and connected with the intake manifold and controlled by a plunger from the driver's compartment, Carbo-Solve, when allowed to remain in the engine over night, will so dissolve the binder that with the starting of the engine the jelly-like mass slips harmlessly out through the exhaust, freeing the engine from carbon and lubricating the valve stems."

Unique 'Vacation' Period in Prospect for Motor Industry

Most Detroit Plants to Close Down for Two Weeks This Summer, Taking Inventory and Awaiting Sales Upturn.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich., June 21.—Approaching a summer "vacation" period unique in its history, the automobile industry continues to await a definite upturn in business that would justify easing up on restricted production. During the latter part of the present month, July and August, virtually every plant will close down for a fortnight.

Of course, inventories will be taken during these "vacation" shut-downs, but whether there will be additional inventory shut-downs around Christmas time, as long has been the custom in the business of motor car manufacture, remains to be determined. If the "vacation" shut-downs are needed to bring about further "control" of production, that undoubtedly will be accomplished, for production has been on a restricted basis ever since last fall when the industry found itself heavily overproduced and immediately set about to adjust output to demand and to dispose of a huge surplus stock.

Demand Being Met.

The general belief has been that all of the over-production had been absorbed and that the industry generally was running close to demand. With the two weeks shut-down over, many of the manufacturers should be able to start virtually from "scratch." The introduction of new models has necessitated some change in machinery, but more new models already have been brought out without shutting down the plants, than are expected to be presented following the "vacations."

In some few quarters there is a tendency to seize upon even the smallest incidents as indicative of prospective improvement in the industry, but as a rule most automobile executives decline to be led into predictions of what the next six months will bring. "I don't want to be a pessimist; I'm not sure pessimism is entirely justified, but neither do I want to be untruthful about the situation, so perhaps it would be better if I made no statement right now," said the head of one of the leading companies. His statement seemingly sums up the situation in the automobile industry at the present time.

Used Car Stocks Low.

The present situation, according to the representative of one of the dealers' organizations, is not without its redeeming features. Used car stocks are not increasing, mainly because used cars are continuing in use, and service work is described as "not so bad." The bulk of the buying, however, is of the "replacement," or "necessity" type. The National Automobile Chamber of Commerce has estimated that replacement buying in 1929 accounted for 2,800,000 of the 4,624,598 units sold in the domestic market.

On the basis of present activity it seems safe to assume that replacements for 1930 will fall considerably below the 1929 figure. Many cars, according to service managers, are being continued in operation this year that normally would have been traded in on new cars. This, they explain, accounts for the increased revenue from service operations, which under normal conditions does not show unusual variation.

Announcement during the week that the Ford Motor Co. will close its plants and offices here for two weeks, beginning July 12, means that 100,000 employes will be given vacations. The salaried employes will receive pay for the idle period, but the wage earners will not.

'Bandit-Proof' Car For New Orleans

An armored car mounted on a Dodge Brothers truck chassis just added to a fleet of six Dodges operated by the Armored Car Service Co. of New Orleans, La., is said to be about as nearly "bandit-proof" as can be built.

Puncture-proof tires that cannot be damaged by bullets are outstanding among the many features intended to baffle holdup men. Windshield glass is one and one-eighth inches thick, protecting the driver, it is said, even from rifle bullets.

The car is armor-plated even to the top and has little port-holes at convenient points from which those inside may fire at bandits without danger to themselves. Even the radiator is armored to protect the motor from bullets.

The steps are covered and the running boards cut away so that no one can "hop on" the car. Money transported in these cars is carried in a safe which is locked to a heavy steel rod inside the body, an added precaution in case the car is stolen. However, the presence of a guard inside the car at all times minimizes this possibility.

In addition to the details listed, several others are built into the car, it is said, but not announced so that many surprises await the bandit who tries to "stick up" this formidable money hauler.

1922 Car Driven 2514 Miles With Low Cost Record

CHICAGO, Ill., June 21.—An achievement of the current motoring season was recorded here recently with the arrival of J. M. Griffith from Mexico City in 138 hours of running time, in a 1922 Chevrolet touring car with five passengers.

Although almost 64, Griffith drove the distance himself.

Leaving Mexico City, on April 30, the car covered the 929 miles to the border, crossed at Laredo, Tex., and proceeded to Chicago and Detroit with no mishaps other than two stop-overs, one for tire repairs and one, at San Antonio, Tex., for carbon removal and replacement of three exhaust valves in the eight-year-old car. The log of the trip provides statistics of interest to those contemplating a lengthy tour this summer:

Distance (Mexico City to Chicago), 2514 miles; running time, 137.5 hours; average speed 18.28 miles per hour; gasoline consumption, 96.6 gallons; miles per gallon, 26; cost of gasoline, $33.75; oil and greasing, $6.25; repairs to car, including tire repairs, $11.50. The total cost of transportation, exclusive of meals, hotel expenses and personal items, $51.50, or at the rate of one-third cent a mile for each person in the car.

The speedometer had registered 28,000 kilometers before leaving Mexico. After spending several days here, following his return from Detroit, Griffith turned his car toward the south, and started out on the return trip as nonchalantly as though his destination were only a few miles out of town or his car were a new 1930 model.

Manual Heat Control.

Manual heat control for the gasoline induction system is a feature of several of the later cars. It is another and important device the driver must learn to use correctly. Auto Depression Laid to 1928-29 Over-Production

Surplus During That Period Weakened Retail Market, Analyst Avers.

DETROIT, Mich., June 21.—It is undoubtedly true that the depression in the automotive industry, as well as the lack of buying power, both resulted directly and indirectly from the overproduction which began in 1928 and continued throughout 1929, according to B. H. Cram, president of Cram's Automotive Reports, Inc., industry analyst.

During this period a surplus of finished products completely demoralized the retail market during the latter part of 1929 and during the first part of 1930. Manufacturers realized the danger into which they had placed themselves, and early this year took rather drastic steps to remedy the situation. Practically all factories announced that production policies would be materially revised and that output would be limited to the actual demand of the dealers and the public. The manufacturers have adhered to this policy with the result that production so far this year has been at levels substantially below that of 1929 and slightly below that of 1928. This has brought about a unique situation. It would appear that this conservation has not only resulted practically in the elimination of the surplus, but has allowed the pendulum to swing to the other end of the arc with the result that sales, which have been increasing month by month, are now running in excess of output. It has been a long time since such a condition has currently existed in the automotive industry.

During the first five months of 1930 passenger car production amounted to 1,588,269 cars. Estimating May domestic retail sales at 375,000 units, a fairly conservative figure, total sales from Jan. 1 to May 31, will approximate 1,422,644 units. Leaving a surplus of 165,625 units. Exports during these five months are estimated at close to 105,000 cars, thus reducing the surplus stocks to about 60,000 automobiles. At the present rate of production this amount is less than one week's output for the entire industry.

YELLOWSTONE TOUR OFFERS EXCEPTIONAL SCENIC TOURS

the vacationist pursues United States 185 to Orin, and from there takes United States 20 through Casper, Shoshone, Worland, Greybull and Cody, Wyo., on to the east gate of Yellowstone. In the park the network of smoothly graveled roads are welcome after the dirt stretch from Casper.

It is 26 miles to Lake Lodge, on the north shore of Yellowstone Lake. The 145-mile circle trip starts at the lodge. Physically, the park presents the appearance of a broad volcanic plateau, at an average elevation of 8000 feet, circumscribed by a line of mountains at some points 12,000 feet above sea level. Thousands of boiling springs, 10 score geysers and rugged canyon formations are some of the sights that greet the visitor.

The circle trip traverses the north shore of the lake, passes Old Faithful with its periodic spouting schedule, the Upper and Lower Geyser Basins and Mammoth Hot Springs, skirts the petrified tree district and plunges into the Grand Canyon of the Yellowstone River, probably unequaled in the park as a scenic spectacle. This great gorge is 1200 feet deep, 200 feet wide at the bottom and 10 times as broad at the top. Huge birds of prey make their nests among the spires of rock that rise over the slitted walls, fantastically shaped.

Many Camping Sites.

Camping facilities are virtually unlimited, with the customary regulations governing fires and camp cleanliness to be observed. The Government supervises every phase of activity in the preserve and there need be no fear of high prices. Rangers are constantly on duty, not only to guide the travelers but to accept and act on complaints, whatever they may be.

One should not return to St. Louis without giving some thought to the "dude ranches" that cast their spell over Easterners in Northern Wyoming and Southern Montana. Everyone has a soft spot in his heart for these institutions, smiled at by Westerners but really enjoyed by the "dudes" themselves. They offer opportunity for relaxation and recreation of a wholesome character—for riding, fishing, hunting, pack trips and camping excursions.

But returning to the highway, for variety's sake, the route back to St. Louis is over U. S. 20 to Worland and east on U. S. 16 through Buffalo, Gillette and Sundance, Wyo., then on to Spearfish, Sturgess and Rapid City, S. D., in the Black Hills region. No. 16 takes the motorist on through Kadoka, Chamberlain and Mitchell to Sioux Falls, S. D., where U. S. 77 leads southward to Sioux City, Neb. From this point U. S. 75 is taken through Omaha to Auburn, Neb., and from there U. S. 73 to Hiawatha, Kan.

At Hiawatha U. S. 73 East is used through Atchison and Leavenworth to the junction with U. S. 40, at Topeka. Then over 40 to St. Louis.

The circle route as suggested covers approximately 3640 miles.

Summer Automobile Trip to Minnesota Will Draw Motorists

ranges across the Arrowhead, and in one of them, the Mesaba, the ore deposits extend almost continuously from Grand Rapids to Virginia. In the largest diggings one mine runs into another in huge open pits two or three miles long and hundreds of feet deep. It is said that more earth has been moved in the Mesaba mining operations than in the building of the Panama Canal.

North from Virginia, around Lake Vermillion, are some of the most noted fishing camps. Pike, crappie, trout, bass, muskellonge. Muskies—Doesn't that spell a fisherman's paradise? And there are well maintained roads from both Virginia and Bemidji north to the fishinig camps at International Falls and the Canadian border. Visions of moose, caribou, wolf and prowlin' b'ar—roads through deep forests beside crystal lakes. Fervent days and crisp nights. We heard the call but we were just vagabonding, so we trailed down from Virginia on Route 11 to a little place called Martens, on Highway 2, to Duluth.

Visit Largest Inland Port.

Duluth is the third largest city in Minnesota and is said to be the largest inland port in the world. It is 170 miles from St. Paul.

To add even more variety to the tour we planned our return trip through the southwestern part of Wisconsin to include Madison and the Dells.

We went east from St. Paul and crossed the St. Croix River into Wisconsin. In this great dairy country the barns on the farms looked like Zeppelin hangars. Probably to the Wisconsin farmer Scott Field would look like a dairy farm. The stretches of country are unbroken by small communities between St. Paul and Eau Claire but it is a prosperous looking land. Almost every one of the older farm houses has a glassed-in cupola in the center of the roof that looks like an observation tower; could it be they once were protections against Indians? There seems nothing left of the Indians but legend now, and names like Menominie. Eau Claire shows a French influence but you can't down the Irish and one finds signs there defiantly proclaiming it "O'Klare." At Eau Claire we left the fine paving of U. S. No. 10 and followed 53, a gravel road, through gorgeous hills to La Crosse. An optional route from the Twin Cities is to follow the Mississippi down on the Minnesota side to La Crosse, and cross there into Wisconsin.

From LaCrosse it is 100 miles to Kilbourn, starting point for a visit to the Dells. Several types of boats are available for excursions up the Wisconsin River to this scenic wonderland and during the three-hour river trip we were transported to unearthly spots of indescribably weird beauty. Deep narrow gulches cut through sandstone by small and indolent looking streams, gulches so deep and narrow as to almost cut out the daylight in mid-afternoon. Forests of pine and hemlock, a profusion of flowers and ferns, history, legend and wonderment—three hours of exploration and a confusion of impressions. The Wisconsin Dells are worth going out of your way to see.

Return Via Madison, Wis.

Madison, the capital of Wisconsin, is 56 miles south of Kilbourn on U. S. 12, and is the location of the State university.

From Madison we drove to Janesville, where we came to the Rock River, which, like the Wisconsin River, figured in the exploits of Black Hawk Indians here. On down 51 to Rockford, Ill., where one has a choice of continuing on 51 or taking the most scenic route in Illinois—out to Dixon along the Rock River. Anyway, the Black Hawk Trail leads on down and we came to La Salle, Bloomington, Decatur and Pana, where we took the shortest route to St. Louis, Illinois 16 to Edwardsville, and so on into St. Louis by the Chain of Rocks Bridge. Home. But we have seen Minnesota and we know now . . . a path through the woods . . . a lofty peak . . . a smooth reach of water . . . a stream tumbling over the rocks into a shady pool . . . the spirit of adventure . . . sunlight in the forest and moonlight on the hills. We know—because we have followed to the end of the path.

Zone Manager

E. E. McINDOO.

E. E. McIndoo Is New Manager of Local Olds Zone

Succeeds A. C. Williams, Who Is Transferred to Dallas, Tex.

The appointment of E. E. McIndoo as manager of the Oldsmobile-Viking zone office in St. Louis is announced by J. T. Collins, general sales manager of the Olds Motor Works. McIndoo succeeds A. C. Williams, who has been transferred to the Dallas, Tex., sales zone as manager.

McIndoo has a wide background of experience in the automobile business. He joined the sales organization of the Olds Motor Works in 1925 as sales promotion manager of the Memphis zone office. The following year he was promoted to be assistant manager of the Memphis zone and in September, 1929, he was made manager of the Atlanta, Ga., zone.

He will have direct supervision over the Oldsmobile-Viking territory in the St. Louis zone, which includes Eastern Missouri, Southern Illinois, Northern Arkansas, Western Tennessee and Western Kentucky. His headquarters will be at 2223 Locust street.

Pontiac Has Traveled Total of 133,716 Miles

Pontiac six No. 1194, a coach model which has been in daily service since the Pontiac line first was introduced four and one-half years ago, now shows a speedometer total of 133,716 miles, according to its owner, F. F. Fleetwood, of Royal Oak, Mich. The car has averaged about 30,000 miles per year.

"It's a little high off the ground and lacks the power and speed and four-wheel brakes of the present Pontiac sixes," said Fleetwood, "but it's still good for a lot of miles.

"I bought it as a used car a couple of years ago and about the only maintenance expense has been a valve-grinding job and some new tires."

Two Six-Cylinder Truck Models Are Added to White Line

Two new six-cylinder high-speed motor trucks, designed to cover the medium and heavy duty hauling field, are announced by the White Co. of Cleveland, O.

More pay load, more trips per day, a greater range of operation together with flexibility in traffic, quick pick up and low cost of operation are said to be advantages offered in these models.

Designated as models 63 and 64, they embody late features and can be furnished with equipment to cover the range of dump truck work, city and intercity hauling and also semitrailer operation.

Ford Presents 2-Door De Luxe Sports Phaeton

First of Unique Models Comes Off Production Line Here.

Introduction of a de luxe phaeton, reflecting all the beauty of a custom built car, is announced by the Ford Motor Co.

This latest addition to the Ford passenger car line is distinguished by its low, rakish lines, high sides, low seats and a decided sport treatment throughout.

A single wide door on each side gives easy access to both front and rear seats. There are two individual seats in front, both of the folding type, the driver's seat being adjustable. The rear seat, with an arm rest on either side, is on the same level as those in front so that occupants sit well down in the car. A depression in the floor insures ample leg room.

The seats are all upholstered in Bedouin grain tan color genuine leather with narrow piping, following the latest European mode of trimming.

The sport appearance of the car is measurably enhanced by the smart, trim lines of the top, which is light in weight, with small natural wood bows and an attractive coloring of tan rubber interlined fabric. The rear quarter of the body is slightly depressed below the belt to receive the top when it is folded, thus preserving the straight lines of the car. Side curtains are of the same material as the top and have large window openings of heavy celluloid.

Other features include a special low shatterproof windshield with windshield wings to conform, chromium plated windshield frame and stanchions, vacuum windshield wiper, spare wheel in fender well and trunk rack at the rear. Remote control handles well forward on the doors make them easy to open by front seat occupants. The rear view mirror extends out from the left windshield stanchion and is easily turned when the windshield is lowered.

Tools are carried under the rear seat and side curtains are in a special compartment behind the back cushion of the rear seat.

The new phaetons are already in production at the St. Louis plant of the Ford Motor Co., the first unit coming off the production line last Tuesday.

Restaurant Addition To Pennant Terminal

The opening of a new restaurant addition to the Pierce Petroleum Corporation's Pennant Des Peres Terminal, 15 miles west of St. Louis on the Manchester road (U. S. Highway 66), is announced. The addition is a colonial structure, 40x60 feet. The interior is built on the amphi-theater plan with an encircling railed veranda overlooking the main area, a few feet below, and providing tables for approximately 200 persons.

Outside is a wide stone piazza, with grilled iron and glass top tables. In all, 300 persons may be seated in the addition.

Fuel Consumption in New York.

The daily consumption of gasoline in New York City is about 500,000 gallons.

Little Possibility of Shortage of Supply of Pennsylvania Oi

Motorists who have become ac- customed to using motor oil re- fined from pure Pennsylvania crude, need not fear a shortage in the supply, according to officials of the Warson Petroleum Co., distributer of William Penn motor oils.

"Figures of the U. S. Bureau of Mines for 1924, 1925, 1926 and 1927 show an approximate yearly increase of 5 per cent over the preceding year," they say. "Last year 840,000,000 gallons of Pennsylvania crude were taken from the earth. When refined, this amount of sufficient to make 168,000,000 gallons of finished motor oil, or enough to supply nearly half of the entire motor car registration of the United States for one year."

The name "Pennsylvania" denotes a kind or vein of oil which was first discovered in that State. Because of its rare properties, properties not found anywhere else on earth, Pennsylvania crude commands a higher price at the well than any other oil in the world, it was stated.

Installment Buying.

Seventy-five per cent of all motor vehicle sales in Australia and New Zealand in 1929, were made on the time payment plan.

A WOMAN CAN DRIVE ANY CAR
BUT SHE ENJOYS DRIVING A DODGE SIX

Motoring pleasure and satisfaction reach their maximum in a car that is easy to handle and one in whose safety you have full confidence. This is the reason why so many thousands of women have selected the new Dodge Six. It is easy to handle because it has a smooth, flexible, alert performance, and because its steering mechanism is perfectly balanced. It is safe because it has positive, easy-acting internal hydraulic brakes, and because its silent Mono-Piece Steel Body affords unusual protection. In addition to these purely mechanical advantages, it is beautiful in design and appointments. Furthermore, it is economical to operate and maintain, and it has fifteen years of Dodge dependability behind it.

What's New in Radio Industry

New Philco Receivers Shown to Dealers in St. Louis — Local Sparton Merchandisers View the 10 New Sparton Sets—Four General Motors Radio Dealers Open in St. Louis.

Philco Dealers to Sell Transitone Auto Sets.

More than 300 dealers attended a dinner Monday night at Hotel Chase at which officers of the Philadelphia Storage Battery Co. spoke and the new Philco receivers were shown.

The new Philco sets include four principal AC models—console, lowboy, highboy and radio-phonograph. The first two have a seven-tube chassis using three screen grid tubes, including detector, and 45-type tubes in push-pull audio. The console is in genuine butt walnut, and bird's-eye maple while the lowboy is in black walnut with panels of V matched Oriental wood, while panels and arch are of butt walnut. A double tuned aerial circuit bars station interference before it can get into the receiver.

All Philco sets have a tone control, which gives choice of "brilliant, bright, mellow or deep" tone effect, according to the preference of the listener. This device is on the panel and is operated as easily as a tuning control.

The highboy and radio-phonograph models have a nine-tube chassis, using three screen grid tubes in the R. F. stages feeding into a dector system which uses two 27 tubes, one to detect, the other to amplify, and also a 27 first audio tube, two 45 type tubes in push pull audio, and a rectifier tube. This chassis was designed for super performance. In addition to the tone control, it has automatic volume control. There are five R. F. circuits, including a double tuned antenna input to the first screen grid tube, planned to eliminate "cross talk" interference.

Herbert Schiele, vice president of the Artophone Corporation, which was host at the dinner, presided. Speakers included Edwin Schiele, president of the firm; Ray Layer, its general sales manager, and the following representatives of the Philco organization; Sayre M. Ramsdell, sales promotion manager; L. M. Kelly, branch manager with headquarters at Kansas City, and Robert F. Herr, service manager. Ramsdell announced a new finance plan for Philco dealers.

Announcement was also made of the arrangement whereby Philco will manufacture Transitone automobile receivers, which are to be distributed through Philco jobbers. Transitone has arranged with Willard battery stations throughout the country to service Transitone sets. Incidentally, as evidencing the rush to market motor car receivers, it was stated that there are already 50 makes of these receivers on the market.

Straus Co. Shows New Sparton Sets to Dealers.

Ten new Sparton receiver models were shown by the E. J. Straus Radio Co., distributer, to Sparton dealers Wednesday at a luncheon and meeting in the firm's place of business, 2665 Locust boulevard. The sets included two models in the popular price field, which have a tuned R. F. 10-tube chassis.

All other Sparton models have the Equasonne circuit, with its band pass pre-selector tuning and its R. F. amplifier that merely amplifies. Incidentally, the new Spartons carry 275 volts of B current and 80 volts of C bias on their detector tubes, which is said to be the heaviest voltage used in power detection. The handling capacity of a detector using such voltages, naturally, is very great and makes distortion in this part of a receiver virtually impossible. Increased sensitivity and selectivity have been effected in all the new sets.

Several of the new models have a 10-tube pre-selector chassis, with 45 type tubes in the final audio stage. There are two 11-tube models and a de luxe set with an unusually fine cabinet, all with 250 type tubes in push pull audio.

Double push pull audio amplification is a characteristic of two super models—a de luxe receiver and a radio-phonograph combination. Virtually the entire front of the combination consists of doors that open accordion fashion, a distinct innovation in design. There is also a single record radio-phonograph in the line.

Cabinets of all these new Spartons are of massive design, and include an "apartment model" built to fit in wherever space is at a premium.

The Sparton automobile receiver is said to have been tested for 25,000 miles of driving. It has a tuned R. F. circuit with one stage of impedance coupled audio. It uses four screen grid tubes and is said to be extremely sensitive.

Talks were made at the meeting by E. J. Straus, president, and Sidney Landau, vice president, of the E. J. Straus Radio Co., and by W. H. Simcox, Sparton district manager.

Among other things, Straus told of the contest for school pupils sponsored by Capt. William Sparks, president of the Sparks-Withington Co. Two winners from each state will choose between $750 a year scholarships at colleges or three-month tours of Europe.

Four General Motors Radio Dealers Open for Business.

A new General Motors radio dealer—the Naes Radio Corporation, 3825 West Florissant avenue—held its formal opening yesterday. Proprietors of the firm are J. P. Naes and Louis Naes. The opening was held with considerable ceremony, including airplane stunts over North St. Louis.

The Hewette Radio Corporation, another General Motors dealer, also held its formal opening yesterday with airplane stunts as a feature. Its proprietor formerly was widely known as an automobile dealer.

Two other General Motors city dealers—the Walter Ashe Radio Co., Pine and Eleventh streets, and the Delmar Radio Corporation, 5650 Delmar boulevard, are also doing business. Walter Ashe is known all over the country. Galen Croxton, one of the owners of the Delmar Radio Corporation, also is widely known as a designer of receivers.

Walter Ashe represented the General Motors dealers in this part of the country at a meeting at Dayton, O. He was accompanied by E. F. Rybolt, regional manager.

At St. Louis Airfields

A program of aerial thrills has been arranged for the dedication of Curtiss-Steinberg Airport next Saturday and Sunday.

"Red" Jackson, Frances Harrell, Leo Allen and Leroy Grady of the Curtiss-Wright Exhibitions Co., augmented by officers of the Thirty-fifth Division Air Service, will perform a variety of difficult maneuvers. Jackson will give a demonstration of inverted flying and outside loops. Miss Harrell will spin her plane in to within a few hundred feet of the ground, and McGrady will demonstrate the Curtiss-Tanager, which received the $100,000 safety prize last year. Parachute drops and races for commercial ships will also be on the program.

Curtiss-Steinberg Airport comprises 570 acres of level ground, improved with roads, runways, lighting systems and hangers. It is about two miles south of East St. Louis and may be reached over Illinois Highway No. 3.

Airways Fares Raised.

The anticipated increase in aerial passenger fares became effective on T. A. T.-Maddux Airlines last Sunday, and have been announced for July 1 on Universal Airlines.

In both instances the increase is approximately 2 cents a mile, to 7 cents. Even with full loads the airlines lost money at the 5-cent rate. During the week's trial of the higher rate there has been no appreciable falling off of travel over T. A. T.-Maddux lines. Universal Airlines has doubled its service between Chicago and Cleveland, operating twice a day between the two cities. It is expected that all airlines will make a corresponding increase in rates.

Maj. Lambert Official Starter.

Maj. Albert Bond Lambert, dean of St. Louis aviation enthusiasts, has been appointed official starter for the international balloon races, to be held at Cleveland, O., Sept. 1. Maj. Lambert visited Cleveland last week and conferred with members of the Race Committee on Arrangements.

TODAY'S AIRPORT EVENTS

LAMBERT-ST. LOUIS FIELD.

2 p. m.—Acrobatics by Lieut. Wayne Williams.

3 p. m.—Exhibition by Pilot William Brewster.

4 p. m.—Dead-stick landings.

5 p. m.—Parachute drop by member of Thirty-fifth Division Air Service.

CURTISS-STEINBERG AIRPORT.

4 p. m.—Altitude guessing contest—free rides to winners.

4:30 p. m.—Acrobatics by Maj. C. R. Wassall.

5 p. m.—Dead-stick landings.

Von Hoffmann Enrollments.

The week's enrollments at the Von Hoffmann Flying School included Marcel Giroux of Montreal, Que., mechanic's course, and Robert Blaine, Oak Park, Ill., private pilot's course.

Contract for 32 Bombers.

A contract for 32 bombers costing $827,000 has been awarded to the Detroit Aircraft Corporation by the United States Navy. The order will be completed in one year.

Guard Air Unit Seeks Recruits.

The Thirty-fifth Division Air Service, National Guard, is seeking 16 recruits before the unit goes to camp at Fort Riley, Kan., July 20. Applicants for enlistment will be interviewed by Capt. Russell Young at the unit headquarters, 208 South Twelfth street, on Monday evenings.

On Trans-Atlantic Flying Boat.

Eugene Rhodes, a member of the crew of the Navy's trans-Atlantic flying boat NC-4, visited Curtiss-Steinberg Airport last week. Rhodes was accompanied by B. F. Leighton, vice president in charge of sales for the Wright Aeronautical Corporation.

Transferred From Scott Field.

The Second Balloon Company has been transferred from Scott Field to Fort Bragg, N. C.

Instructor on Flying Route.

Joseph Waldron, formerly flying instructor at the local Universal Flying School, has been transferred to the company's transportation division and is flying a passenger plane between Tulsa, Ok., and Chicago.

Too Fat to Fly.

A 500-pound comedian appearing at a local theater last week visited Lambert-St. Louis Field and declared his intention of making a flight. With the aid of attaches of the field the fat man endeavored to climb into Forest O'Brine's Robin monoplane, but was unable to get through the door.

Woman Flyer

*MISS FRANCES HARRELL,
Of the Curtiss-Wright Exhibitions Co., who will give a demonstration of her ability at the opening of the Curtiss-Steinberg Airport next Saturday and Sunday.*

Proposed Gasoline Tax Attacked.

Commercial operators at Lambert-St. Louis Field have raised objections to the proposed 5 cents a gallon gasoline tax specified under an ordinance recently introduced in the Board of Aldermen. In support of their argument that the proposed tax is too high, the operators point out that, at the present rate of consumption, more than 1,000,000 gallons of gasoline will be sold at the airport this year.

Woman Operates Airport.

Miss Myrtle M. Brown is said to be the first woman to own and operate her own airport. The port, "Myrtle Brown Field," is near Concordsville, Pa.

Parachute Test.

The service parachutes of the Thirty-fifth Division Air Service will be drop-tested at Lambert-St. Louis Field this week. Regulations require that the "chutes" must be dropped with a dummy attached several times a year.

Women Air Racers Sought.

Six women flyers are being sought for a race in planes of unlimited power at the National Air Races at Chicago, Aug. 23 to Sept. 1. Seven other events for women will be on the program.

"Pop" Cleveland a Visitor.

The 24 visiting pilots registering at Lambert-St. Louis Field last week included "Pop" Cleveland, veteran flyer.

Auto Dealer Buys Second Plane.

Arthur Fendler, local automobile dealer, has purchased his second airplane, a Waco. Several weeks ago he bought an Eaglerock. Fendler plans to take purchasers of machines sold by his concern on sight-seeing flights over the city.

Prisoner Returned by Air.

Sheriff Al Lill of St. Louis County returned Thursday from Tucson, Ariz., by airplane with W. R. Smart, former Kresge store manager, charged with embezzlement.

Enrolled at Universal.

Henry Heckel and Harold Wefel, St. Louisans, enrolled at the Universal Flying School for the limited commercial course, and Bernard Spira of Chicago enrolled for transport training. William Simon, a native of Danzig, applied for mechanical training.

Frank Kauffman, a transport graduate of the Universal School, is employed by a local avaition concern for sight-seeing flights. Lee Wright, a recent flight graduate, is employed at the Minneapolis (Minn.) airport.

Radio on Planes.

The sight-seeing planes of the Curtiss Airplane Service Co. are now equipped with radio for the entertainment of passengers while in the air.

Special Ground School Class.

Another special ground school class will open at Curtiss-Wright headquarters, 1918 Washington avenue, July 1.

Late Service to Chicago.

Late afternoon passenger service was started between St. Louis and Chicago by Universal Airlines last Friday. Planes leave St. Louis and Chicago at 5 p. m. and complete the trip in about two hours.

Emergency Trip to Make Serum Delivery

A Studebaker President eight roadster recently raced from Princeton, N. J., to Philadelphia and back at an average speed of 72 miles an hour, to save the life of a 16-year-old Princeton student according to word received by Arthur R. Lindberg, Studebaker distributer here. At times the car traveled more than 90 miles an hour.

The trip was made when the youth was stricken with spinal meningitis. The necessary serum was not available, so a Princeton man agreed to drive to Philadelphia in his President eight roadster to pick up the medicine.

Escorted by state troopers who cleared the way, the trip was completed half an hour before the deadline set by the hospital physicians, and the serum delivered.

Brake Department Added by Concern In South St. Louis

W. C. Hoag, president of the South End Auto Service Co., 29 California avenue, announces the opening of a new brake department. Considerable new equipment has been added, including brake testers, true drum lathe and riveting machines. A special Raybestos brake tester has been added which is adapted for testing all types of brakes accurately, according to Hoag.

HUDSON'S GREAT EIGHT Wins Famous Tour de France

The noted Ansaldo Trophy, premier prize of European motordom, which has been won for two successive years by Hudson built cars

THIS YEAR

Again Hudson scores 100% in winning the highest honors in the nine-day Tour de France, most celebrated of the annual tests staged on the European continent.

Against eighty-seven cars from every country competing, Hudson's Great Eight won the Ansaldo trophy for starting on cold motor, most efficient braking and greatest hill-climbing ability. It also won the Gold Medal for completing the Tour and its many tests for speed, acceleration, hill-climbing, economy, brake tests and all-around reliability, without a single penalty. The Essex Challenger was also awarded the Gold Medal for flawless performance throughout the Tour. Hudson and Essex also won the Dunlop and Spido Cups, offered the two leading cars built by the same company.

The second successive winning of the Tour de France is important chiefly as it confirms what these cars have everywhere proved in reliability, performance, economy and value.

Socialization of Scandinavia Goes Steadily Forward

Co-Operative Stores, Rent-Payers' Union, Government Competition With Power Companies to Keep Rates Down, Are Among the Signs of Economic Movement that, in Face of Vigorous Opposition, Is Gaining Ground.

By M. W. Childs,
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, June 8.

FROM the remotest province in Norrland to the southernmost tip of Skane, there is going forward in Sweden a process of socialization that is slowly but unmistakably changing the economic character of the country. In varying degrees this same process is going forward in all of Scandinavia, in Norway, Denmark and Finland.

It is the answer to Russia—the recognition of an enormously potent new factor in the economic life of Europe, one which will necessarily cause radical adjustments. Sweden being the dominating power in Scandinavia, it is logical that the socialization process should focus here.

It has taken various forms. This country has long been a proving ground for state-owned public utilities, power, light, railways, telephones, telegraph, efficiently managed in the interests of the consumer for a moderate profit to the Government. But along with this there has developed an intensely interesting co-operative movement, one with implications so far-reaching that it is not possible to say where it will end.

The co-operative movement in Europe had its origin as early as 1840. It developed slowly in Sweden. So late as 1900 it was of comparatively slight importance. But in 1904 there was organized the Co-operative Union, backed by a group of younger men who were keenly interested in fostering co-operation. The primary motive was to develop co-operative stores by means of individual co-operative associations in each town and rural community.

Co-operatives Cut Prices.

The Co-operative Union has had a most remarkable growth, particularly during the last 15 years. Its member societies now own and operate 3000 stores. The Co-operative Union is the largest wholesaler in Sweden. It has reduced the price of nearly every commodity in common use. And where, because of the existence of trusts or monopolies, it was impossible to cut prices, it has entered the manufacturing field with marked success. It is, in short, a proof of the possibility of co-operative endeavor, proof that a new economic system can develop side by side with the old, in competition with the old, as a matter of fact.

For from almost everyone concerned with the Co-operative Union this writer heard much of competition and business methods and little of social theory. "We are in business," the directors of the Union say, "and we want to manage our business as efficiently as possible."

They tell a story of the annual congress of the Co-operative Union to which come representatives from every member society. From a certain northern province there is a communist, the only one in the congress. At each meeting he rises to protest against the accumulated capital which is one of the assets of the Union. He favors reducing this capital preserve, or doing away with it entirely. And at each meeting his protest occasions a mild storm of laughter. It is not malicious laughter. It is merely that his proposal appears humorous and impractical to the other delegates.

How Union Holds Its Members.

The system used by the Co-operative Union, as explained by Managing Director Albin Johansson and his first assistant, Alf Kewenter, shows a deep appreciation of the quality of the average human mind. The Union is built on a loyalty, an esprit de corps of the 400,000 householders who are its members and this loyalty is in turn based upon a distinct economic advantage to those same householders. "We will save you at least $1 a week on your food supplies. Therefore, when one trust or another temporarily undercuts our prices on certain commodities, with the hope of forcing us eventually to raise our prices to their level, you will continue to buy from us." That is, in effect, what the Co-operative Union says to its ever-increasing membership. And it works.

The system is not, of course, so simple as all that. The Co-operative Union is the parent organization. It corresponds to the central office of the great American chains of

Tariff Bill Approved by Margin of One State

Analysis of Vote Which Passed New Revenue Measure Shows Republican Party Has Lost Its Grip in Several Sections of Nation.

Progressive Republican Northwest and Industrial New York, and Most of the Agricultural States, Except Those Which Were Especially Benefited by It, Opposed the Hawley-Smoot Measure Through Their Senators—In Area, Country About Equally Divided on Question.—Population Comparisons.

The twenty states which approved the new tariff law, the nineteen entirely opposed to it, and the nine whose Senators divided on the question. On population basis, the margin was 1,489,374, but in the House, the Representatives who voted for it come from districts with 19,000,000 more inhabitants than those opposed, most of whom live in agricultural states.

By Charles G. Ross,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 21.

ANALYSIS of the vote by which the Hawley-Smoot tariff bill was passed—44 to 42 in the Senate and 222 to 153 in the House—leads to some interesting deductions.

In the first place, the closeness of the vote in the Senate is significant. No bill that scrapes through the Senate by the margin of 2 votes (which means that the change of one ballot would have tied the issue) can be called a popular measure. The 2-vote majority contrasts with the advantage of 16 which those who call themselves Republicans have over the Democrats and the Farmer-Labor member. The figures show vividly the disunion in the Republican ranks. G. O. P. insurgents would easily have tipped the scales against the bill if high-protectionist Democrats from Florida, Louisiana and Wyoming had not come to the rescue.

Senate and House Compared.

The majority for the bill in the House, where the Republican party is under the tight control of a small group of leaders, was a substantial 69, but this must be contrasted with the normal Republican majority of 100. There was disunion also in the House, though it was not so pronounced as in the Senate.

Twenty States cast their full senatorial quota of votes for the bill; 19 States similarly went against it; nine States divided their ballots. The following table shows the line-up:

For the Bill	Against	Split
California	Alabama	Idaho
Colorado	Arizona	Kentucky
Connecticut	Arkansas	Maryland
Delaware	Georgia	Massachusetts
Florida	Iowa	Missouri
Illinois	Minnesota	Nevada
Indiana	Mississippi	New Mexico
Kansas	Montana	Utah
Louisiana	Nebraska	Washington
Maine	New York
Michigan	North Carolina
New Hampshire	North Dakota
New Jersey	Oklahoma
Ohio	South Carolina
Oregon	South Dakota
Pennsylvania	Tennessee
Rhode Island	Texas
Vermont	Virginia
West Virginia	Wisconsin
Wyoming

From this list it will be seen that the uprising against the tariff bill came not alone from the South and the Progressive Northwest, but also from the populous and highly industrialized states of New York and Massachusetts. Dissent was expressed as well in the "border" states of Missouri, Maryland and Kentucky. Not even "Old Joe" Grundy could class the opposition to this tariff bill as wholly an expression of the "backward" States.

How Farm Votes Were Won.

Though the agrarian interest, as represented in the Senate, was largely against the bill (even rock-ribbed Republican Iowa going against it), it is nevertheless true that the passage of the bill was made possible by the linking up of supposed benefits to agriculture with unquestionable benefits to industry.

The bill was called a "farm relief" measure. After due allowance for other political and personal considerations, it may be said that fruits and nuts brought California and Florida into line (the latter although it is represented by two Democrats), that sugar swung Colorado and Louisiana (the latter another Democratic state), that wool and hides took Senator Kendrick of Wyoming from the party fold and that farm duties in general had a persuasive influence on Kansas.

The farm duties, as claimed by Senator Norris and others, may be worthless to the farmer, but they turned the trick for the protected manufacturing interests.

City and Country in Opposition.

Manufacturers benefited by the bill should rise up and call the farmer blessed. Without him, there wouldn't have been any session to revise the tariff; without him, the bill never would have got through.

Some further figures will show the magnitude of the opposition to the tariff bill. The Senators who went against it represented a greater area of the country than those who supported it. This fact is more interesting than significant, but it does help to show that in the fight over the tariff bill there was a fundamental conflict between the states of large area (roughly speaking, the agrarian states) and the smaller states (roughly speaking, those in which manufacturing is the dominant interest). In the following table, the figures represent square miles, and wherever a state split its vote in the Senate, one-half the area of the state is allotted to each side:

When we come to the vote in the House we find some striking variations from the line-up in the Senate. The Representatives of such stalwart Republican states as Pennsylvania, Maine and Michigan and of such equally stalwart Democratic states as Alabama, Mississippi and Georgia voted, like their respective Senators, as a unit. But in many other cases the vote was split. Illinois, for example, which voted 100 per cent for the bill in the Senate, voted only 76 per cent for it in the House. On the other hand, New York, which voted 100 per cent against the bill in the Senate, voted only 56 per cent against it in the House.

Vote of Representatives.

Iowa and Nebraska, which, between them, are represented by three Progressive Republican Senators and one Democrat, afforded the sharpest disparities between the Senate vote and the House vote. Both of these States, in the Senate, went solidly against the bill, but Iowa in the House voted 10 to 1 for it and Nebraska 4 to 2 for it.

Here is the way the Representatives of the 48 States voted on the bill in the House:

This gives the tariff bill a majority of 19,615,460 in a total population of 105,273,048.

But when the same system is applied to the vote in the Senate, the result changes materially. Iowa's vote, for example, has got to be altered from 2,185,474 for the bill and 218,547 against it, to none for the bill and 2,404,021 against it. By virtue of New York's two votes in the Senate against the bill, the "no" column gains and the "yes" column loses 4,559,373.

When all the changes are computed, we find a net shift of 8,763,043 to the negative side, which makes the totals stand, on the basis of the Senate vote, 53,381,211 for the bill and 51,891,837 against it, or a difference of only 1,489,374.

And that margin—even if it exists—is not a margin that is calculated to give any comfort to the regular Republican leaders as they look forward to the fall elections. The tariff bill, if not actually a minority bill, was so close to it that the difference is imperceptible. One thing is as certain as anything of the future can be in politics: the Republican majority of 100 in the House will be reduced, and the tariff issue will contribute materially to that result.

Not Now, Mussolini Says, of Plan for Federated Europe

No Union Similar to the United States of America Is Possible at This Time, Because World War Adjustments Are Not Accepted as Final by Several Countries, and National Aims Still Clash.

ROME, June 21.

COMPLETE European calm does not yet exist because the various post-war treaties, even 12 years after the mighty conflict, have not allayed international dissatisfaction. The victors as well as the vanquished complain, so that the present status quo is not accepted by all as the final word in post-war adjustment.

Besides, the differences cut deep into national pride and it is difficult to see how time can heal the wounds for many of those who have been profoundly affected. Time is not the remedy for the healing of nations: More radical treatment is awaited, treatment which can remove the festering parts and restore them to health.

Before we can consider a permanent readjustment we must ask whether Germany must be made ready and willing to forego and forget her present claims. Hungary, too, cries out in agony about her restricted frontiers, while Italy, as one of the victors, feels that without mandates and greater colonial concessions she was not given her just demands, commensurate with the contribution she made in the conflict.

Can we therefore proceed to a permanent acceptance of the status quo and talk about the unity of Europe before these outstanding ills have been cured? The proposal to consolidate Europe on the basis of the present status quo into a United States of Europe is, to say the least, premature. Would such a combination achieve the desired aim when these differences are still hanging fire?

Combinations of History.

The present age is not unlike previous ages in devising combinations of nations to confront other combinations. Only in the time of conquerors like Alexander and Caesar have we been without these combinations. Far back in the depths of history, along the Nile, Euphrates or Jordan, whence civilization first came, we find them. Genesis records the battles of the four kings against five in the time of Abraham. The Middle Ages is full of them; modern times have kept them and have made them bigger and more powerful because the world is more populated and richer.

The war broke up one combination, putting an end to any cry for a Pan-Germania, at least for many decades to come, and as far as Italy is concerned, for all time. And out of the war, leaving the world as it did and was inevitably bound to do, in a state of derangement, came the League of Nations, and now the project for a United States of Europe sponsored by the Government of France. These combinations, added to those which had existed for some time, give to the world a most complex system of loyalties.

To begin with, the most compact group of nations existing at the present time is that of the British Commonwealth of Nations, as some statesmen have proposed calling the British Empire. The so-called dominions are nations belonging to a combination of nations under the aegis of a Pan-Britannia. The historic Monroe Doctrine has virtually created a Pan-America to the extent that the word Pan-America has attained noteworthy significance.

Extension of Pan-Russia.

There is a Pan-Russia which, though it has changed the objectives of the pre-war Russia of the Czar, has extended and widened them considerably. What was at the most Pan-Slavia is still Pan-Slavia, plus Pan-Soviet which aims at encompassing the world. Then we have Pan-Islam which, though its head has been cut off in Turkey, is wriggling over all the Moslem countries. There too is Pan-India, and so on. In these varied and complex combinations, where does the function of a Pan-Europa recently proposed by M. Briand fit in and what are the practical advantages to be gained from the combination of all the European Powers?

There are today three outstanding examples of federated states which have stood the tests of time and stress and which have emerged from the shock and fire of conflict, whether in civil war or from without, with the bonds of federation drawn tighter and tighter together. They are the British Empire, the United States of America and what was once called the German Empire. Even though the latter was vanquished to the point

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy, or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Mrs. Burger Defines Her Position.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I AM quoted by your paper as saying it is all right for a dry representative to vote wet if his people are wet. As a matter of fact and truth I never made such a statement. I was questioned as to the attitude a representative should take upon the granting of a referendum on the eighteenth amendment if his state voted in the affirmative on that question. My reply was this: If a state voted overwhelmingly either way upon such a proposition it would be construed as a mandate to the representative upon that particular question. For instance: Missouri voted dry in 1926 on Proposition No. 4 by 275,543 majority. Had the question been upon the submission of a referendum on the eighteenth amendment, I should certainly hold it as a mandate to the representative to vote in Congress against such a referendum.

On the other hand, had that figure, 275,543, been a wet majority, it would have unquestionably been considered a mandate to vote in favor of a referendum in the State.

Beyond that one point, I contend that each dry representative should exercise his right to vote dry in such a referendum in his state should one be ordered. There was no implication in anything I have ever said to indicate "that representatives in office should comply regardless of conviction with the demands of their constituents." As a matter of fact again—representatives usually do comply with the demands of their constituents, the dry representatives representing a dry constituency and the wet representing his wet constituency by their votes in Congress. The matter to which I have referred in the beginning of this article is entirely different.

I was simply endeavoring to be fair-minded and just in the opinion which I gave, which evidently the Post-Dispatch did not understand or appreciate.

May I call attention to a matter of fact again? I in no way represent the Anti-Saloon League. I have the honor of being the president of the Missouri Woman's Christian Temperance Union, an organization composed of thousands of Christian dry women who are loyal to our Constitution and our flag, and who are and will continue to be consistently dry.

What Henry George Said.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I NOTE that in spite of the protests of the press, the iniquitous Smoot-Hawley tariff bill has been passed by the Senate and the House, and signed by President Hoover.

Your efforts were highly commendable, but permit me to suggest that you could have accomplished far more good by devoting a little space to Henry George's "Protection or Free Trade." May I quote one paragraph from his book?

> Protection has always found an effective ally in those national prejudices and hatreds which are in part the cause and in part the result of the wars that have made the annals of mankind a record of bloodshed and devastation—prejudices and hatreds which have everywhere been the means by which the masses have been induced to use their own powers for their own enslavement.

Does not history prove this?

Sunday Blue Laws.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THOSE blue-nosed zealots who so anxiously guard the morals of the public by invoking eighteenth century thou-shall-not-on-Sunday "laws," will do well to take into account those guarantees of absolute religious tolerance contained in the Constitution, and the fact that there is at least one religion (the Jewish) that does not recognize Sunday as the Sabbath, or day of rest.

Strict enforcement of these moldy statutes or of any other blue-Sunday legislation would constitute nothing less than a mild form of the Inquisition to hundreds of thousands of orthodox Jews.

C. POLITAN.

Mr. Ford's Prediction.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

MR. FORD predicts universal mass production, higher wages, shorter hours and cheaper prices, resulting in a large home consumption of our manufactured products. This will automatically eliminate all necessity for the trade union movement and likewise will diffuse into thin vapor the effectiveness of the communist propaganda scare.

That this idea of Henry Ford must eventually come out of the economic chaos there can be no doubt. For there is no other road to economic progress, and progress must come, for it is a law of nature. The only question is, will it be solved by the slow method of voluntary introduction through a few great industrialists like Mr. Ford, or must it come by the direct way of national legislation in the form of a minimum wage, minimum hours and prices fixed by Government enactment?

Our industrialists should heed Mr. Ford's sound advice.

O. K.

WORLD DEPRESSION AND ITS CAUSES.

"Unemployment in Great Britain," says Premier MacDonald, "is due primarily to the world economic and financial crisis." At no time since the war has British industry prospered. In coal production she has been hard hit by the technical improvements in the generation of power, which have reduced the demand for coal, by the substitution of oil for coal as a fuel in manufacturing and in shipping, by the competition of German and Polish mines in the Mediterranean market. The great markets for her textiles have been limited by the erection of tariff walls around the new states of Central Europe and by the development of textile production in the Orient. The war's end cut the volume of ocean freight and left the world with an oversupply of ships. British bottoms have lain idle and shipbuilding has been at a standstill. The plight of these basic industries has reflected itself in the lessened demand for machinery, which has spelled stagnation in iron and steel production. Unemployment in all these lines has reduced purchasing power, cut the demand for goods and spread depression throughout the nation.

The fate of British industry is not without its significance for American business. Idle British textile plants buy no American cotton. Idle British workers buy fewer American automobiles, less American wheat. Europe's mounting trade barriers shut out American as well as British goods. Economic forces know no political boundaries. Depression, like prosperity, spreads throughout the economic structure. Behind the world's shifting trade and fitful industry lies the money problem. The currencies of all industrial nations are based on gold. Domestic industrial production in America, in Germany, in France, in Japan, has grown by leaps and bounds since the war; but gold output has by no means kept apace. The quantity of business exchanges has grown. The quantity of money available to accomplish those exchanges has increased but little. Prices, consequently, have had to fall and have fallen, in the last year, throughout the world. With falling prices, business men find themselves selling goods close to cost production or below it. They cut their scale of operations, lay off workers. Consumer purchasing power is reduced. Demand falls off. Depression prevails.

Economists have estimated that the world must add to its monetary gold stock by 3 per cent each year to carry on its increasing trade at a stable level of prices. There is scant prospect that the development of known ores will enable us to keep this pace. We are faced, therefore, with the prospect of a continuously declining level of prices involving business readjustment through repeated industrial crises. By economizing in the use of our gold supply we might save ourselves for a time. The creators of the Bank for International Settlements under the Young plan have pointed the way. Gold stored in a world bank would make possible the settlement of international accounts by a checking system, as individual accounts are now settled in a single city. It would eliminate the wasteful shipment of bullion back and forth across the ocean and enable Governments to expand their currencies in pace with the growth of trade; but in a world which waits for war no nation will surrender its gold. No nation will raze its tariff walls. No nation will brook interference with its imperialistic designs, nor will any nation permit its neighbor to offer counsel on its population problem, its immigration policy, its colonial program.

Yet these are the very stuff of which national depression and prosperity, individual misery and well-being are made. One thing, at least, the present situation makes strikingly clear: economically we are all one people. That which is done by one affects every other one. Our problems are common problems. We must come to approach them in common if we are ever to plan for peace.

HOW TO DODGE A TORNADO.

Since "cyclone cellars" now are passe, except in a figurative and political sense, some suggestions on what to do when a tornado approaches are in order. These are furnished by a bulletin of the United States Weather Bureau, which says that it is possible to dodge a tornado, though it does not advise trying to outrun one. As nearly all such storms move toward the Northeast, except a few that go to the Southeast, one can get away by swift travel in an opposite direction. When a tornado is sighted moving across country, plucking feathers from chickens, driving straws through oak trees, turning wells inside out and wreaking other havoc, the observer will find "the automobile obviously a valuable adjunct for escape," the bureau judicially states, provided there is a road or open country available for haste at right angles to the storm's course.

Here again the motor age shows its superiority to the horse-and-buggy era. The Weather Bureau bulletin opens a new field to the auto manufacturers, for obviously swift pick-up and high speed will have more than usual significance when the driver is racing a tornado. A few tests of the Weather Bureau's advice should furnish some thrilling testimonials, too. The tornado belt will await with much interest the results of the first authenticated tornado-auto race.

ANOTHER RIGHT GONE WHAM.

United States District Judge Wham in East St. Louis holds that Federal prohibition agents need not wait for a search warrant and may rush right into a house in which from the outside they see cans, jugs and bottles they believe to contain illicit liquor. Apart from the case in which this decision was given, which may have included circumstances peculiar to itself, Judge Wham departs far from the common law theory of search and the constitutional guarantee against its abuse.

We do not presume to read the Judge a lesson in law—and indeed he may be, probably is, right, within the letter—still we admit an old-fashioned prejudice against letting any official Tom, Dick or Harry gallop into a home on a basis of what he merely thinks, believes or suspects. Of course an officer has the right and duty to invade premises where he has reason to believe a crime is being committed, but the emphasis should be on the "reason" rather than the "believe."

Frankly, we cannot believe that a can or jug is per se a suspicious object, or that a bottle of illicit whisky, however it may smell or taste, necessarily looks any different from whisky one has a right to possess. In another jurisdiction, analogous to our point of view, the Court held that the mere smell of fermenting mash did not justify a raid without a search warrant, because mash for a moonshine plant smells just the same as mash for a legally licensed and registered still. Nevertheless, we dare say Judge Wham is right and will be upheld.

It becomes increasingly apparent that prohibition has thrown a lot of basic law into the ash can; that a species of anarchy prevails, and that the courts, no less than Congress, are deciding questions with an eye to what they conceive to be policy instead of the plain hard sense of the situation.

GOV. LONG'S GRUDGE LEGISLATION.

Huey P. Long, eccentric Governor of Louisiana, is out for revenge on his newspaper critics by proposing a tax of 15 per cent on gross advertising receipts. To single out one business for such a tax is contrary to principles of taxation and of justice. The New York Herald Tribune congratulates the Louisiana press "upon having drawn this fire from their Governor. It bears eloquent testimony to the force of the campaign which they are making in behalf of reform."

There have been many similar attempts on the part of politicians to cripple or gag newspaper criticism. Pennsylvania once passed a law sponsored by Gov. Pennypacker, to forbid caricaturing public officials in print. This was the Governor's method of safeguarding his own figure from imaginative reproduction by cartoonists. The law was short-lived, being repealed when the sensitive Pennypacker left the political scene.

A more striking instance of legislation proceeding from a grudge is the Minnesota gag law, now being contested in the courts. This law was passed at the behest of a legislator harassed by a publication of no consequence called the Duluth Rip Saw. It was his method of silencing criticism, though he already had ample protection from injury under the libel laws. The Rip Saw's editor died before action could be taken, but the law remained on the books as a threat to all newpapers which might incur the enmity of politicians.

In 1927 the Saturday Press of Minneapolis, which had waged a clean-up campaign against the city administration, was subjected to prosecution under the gag law. County Attorney Floyd Olson, whom the paper had attacked, obtained an injunction against the paper on the ground that it published "malicious, scandalous and defamatory matter." The Saturday Press was forced to suspend publication, although many of its charges of municipal corruption were subsequently borne out.

The Minnesota law strikes at the very heart of the ancient American principle of freedom of the press. As the Miami News puts it, freedom of the press in Minnesota is reduced "to about the freedom of the straitjacket." If such a law is held valid, newspapers will be at the mercy of any rascally public official who cannot afford to have his actions exposed. The public would be deprived of its greatest safeguard against dishonesty in public office.

Gov. Long is using a more subtle weapon in his tax proposal, but his motive is the same as that of the Minnesota legislator who squirmed under the attacks of the Rip Saw. It comes under the head of grudge legislation and is, therefore, apart from all questions of constitutionality, not worthy the serious consideration of the Louisiana Legislature.

REFRESHING SENATOR WATSON'S MEMORY.

Senator Watson, emerging from a tariff confab at the White House, says belligerently: "Let it be an issue. We have never lost yet on that issue." Has the Senator forgotten the names of Payne and Aldrich, Schedule K, President Taft's Winona speech and the Ides of November, 1912, when, after the tumult and shouting died, the G. O. P. found it had carried only Utah and Vermont?

POLITICAL IDEALISM IN FRANCE.

Are French literati being satirical when they compare the political idealism of 1930 with the 1830 romantic movement in literature? That movement produced Victor Hugo, Balzac and Lamartine, and is summed up as a time when France forgot about its petty local concerns and envisioned humanity as a whole. In 1930, say the literati, political leaders are expressing a similar romanticism in terms of the proposed United States of Europe, the treaty of Locarno and the Briand-Kellogg pact.

Surely the idea of a United States of Europe is an idealistic and romantic idea, we might even say fantastic. It is predicated upon the assumption that it is possible to merge a score or more of relatively homogeneous nations, each with its distinct language, culture, traditions and jealously guarded sovereignty. Practical men quail at the problems involved in devising a single government, or even a customs union, under which Italians and Englishmen, Swedes and Lithuanians, Albanians and Spaniards would be willing to live.

Closer to reality, yet romantic to a degree, is the Kellogg-Briand pact, which outlaws war as an instrument of national policy, but has no machinery to insure its effectiveness. It is merely a pious declaration which, in the fierce emotions of international emergency, would be waved aside without a thought, just as the Russians indignantly dismissed it when the pact was invoked to influence the Soviet policy in the Chinese Eastern Railway controversy. The Locarno "spirit" is something conjured up as an artificial stimulant of Franco-German friendship.

French statesmanship, particularly in the person of Aristide Briand, has been prominent in all these idealistic enterprises, but it has always been careful to keep them divorced from reality. The French are willing to talk idealism, but they sternly object to doing anything about it. The prime example of that, of course, occurred at London, when concrete armament proposals conjured up a storm of bugaboos in the French camp. It developed there that France, the world's greatest military machine, so little trusted its neighbors as to form, with Italy, an obstacle at nearly every point of the negotiations.

Words and performance are two different things. Political idealism, if it is shared by a whole people instead of being concentrated in one such eloquent voice as Briand's, is a thing at which to marvel. We hardly think it is accurate to term as an era of French political idealism one in which we have many golden words but little performance; in which a French statesman poses as a prophet of humanity, but cannot marshal his fear-ridden countrymen.

SPEAKING OF FOUL BLOWS—

The Government In Business

Reorganizing waterways service on efficient basis turned $1,000,000-a-year loss into $82,000 annual net income; made possible by vesting authority in one man and forming corporation with powers of any private concern; Gen. Ashburn, chairman, says U. S. can show the same results in any line with proper organization.

Major-General T. Q. Ashburn in the Nation.

CAN the Government successfully carry on a business? I believe that it can if the business is rightly organized. In the case of the Inland Waterways Corporation, I believe that we have shown how it should be organized; namely, so that it may function as any private business corporation functions. The Inland and Coastwise Waterways Service lost nearly $1,000,000 a year from 1920 to 1924, inclusive. Reorganized in 1924 as the Inland Waterways Corporation, it has turned that loss into an average annual net income from operations of $82,000 for the years 1925 to 1929.

The Inland and Coastwise Waterways Service was created in 1920 to carry on a water transportation system analogous to a great trunk rail system, providing cheaper transportation to the public than all-rail. From 1920 to 1923 the service existed under the greatest difficulties. It was poorly equipped, its yearly life depending upon the temper of Congress in the matter of appropriations. It had no assurance for the future and could therefore make no plans; its very existence was threatened by interdepartmental quarrels.

The service was absolutely doomed to fail unless it could have a fair chance to operate as any other transportation agency would operate. Realizing this fact, and being responsible to the Secretary of War and to Congress for the operation of the service, I suggested in my annual report for 1923 that since there seemed to be a sincere disposition to develop common carriers on our interior streams there must be a general recognition of what our experience had demonstrated, and that there should be presented to Congress a concrete program based on that demonstration, this program to be accepted or rejected.

The creation of the present Inland Waterways Corporation was then recommended. The argument for such a corporation was set forth, in brief, as follows: We believe that if a corporation is created, provided with $5,000,000 capital, and given all the powers necessary to fulfil the purpose of its creation, we can so function as to demonstrate in five years either that water transportation can be placed on a self-sustaining basis or that our whole policy of making streams navigable is a colossal mistake and should be abandoned.

In drafting the bill every conceivable form of Government corporation was studied. The object was to create a corporation with all necessary powers, to place it under a single responsible head, and to eliminate any merely supervisory authority over this head. The corporation was granted therefore all the powers possessed by any private transportation agency, and in addition "such other powers as may be necessary or incidental to fulfill the purpose of its creation."

If the public was to have assurance that it might safely patronize Government lines it was necessary to make certain that operations would not suddenly be discontinued and that new projects would not dissipate our funds. The law accordingly provided that "the operation of any such facilities shall not be discontinued and new lines shall not be developed or operated until authorized by Congress."

For the further protection of the public, the corporation was made liable before the courts and it can be sued without the consent of the United States. In order that it might operate like a private corporation, the necessary money had to be available at all times and subject to no restrictions except that it must be spent to carry into effect the policy of Congress. This end was achieved by having a capital stock of $5,000,000 appropriated by the United States, to remain available until expended.

Congress thus created a corporation with capital stock fully paid up, with all necessary powers definitely granted, with a continuing executive head, and with all the responsibility for the success of the enterprise vested in one man, the Secretary of War, who represents in himself the stockholders and the board of directors.

The chairman is in direct control of the executive department, which is located in Washington. Its total overhead is less than $50,000 a year. Each year the chairman prepares and submits to the Secretary of War a budget covering all salaries for the next year, which includes every employe except laborers paid by the day or hour. Owing to our accurate cost system this budget, prepared a year in advance, has rarely if ever been exceeded.

The corporation operates mainly on the Mississippi and Warrior rivers. The division managers, who are charged with maintenance and repair of terminals, have full authority within the limits prescribed by the by-laws, their activities being co-ordinated through the executive department. We consult freely with outside experts and pay them well for their services.

What have been the results of this Government enterprise? The history of the Warrior River Terminal Co., a subsidiary of the Inland Waterways Corporation, offers one striking example of its efficiency. The corporation took over a railroad 19 miles in length which had been thrown into the hands of a receiver and ordered sold by a court in 1926, and rehabilitated the property so that in 1928 is earned more than $30,000 in excess of 6 per cent on the value of the property.

When the Inland Waterways Corporation was organized, the sound value, with nothing allowed for good will, entered upon the books of the corporation amounted to $9,762,858. In November, 1929, the book value of the corporation was no less than $19,746,350.06. The capital stock of the corporation, originally fixed at $5,000,000, was later increased to $15,000,000. On Dec. 31, 1929, there was a little more than $2,200,000 of cash on hand and unissued stock to the amount of $6,000,000.

A study of the accounts of this corporation, its methods of operation, and its financial results will, I believe, demonstrate that its operations have been highly efficient. In my opinion, any similarly organized Government corporation can be made just as efficient.

WASHINGTON DAY BY DAY

WASHINGTON, June 22.

PROBABLY the Navy's most silent ma is to take command of the United Stat fleet next fall when Admiral William V. Pratt's assignment comes to an end. least Rear Admiral Jehu V. Chase has th reputation at the Navy Department i Washington, where he has been serving a member of the general board.

Six feet tall, with blue-gray eyes, whit hair which is inclined to be curly, and mustache that almost rivals that of Admiral Hughes, Rear Admiral Chase is a most distinguished looking officer.

He was an impressive figure on th stand before the Senate Foreign Relatio Committee when it conducted hearings o the London naval pact. Opposed to ratification of the treaty by the Senate, the future Commander-in-Chief of the fleet remained serene under the grilling he received at the hands of administratio leaders.

HE lives in Washington at the Chevy Chase Club. His greatest hobby mathematics. He is constantly scribblin on anything that is near him—figuring and working out problems having to do with Navy ordnance.

There are guns used by the Navy now which were designed by him as a resul of this constant scribbling. Jotting dow figures is about his only source of recreation.

A graduate of the Naval Academy in th class of 1890, he was commissioned a Rear Admiral by President Harding in 1922. H will have the rank of Admiral while i command of the fleet.

PAULINA LONGWORTH, the precocious, long-curled young daughter of Speaker Nicholas and Princess Alice, is developing into a first-rate equestrienne. Paulina's mount is a pony not much taller than she, by the name of "Snappy"—a name, by the way, which she selected and insisted on. A few days ago, clad in the most correct riding attire and astride "Snappy," she posed with her father.

Caption writers explained the picture to be: "Mr. Nicholas Longworth, Speaker of the House, and his well known daughter, Paulina, caught in the midst of a conference on the difference between guiding an unruly majority in the House of Representatives and a sometimes unruly pony by the name of Snappy."

Paulina was just as happy as any other child when the circus paid its annual visit to Washington early in the month. She and friends of her own age attended a matinee and sat in the first row opposite the center ring. She yelled lustily and enjoyed the antics of the clowns with much enthusiasm. Princess Alice and Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick were with the children.

A TER the indictment of Dreyfus on Dec. 12, 1894, the attacks of the press against the German mbassy and its members increased, ince it was assumed that the con-emnation had proved Dreyfus' onnection with the German embassy. Consequently the German Ambassador, Count Muenster, had he following published by the "Figaro" of Dec. 25:

"Never, has the embassy had any connection, be it direct or indirect, with Capt. Dreyfus. No tem coming from him has been tolen at the embassy, nor has any demand been made regarding the exclusion of the public during the trial."

On Dec. 27, 1894, I left for Berlin, had occasion to discuss the affair thoroughly with his majesty, he Emperor, with the Imperial Chancellor, Prince Hohenlohe, and ith the Chief of Staff. I could but epeat that the entire affair was a mystery to me, but that I thought t advisable to put pressure upon he French Government to have the unjustified attacks against the German embassy and its members stopped.

On the afternoon of Jan. 6, Count Muenster had an audience with President Casimir Perier. After the Count had submitted his request, the President told him hat the bordereau in question actually had been found at the German Embassy, but "the Embassy is in no way responsible for papers that are addressed to it than France for papers it may receive." Count Muenster was satisfied with the reply of the President and asked for a formal declaration, to which the President agreed.

Deported in Chains to Devil's Island.

On Jan. 17, 1895, Dreyfus was eported at night, in chains, via La Rochelle to the depot of St. Martin-de-Re. On Feb. 21 he embarked and arrived on April 12 at his deportation place, at Devil's Island.

In the meantime, Esterhazy, unconcerned by all that had happened, had visited me more than once. When he came to me on Nov. 3, 1894, with important information, immediately after the publication of Dreyfus' arrest, and I called his attention to the danger of his visits in connection with this arrest, he said that nothing could happen to him since he had taken the necessary precautions so that his visits, even should they be discovered, would not cause any suspicion.

I leave it undecided how far this cocksureness was based on the complicity of Maj. Henry of the Intelligence Service Office. Esterhazy never mentioned anything in this direction. But I do not think it improbable.

When I questioned him concerning the arrest of Dreyfus, he was not able to give an explanation, but said that I should be most cautious in transferring my information to Berlin, since he had reasons to assume that the French Ministry of War was aware of the fact that secret information went to Berlin through my mediation. This also seemed to point to Henry's co-operation.

Esterhazy Even Invented Information.

Esterhazy never sent his information by mail, but always brought it to the Embassy himself at all times of the day. If I was not present, he left the information in an envelope in the letter box in the lodge of the porter.

It is evident that Esterhazy, who was in great need of money and only received money if he brought usable information, strained every effort to submit as much information as possible, and in an emergency he even brought information of inferior value and even information invented by him, so as not to be without means.

As early as June 1895, I had intended to sever my connections with him, but upon his supplications and his promise to submit only important information, I continued my relations with him until March, 1896.

At this period I deduced from various indications that at least part of his information was of a doubtful nature. I therefore completely severed my relations with him and did not see him again earlier than October.

German Attache Tells How Truth About Dreyfus Was Discovered; Kept Silence, Believing Officer Would Be Freed

Gen. von Schwartzkoppen Felt Disclosure Would Not Have Been Advisable From a Diplomatic Standpoint.

Von Buelow Said It Was Not Desirable That France Should Regain Liberal and Jewish Sympathies by Dreyfus Vindication.

By GEN. MAX VON SCHWARTZKOPPEN,

Military Attache of the German Embassy in Paris When the Dreyfus Case Began.

HEREWITH is presented the final installment from the memorandum on the Dreyfus case by Gen. Max von Schwartzkoppen, Military Attache of the German Embassy in Paris in 1894 when Captain Dreyfus was convicted of betraying French military secrets to Germany. Dreyfus was accused of writing the famous bordereau to von Schwartzkoppen promising the delivery of certain military documents. This bordereau, which von Schwartzkoppen declared never reached him, really was written, as was shown later, by Major Count Esterhazy, another French army officer, who was negotiating with von Schwartzkoppen to sell military information.

In last Sunday's installment von Schwartzkoppen told of documents that were secretly introduced at the Dreyfus court-martial by the military authorities to bolster up the accusation that Dreyfus had written the bordereau. Dreyfus was convicted, degraded and sent to Devil's Island, France's penal colony off French Guiana.

In today's installment von Schwatzkoppen records his dealings with Esterhazy for a year and a half after the arrest of Dreyfus, of the continued efforts of Dreyfus' family and friends to vindicate him, of the intrigues of the French military clique to frustrate this, and of the publication of a facsimilie of the bordereau in November, 1896.

It was this publication, von Schwartzkoppen declares, that disclosed to him for the first time the chief evidence on which Dreyfus had been convicted and the fact that it was Esterhazy, not Dreyfus, who had written the bordereau.

Von Schwartzkoppen tells why he did not come forward with this information. It was not until years afterward that Dreyfus was fullly exonerated of all guilt, restored to his rank in the army and later decorated with the Legion of Honor.

Official German documents discovered recently in the archives of Wilhelmstrasse give added light on von Schwartkoppen's role in the case. After he had returned to Germany and was in command of a Guards regiment he wrote a report explaining why he had concealed his dealings with Esterhazy from Ambassador Muenster, his superior, and allowed the Ambassador to disclaim officially to the French Government any negotiations with French officers.

Von Schwartzkoppen asserted in the report that he had only obeyed the orders of the General Staff at Berlin, issued with the approval of Chancellor Buelow.

Shortly before the second trial of Dreyfus at Rennes in 1899, at which he was again convicted, the French Foreign Minister and also Dreyfus' attorney appealed to the German Government to allow von Schwartzkoppen to give evidence. This was refused and the German documents show that Buelow decided the question with the words:

"It is not desirable that by a swift and startling reparation for Dreyfus, France would not once regain Liberal and Jewish sympathies; it willl be best for us if the affair smoulders on, disintegrates the army, and scandalizes Europe."

General von Schwartzkoppen died of war wounds in Germany in 1917. His memorandum on the Dreyfus case, of which the accompanying article is a part, was brought to light after his death.

CAPT. DREYFUS
At the Time of His Trial.

AFTER the indictment of Dreyfus on Dec. 12, 1894, the attacks of the press against the German embassy and its members increased, since it was assumed that the condemnation had proved Dreyfus' connection with the German embassy. Consequently the German Ambassador, Count Muenster, had the following published by the "Figaro" of Dec. 25:

"Never has the embassy had any connection, be it direct or indirect, with Capt. Dreyfus. No item coming from him has been stolen at the embassy, nor has any demand been made regarding the exclusion of the public during the trial."

On Dec. 27, 1894, I left for Berlin, had occasion to discuss the affair thoroughly with his majesty, the Emperor, with the Imperial Chancellor, Prince Hohenlohe, and with the Chief of Staff. I could but repeat that the entire affair was a mystery to me, but that I thought it advisable to put pressure upon the French Government to have the unjustified attacks against the German embassy and its members stopped.

On the afternoon of Jan. 6, Count Muenster had an audience with President Casimir Perier. After the Count had submitted his request, the President told him that the bordereau in question actually had been found at the German Embassy, but "the Embassy is in no way responsible for papers that are addressed to it than France for papers it may receive." Count Muenster was satisfied with the reply of the President and asked for a formal declaration, to which the President agreed.

Deported in Chains to Devil's Island.

On Jan. 17, 1895, Dreyfus was deported at night, in chains, via La Rochelle to the depot of St. Martin-de-Re. On Feb. 21 he embarked and arrived on April 12 at his deportation place, at Devil's Island.

In the meantime, Esterhazy, unconcerned by all that had happened, had visited me more than once. When he came to me on Nov. 2, 1894, with important information, immediately after the publication of Dreyfus' arrest, and I called his attention to the danger of his visits in connection with this arrest, he said that nothing could happen to him since he had taken the necessary precautions so that his visits, even should they be discovered, would not cause any suspicion.

I leave it undecided how far this cocksureness was based on the complicity of Maj. Henry of the Intelligence Service Office. Esterhazy never mentioned anything in this direction. But I do not think it improbable.

When I questioned him concerning the arrest of Dreyfus, he was not able to give an explanation, but said that I should be most cautious in transferring my information to Berlin, since he had reasons to assume that the French Ministry of War was aware of the fact that secret information went to Berlin through my mediation. This also seemed to point to Henry's co-operation.

Esterhazy Even Invented Information.

Esterhazy never sent his information by mail, but always brought it to the Embassy himself at all times of the day. If I was not present, he left the information in an envelope in the letter box in the lodge of the porter.

It is evident that Esterhazy, who was in great need of money and only received money if he brought usable information, strained every effort to submit as much information as possible, and in an emergency he even brought information of inferior value and even information invented by him, so as not to be without means.

As early as June 1895, I had intended to sever my connections with him, but upon his supplications and his promise to submit only important information, I continued my relations with him until March, 1896.

At this period I deduced from various indications that at least part of his information was of a doubtful nature. I therefore completely severed my relations with him and did not see him again earlier than October.

After the deportation of Dreyfus the matter seemed to come to a certain state of peace. This peace, however, was superficial, because Dreyfus' followers, thoroughly convinced of his innocence and led by his brothers, strained every effort to prove his innocence.

The fact that without the knowledge of the condemned and his lawyer secret documents, submitted to the court-martial, were the main reason for his condemnation gradually became known.

Alsace Refused to Believe Him Guilty.

In Alsace, his native land, where the Dreyfus family occupied a prominent position in Mulhouse, nobody would believe a crime of this nature could have been committed by one of its compatriots.

Only when Major Picquart became the director of the French Intelligence Service did the affair take a decisive turn. Picquart succeeded Col. Sandherr on July 1, 1895, to the great displeasure of Major Henry, who wanted this position for himself.

General de Boisdeffre, Chief of Staff, told Maj. Picquart on entering his position at the Intelligence Office he should continue investigating the reasons which might have induced Dreyfus to become a traitor.

De Boisdeffre had not been fully convinced at that time of the guilt of Dreyfus. Picquart, who had been delegated by the Minister of War Mercier to attend to the proceedings of the court-martial and who had noticed then the flimsiness of proofs of Dreyfus's guilt, was confirmed in his original opinion that a great wrong had been done. This opinion, however, became a certainty, when in March, 1896, the much-discussed, so-called "petit-bleu" came into his hands.

I have already mentioned that at that time I was dissatisfied with Esterhazy's information, that I had not failed to mention this to him at his visit on February 20, and had threatened to sever our connection.

Postcard Falls Into Hands of French War Office.

Early in March, when Esterhazy did not appear for some time, I wrote him a "petit-bleu"—a sealed tube postcard—containing the following:

"I await above all a more detailed explanation than that which you have given me the other day concerning the pending question. Therefore I request you to give it to me in writing, thereby enabling me to judge whether I am to continue my relation with the firm R. or not c . . . t."

How this card came into the possession of the French War Office, I do not know. In any case, it was NOT found torn up in my waste paper basket. I feel sure that I myself deposited this card in a mail letter box. That I was watched, and that the card was purloined there before having been stamped by the postoffice, I do not think improbable.

In any event, this "petit-bleu" came via the Intelligence Service to the hands of its chief, Maj. Picquart. Address and contents of the "petit-bleu" naturally aroused his attention. He did not doubt for a moment that this card referred to a new affair of espionage. He decided to keep the matter a secret for the time being to avoid prematurely exciting suspicion, as had been done in the Dreyfus affair. That the "petit-bleu" was connected with the Dreyfus affair developed later.

The watching of Esterhazy started on April 17, 1896, but did not result in connecting him with me, because I had no dealings with him after the middle of March.

Maj. Picquart first of all got in touch with a fellow-officer of Esterhazy and questioned him cautiously regarding Esterhazy's personality. The description of the fellow-office was not one to inspire confidence. He pictured Esterhazy as rather unpopular in the regiment, as very inquisitive regarding questions of artillery, and as being heavily in debt.

How Esterhazy's Script Was Identified.

After Esterhazy had been dismissed by me, he had tried through Deputy Jules Roche to get a commission at the War Office on the strength of which to renew the relation with me. He had written various letters to the Minister of War and his aide-de-camp.

One of these letters was submitted to Picquart, who thereby came into possession of Esterhazy's handwriting. He ascertained for the first time that it was the same as that of the bordereau. Picquart showed a photograph of this letter to Du Paty and Bertillon, without, of course, informing them by whom the letter was written.

Du Paty said it was the handwriting of Mathieu Dreyfus, the brother of the condemned. Du Paty claimed that the condemned had made use of his brother's handwriting for the bordereau.

Bertillon said:

"Ah, that is the handwriting of the bordereau!"

At the end of August, 1896, Picquart asked for the bordereau to ascertain for what reason Dreyfus had been condemned. He was surprised at the insignificance of the secret file, and his belief that Dreyfus had been convicted without being guilty became a certainty. He informed Boisdeffre, who was evasive and referred him to his chief, Gen. Gonse.

The entire proceedings at this period show that neither Gonse nor Boisdeffre and the Minister of War had any intention of taking up the Dreyfus affair.

They, as well as their adherents, Du Paty and Henry, ran the risk that if Picquart confirmed the innocence of Dreyfus and the guilt of Esterhazy, the prestige of the army, the good reputation of France and their own future would be spoiled. Any further investigation through Picquart had to be made impossible and the guilt of Dreyfus affirmed.

Forgeries Used to Re-Establish Guilt.

And now began a period of forgeries, of stolen letters, of false accusations to re-establish Dreyfus' guilt. On Sept. 10 and 14 two articles were published in the Eclair. It was stated that secret documents had been submitted to the court martial, among others the well-known document "Canaille de D."

Mme. Dreyfus presented a petition to the Chamber of Deputies for a revision of the proceedings, because the condemnation of her husband had been made on account of documents which neither had been submitted to the accused nor to his lawyer.

Picquart, who did not wish that the affair should be revised from this direction, got in touch with Gen. Gonse, calling to his attention the scandal which would arise if the investigation were not made by the War Office. During an interview with Gonse on Sept. 15 the following dialogue took place:

Gonse: This is an affair which cannot be revived! Gen. Mercier and Gen. Saissier are connected with this affair.

Picquart: But Dreyfus is innocent!

Gonse: That does not matter. We cannot be influenced by such considerations.

Picquart: You see that the Dreyfus family is working at the present time; that they strain every effort. Well, if they are going to discover the real culprit, what will our situation be?

Gonse: If you don't tell, nobody will know!

Picquart: This is awful, my General. I do not wish to carry this secret to my grave.

Gonse and Boisdeffre refused Picquart's proposal to summon Esterhazy and investigate the "petit-bleu," as well as the proposal to send a telegram to Esterhazy in the type of the "petit-bleu" and then arrest him.

When the Ministers involved in this matter, the Chief of Staff, Gonse, Du Paty and Henry, who in their own interest wanted to avoid, at all costs, the reviving of the Dreyfus affair, saw that Picquart continued his investigations of Esterhazy energetically, they became convinced that Picquart should be removed.

A very important occurrence in the development of the Dreyfus tragedy was the publishing of the facsimile of the bordereau in the Matin of Nov. 10, 1896. This publication excited the attention of the entire country, the greatest attention from me and Esterhazy, because only now I clearly saw that they had confused Dreyfus and Esterhazy; that Dreyfus had been convicted instead of Esterhazy.

Esterhazy must have been aware when his handwriting was published that he was lost. I immediately recognized the handwriting of Esterhazy and promptly informed my friend, Col. Panizzardi, who now learned for the first time the name and position of my informant.

Truth Withheld for Diplomatic Reasons.

My situation was rather awkward. The question now arose whether I should come out with the entire truth to give a full explanation concerning this awful mistake, thereby bringing about the discharge of one innocently condemned.

If I could have acted according to my desire I surely would have taken this step. But on careful consideration I came to the decision not to interfere in this matter, because, considering the state of things, nobody would have believed me, and such a step would not have been advisable from a DIPLOMATIC STANDPOINT.

I further considered that the French Government now was in a position to take the necessary steps to compensate for the wrong they had done, and therefore I was fortified in my decision.

On Nov. 14, 1896, Picquart was taken to the Minister of War, Gen. Gonse, who declared that apparently indiscretions had taken place at the Intelligence Office; that it had been decided to give him immediately a special mission in the West. Prior to this the secret file of Dreyfus had already been taken away from Picquart.

of exhaustion of every ounce of Federal strength in the trial of the World War, she came out of it with a unity of German fervor unassailed by failure and disaster.

One of the three most important federations, the British Empire, is perhaps the only one which grew into a federation, through the vicissitudes of time. The urge of empire had carried the colonial pioneers into the unsettled and unexplored regions of the world, there to conquer and establish British rule. There they colonized and from the colony grew the nation which continued to merge its allegiance with that of the mother country and the other colonies under the British rule. There was only the one defection of the North American colonies, but after England learned that she could not pull her rein too tight her whole empire remained bound together by a common origin, civilization and blood.

Development of the U. S.

The mighty federated states of North America, though they commenced as an offshoot of the British colonies, developed in quite a different way. Throwing off the British rule, 13 of the original British colonies united for common defense as a preamble to their constitution distinctly stated:

"We, the people of the United States, in order to form a more perfect union, establish justice, insure domestic tranquility and provide for the common defense . . . do ordain and establish this Constitution."

The union established on this basis and with the added aid of common origin and civilization, the great history of the United States began. Expansion followed and the urge of empire, both territorial and economic, completed the structure which is today the mightiest empire of the West.

Once the federation was threatened by a bitter internecine struggle but emerged unbroken and welded by the fire of battle into a greater and more tempered union which time made inviolate.

The formaton of the German federation is summed up in the personality of Bismarck and the policy of blood and iron. There was the dynamic impelling force to establish German unity, stimulated both by the necessity for common defense as well as the onward drive toward expanson and empire. We know that the German people, united in race and language and in the common destiny of the Fatherland, accepted with enthusiasm the goal of unity and the greater goal of the German people. On this foundation the federated states of Germany have maintained their integral identity, merged into a whole that nothing can disturb and for which the whole is ready to fight as one man.

The Common Element.

In all three of these successful federations, there has been one common element which served to weld them together. Without the forward pressing toward common destiny of the federated nation, welded unity would be lacking. Common defense, enhanced by common destiny, has brought these three great federations to a full realization of their integrity. They will continue that bond of unity and their federated parts will be welded only so long as there is that common aim that is the common essential for their welfare which is found in the inviolate unity of their several component units.

Now, in the consideration of the new federation, namely, the United States of Europe, can we find such a community of effort, of aim, of destiny? How different are the aspirations of the European nations! Even more than plain diversity of aim, there is a conflict in that aim. In this present age, can the aspirations of France and Germany be merged? Can the interests of Great Britain be combined with those of the continental nations, while the nations of the far-flung British Empire demand loyalty to the standard of Britannia? How can we sink our various differences and standards? Europe today is too different to unite into one composite whole in which the interests and aspirations of each shall be absorbed in the welfare of the whole. Political, economic and racial complexions are too markedly different and would produce a European mongrel rather than a thoroughbred.

The reason for the federation is as yet lacking in Europe. The formation of a federation will need to be motivated by far greater and more dynamic forces than at present are found in the European international situation. Europe is not harassed yet by pressure from without. A federation might create such pressure. Pan-Europa might easily be met by Pan-America and Pan-Britannic.

Britain and Russia.

Two combinations stand out boldly—Great Britain and Russia. In case of these Powers are proposed federation they would be in a dilemma. First, if Great Britain came in it would entail the whole of the British Empire and the European federation would have immediately extended its boundaries to all parts of the world. Secondly, if Great Britain stayed out, the federation would be lacking the most powerful European Power.

Besides, is a European federation possible without Russia? She occupies almost one-half of Europe. What a tremendous threat! Then, could the Soviet political philosophy harmonize with that of the rest of Europe? And what of Asiatic Russia? Pan-Europa would be faced with the embarrassment of deciding whether she wants to leave half of Europe out or take half of Asia in.

There is in Europe a pressing necessity to reach a period of pacification, but the present unrest, discontent, maladjustment is an obstacle to any Pan-European consolidation. Before we can arrive at a general merging of aims, there must be earnest, sincere reconsideration of existing treaties. The nations which have come out of the war victorious are dissatisfied with what victory accorded them and before tranquillity is restored there must be a retouching of the facts which are the basis of European relations.

How Socialization of Scandinavia Progresses

grocery stores. It provides to the member societies the plans for the shop, the selling system, the auditing system, a manager if desired, goods at wholesale, etc. But the Co-operative Union is actually controlled through a system of proportional representative government by the various member societies. Its policies are decided and its directors elected at the annual congress by majority vote.

The co-operative system, as it effects the purchaser, works in this way. Suppose, for example, it is desired to start a co-operative society in a rural community where no co-operative store exists. Organizers for the Union go into the community and lay down a barrage of propaganda by means of meetings, special movie films and newspaper publicity. They secure a certain number of backers, interested persons who are willing to invest small sums varying from $25 to $100. These investors are guaranteed a return of 5 per cent on their money. Sometimes it is necessary for the Union to advance an additional small sum to start the store.

Rebates for Customers.

Once started, the society accumulates members—who are purchasers at the store—by a most ingenious method. The buyer receives with every purchase, however large or small, a coupon which when pasted in a book that is like a bank book and turned in at the end of the year entitles him to a 3 per cent rebate. These rebates must accumulate, with interest at 5 per cent, to 100 kronor (about $25) before the member can draw upon the capital.

The effect of this system is instantly seen. The coupons are a decided stimulus to buying. The thrifty Swedish housewife loves to see them accumulate. It is a painless form of saving. And at the end of the year, if all the coupons have been saved, three per cent of the year's purchases is returned in cash. Moreover, the fixed prices in th co-operative shops are slightly less than those in the other shops on most commodities, so that there are two economies, an outright one and the 3 per cent rebate. Nor does the membership of 400,000 householders, representing about one-fourth of the population, include by any means all those who shop at the co-operative stores. There are many casual purchasers who do not save their coupons.

Shops Models of Efficiency.

The shops are models of neatness and efficiency. In the large towns such as Stockholm and Gothenburg they are specialized, food stores, bakery and confectionery shops, butcher shops, and, within the last five years, shoe stores. Many of the societies, particularly those in rural communities and small towns, operate only one general store. The Stockholm society has 271, that in Gothenburg more than 100. The operation of the various shops is supervised by committees elected by the societies. If the store manager slackens his regime and the result is inefficiency and untidiness, he hears about it very quickly from the chairman of the committee.

The shops are designed along the lines of the most modern architecture, with wide expanses of glass. Within the wares are most conveniently and attractively displayed. The Co-operative Union maintains the largest architectural office in the country. As almost everywhere else in Sweden, the scrubbed cleanliness of all the shops visited by the writer was amazing. It would have been literally possible to have eaten from the floor.

Restaurants Added to Chain.

The co-operative movement is rapidly spreading into fields other than merchandising. The Stockholm society recently opened two excellent restaurants which will be operated as the stores are. The Co-operative Union two years ago organized an automobile insurance company which has already begun to prosper. And the Union is constantly reaching out for new manufacturing ventures.

It now owns the largest flour milling industry in the country. The mill and granaries at Stockholm contain the most modern equipment and there is a staff of technicians constantly at work seeking to improve the quality of the products manufactured and to reduce their cost. The Union has several olemargarine factories, producing a considerable percentage of the entire supply of the country. Large quantities of oleomargarine are used here, as in the other Scandinavian countries, since the Swedes export a great deal of their butter to England. Some years ago the Union began the manufacture of rubber-soled shoes and automobile tires and has since been compelled to enlarge its plant.

Manufactures Electric Bulbs.

The Union has recently completed a large factory on the outskirts of this city for the manufacture of incandescent light bulbs. The reason for entering this field illustrates very clearly the methods of the Co-operative Union. The manufacture of light bulbs in Sweden is controlled by a syndicate with American connections. The price in Sweden is maintained at about 35 cents for a 25-watt bulb. The Union felt that this price was too high, and tried, without success, to obtain cheaper bulbs. A thorough investigation proved they could be manufactured for about 24 cents, allowing a safe margin for profit which would go into the surplus of the Union. A long fight over patents followed. The Union won and the factory was begun. The Union fully expects that when it is ready to enter producton, the syndicate will make a radical price cut—to 20 cents or even lower—a figure which would be met. But the directors of the Union count on the loyalty of their members to pay a few cents more for light bulbs, knowing that the syndicate will not long continue manufacturing for the Swedish trade at a loss.

Much Bitter Opposition.

The Union has not reached its present point of development without fierce opposition on the part of certain manufacturing interests and the wholesale and retail merchants of Sweden. The later have formed a protective association to combat the growth of the Union. The propagandists for this association charge the Union intends to stifle free competition; that it is run on behalf of the policital interests of the Social-Democratic party; that its goods are of inferior quality; that it is mismanaged.

The Union doesn't bother to make a direct reply to these charges. It goes ahead with business as usual. Its advertisements appear in all the newspapers, particularly those that are in most violent opposition to the Union. These advertisements stress price and invite a comparison of quality with the goods in privately-owned shops. The stores stock the goods of all leading private manufacturers as well as those made in co-operative factories and mills. They are complete shops in every respect, with everything that he consumer could possibly desire.

Welcomes Competition.

"We are in business, we yelcome competition," Kentwater said. "Without competition and keen competition, we fear we might become lax and careless. About all, we do not want to eradicate our competitors. We want to compete with them in the matter of efficiency and price as we are doing today. It is quite unfair to say that the Union is used politically. Politics, theory, enter very little. And it is not controlled by the Social-Democratic party. Some of our officers and directors belong to one party, some to another."

It is true, however, that a certain idealism must inspire most of officers and directors. Their salaries, when the scope of the business of the Union is considered, seems very low. Albin Johansson, managing director, receives a salary of 20,000 kronor a year, a little more than $6000.

It becomes obvious that there is no limit to which the co-operative movement may go here in Sweden. First, however, it must hold the advances it has made and that, in the opinion of impartial observers, may prove difficult. The personnel up to the present time has been of a very high standard, thanks largely to the group of younger men who, before the war, were keenly desirous of fostering the co-operative movement. The standard of the personnel must be kept up if the co-operative movement is to enlarge its scope. And that, say certain impartial observers, will be the difficulty.

Co-operative Apartments.

New ventures are continually engaging the interests of the directors. There is now nearing completion here in Stockholm a group of co-operative apartments built for the mill and office workers. They will be leased at very modest prices for Stockholm, where rents are higher than in any other capital of Europe. They were built by the Co-operative Union and they may lead to similar developments around other co-operatively owned mills and factories.

The story of co-operative housing in Sweden is a chapter in itself. In 1923, the architect, Sven Wallander, aided by a small subsidy from the state in the form of vacant property, started a co-operative housing movement called the Rent-Payers' Union. Since that time in Stockholm alone apartments housing 4000 families have been built. A proportionate number has been built in other cities. The tenant pays down about $250, which gives him a 20-year leasehold. In addition he pays an annual rental of a little less than $250. This is for an apartment of two rooms, kitchen and bath. These phenomenally low rates are possible, of course, because no ground rent is included in the cost. The buildings are handsome and arranged around garden courts. In all the larger buildings there are co-operative kindergartens with a nurse and teacher in charge from 7 o'clock in the morning until 6 in the evening. Children can be left here for a nominal sum if both father and bother are employed. Eighty per cent of the tenants of these co-operative apartment houses are working people. In several of the larger apartment buildings there are co-operative stores, but the Co-operative Union has no direct connection with the Rent Payers' Union.

Power Development.

In other departments that vitally concern the cost of living the process of socialization has been carried forward directly by the state. Power is a case in point. The Federal Government produces 35 per cent of the power that is being used in Sweden today and controls 32 per cent of the potential power resources of the country. About 1910 the Government began to develop power sites, chiefly in remote communities where private capital had lacked the initiative to enter. Since that time, however, the Government has built a chain of power stations which form a connected link along the whole length of Sweden, about a thousand miles.

The reasons for this development have been threefold. First, such a chain was desired because of the strong position it gives the Government in the power field—an almost impregnable position in the face of any crisis or emergency. Second, it was desired to make power available to even the most remote communities. The third objective was one of price. By competing in the open field the Government has kept power rates down to a comparatively low level.

Keeps Rates Down.

The Government has competed on a purely business basis from the first, paying a return on a capitalization that includes not only the real, but the potential value of the power sites involved in the development. The Government pays a tax to the various provinces through which its power lines run, as do private companies.

Power franchises in Sweden are very simple and very arbitrary. They state that power must be furnished at a certain price. Failing this, any other retailer of power, including the Government, may enter the field in competition. It is easily seen how an efficient Government power service can hold the rates of private companies in check. And there is little doubt that the Government service is efficient. It is kept free from politics to a large degree by a system of five-year appointments, with a board of directors composed of leading engineers and technicians. the directors stress the fact that the Government is in business, selling power in competition with highly efficient private concerns.

Phones and Railways.

The story is the same with the other state-owned utilities. The telephone system is generally conceded to be one of the most efficient in Europe. A large proportion of homes have telephones which cost the average householder about $2.50 a month. As an example of the efficiency of the service it is possible in Stockholm this summer, during the arts and crafts exposition, to place a call in four different languages, English, German, French and, of course, Swedish. This has been done for the convenience of foreigners. The state-owned railways, of which there are 3000 miles, are operated with great efficiency on carefully worked out schedules. They are rapidly being electrified.

So the process of socialization goes forward, one that will enable Sweden to retain a place in the new era that European economists foresee, an era in which Russia—a mechanized Russia—will play a prominent part.

The other Scandinavian countries are not far behind. In fact, because the farmers' co-operatives have been so thoroughly and skillfully organized, Finland ranks proportionately first in Europe in co-operative endeavor, Denmark second and Sweden third. Co-operation is a painless—to a large degree at any rate—means of adjustment to the modern world, a world that has little in common with that which existed before the war. It appeals to the solid sense of the Scandinavians. It may very well be the factor which will enable them to maintain the stout integrity of their northern peninsula and their securely entrenched position in the ecoaimic life of Europe.

12-YEAR SENTENCES GIVEN TWO ROBBERS

Six Others Who Pleaded Guilty Got Prison Terms for Felonies Last Week.

Two robbers elected to try their luck before juries in the criminal divisions of the Circuit Court last week and both lost. Each received substantial penitentiary sentences. They are Ernest B. Cantrell, 24 years old, 2425 Menard street, and Ralph Ludwig, 21, 1312 Mississippi avenue. Cantrell was sentenced to serve 12 years for a robbery in which three men got $7 They held up Edward Short, a restaurant proprietor of 1334 Hickory street, Feb. 19. Ludwig was sentenced to 12 years' imprisonment for his part in the hold-up of Berthold Sostman, a confectioner of 3648 Hebert street, from whom $20 and a radio valued at $75 were taken.

Six others, five men and a woman, also got penitentiary sentences on their pleas of guilty to violation of major criminal statutes. Foremost amongst these was Frank L. Berryhill, former sales manager and a director of the First National Co., a subsidiary corporation of the First National Bank, who entered pleas of guilty to four charges of embezzlement and was sentenced to 10 years' imprisonment.

Two-year sentences were given Miss Dode Kelly, a young woman recently from Michigan, who passed 32 worthless checks; Eli Hardison for burglar, John Lyman for grand larceny and Arthur Herling for attempted robbery.

During the week seven men appeared before the courts charged with carrying concealed weapons and six of them were punished. They are: Albert Kurtinitis, 50 days in the workhouse; Sidney H. Seegers, 50 days in jail; James Brown, 90 days in the workhouse; John Poston, $100 and costs; James Hudgins, 50 days in the workhouse, and Wilbur Jones, $100 and costs, paroled.

Defendants charged with major law violations who were permitted to plead to lesser offenses and take less than penitentiary punishment are: Chester Barn and Thomas Kerr, malicious trespess, one year n the workhouse; Manuel Cole, larceny from the person, one year in the workhouse; I. C. Foster, forgery fourth degree, three months in the workhouse; Dewey Lincoln, larceny of a motor vehiclie, one yea- in the workhouse; William Lucas, petit larceny, six months in the workhouse; Forrest Tavernier, grand larceny, five months in the workhouse; Eddie Lee Higgins, Robert Johnson and Rufus Sims, larceny of motor vehicle, six months in the workhouse; Joseph Stippey, malicious trespass, one year in the workhouse; James Hanna, petit larceny, one year in the workhouse; Keith B. Lippe, petit larceny, three months in the workhouse; John Scott, attempted robbery, one year in the workhouse; William Alberts, larceny from person, six months in the workhouse, and James Timberlake, one year in the workhouse, paroled.

INTEREST IN APARTMENTS AND FLATS INCREASING

Prices Reduced in Many Instances Below Reproduction Costs to Attract Buyers.

ACTIVITY IN SUBURBS NOTABLY IMPROVED

Many Inquiries About Store Buildings in Northwest and Southwest Parts of City.

By Berry Moore

While transactions in real estate are in compuaratively small volume, a revival of interest is indicated in both investment and residential properties, according to real estate dealers.

More offers were reported during the last week for apartments and flats than at any other time since the first of the year, the dealers said. This is viewed by the more optimtistic members of the Real Estate Exchange as pointing to renewed activity.

Prices of apartments, flats and residences have been reduced in many instances below reproduction cost, with the result that negotiations are on an aggresive scale for holdings in this category, real estate agents report. This applies especially to apartments, many of which must be liquidated to satisfy deeds of trust for which money is not available for renewal, without a reduction in indebtedness. Opportunities for advantageous purchases in buildings of this type, accordingly, are unprecedented.

It is reported that negotiations are pending for several structures in the skyscraper class, which are sought by life insurance companies and monied men for investment. These structures in instances are available at prices affording speculative investments, which is the chief incentive.

Building Retarde

Construction of apartments and flats has been reduced to comparatively small proportions both in the city and the suburbs, halted, by the restrictions placed on building loans by investment bankers, trust companies and real estate agencies. This fact, doubtless is being taken into consideration by prospective purchasers as promising to equalize supply and demand in buildings of this character.

As a result vacancies in buildings in these fields already have been reduced to an appreciable extent, it is stated, greatly strengthening the market position of the buildings. The restrictions on loans hardly will be lifted, in the opinion of dealers, until warranted by supply and demand, which looks to early stabilization in both rentals and values.

Sales of the residences thrown on the market also promise to be a feature, the revised prices at which they are offered, presenting opportunities for advantageous purchases. While home building is in noticeable evidence, it has not reached the proportions of former years at this season, except in the exclusive parts of the County. And there it is confined in the main, to costly residences.

Prices Attract Speculators

Prices at which residences in some of the exclusive parts of the city proper can be had are attracting speculators and investors, as well as homeseekers. Real estate agents report many offers for residences within the city, discounting higher prices, synchronizing with improved business conditions, which the more sanguine believe will be witnessed before the close of the year.

There is an active demand for business buildings on a substantial investment basis at pivotal points in the residential dstrcts, especially in the southwestern and northwestern parts of the city. Demand for buildings of this character on Delmar boulevard, both east and west of Skinker roads, also is marked.

Operations in the downtown district have slowed up with the advent of the summer season. Several deals are pending in this section with plans for large buildings. These are contingent on negotiations for building loans which hardly will obtain approval under present business conditions.

EDUCATION BOARD BUILDING LEASE

A feature of the week was the approval by the Board of Education of the terms and provisions of a 99-year lease under which a syndicate represented by the Holbrook-Blackwelder Real Estate Company is to acquire control of the Board of Education property at Ninth and Locust streets. The building, seven stories, is to be increased three stories in height.

As now agreed upon, the syndicate will pay a rental of $62,500

EDUCATION BOARD BUILDING LEASE

A feature of the week was the approval by the Board of Education of the terms and provisions of a 99-year lease under which a syndicate represented by the Holbrook-Blackwelder Real Estate Company is to acquire control of the Board of Education property at Ninth and Locust streets. The building, seven stories, is to be increased three stories in height.

As now agreed upon, the syndicate will pay a rental of $62,500 a year for the first 15 years, and an additional $5000 a year every 15 years, with a charge of $92,500 for the last nine years of the lease. Should the property continue to be held exempt from taxation, the syndicate is to pay the amount of the estimated tax to the Board of Education as additional remuneration. Public school property is exempt from taxation, but it is a question as to whether the status will be changed or not under the lease.

The agreement also stipulates that the syndicate shall deposit $450,000 in escrow to insure the erection of the additional stories, and also for alterations, and four passenger and freight elevators, provided for in the lease, besides posting a bond for the completion of these changes.

The syndicate also obligates itself to erect a new building on the site within 27 years, to cost not less than $1,000,000. The property has a frontage of 127 feet on Locust street and a depth of 112 feet on Ninth. It is opposite the Federal Building block.

Negotiations contemplated occupying of the first six floors of the building by Garlands Women's Apparel shop, now located on Sixth street between Locust and St. Charles streets.

Sam Hamburg, Jr., it was understood yesterday, is active in the negotiations for tenants for the building and for the loan for the additional stories and alterations.

Instead of the fifth, sixth and seventh floors, which it now uses, the Board of Education will occupy the seventh, eighth and ninth stories. Holbrook plans to lease the top floor to certain insurance companies. The board will pay the building lessee $27,922 a year rent for its new space and the deal provides that temporary quarters shall be furnished the board while the change is being made.

HARRY POTTER HOME PLACED ON MARKET

Residence With 42 Acres for Sale or Lease; on Litzinger Road.

The residence of Harry Potter of G. H. Walker & Co., on the south side of Litzinger road east of the Warson road, has been placed on the market. It is announced that Potter will go to New York in September, where he will be identified with Evans, Stillman & Co., stock and bond house.

The house, with 42 acres, is offered for sale or for lease. It is of the New England farm house type, with low ceilings, open fireplaces and exposed chimneys. The central part of the house is 90 years old, moved with fireplaces and floor intact, 800 feet from where it originally stood. Both the east and west wings of the building are newly constructed.

There is a total of 16 rooms and four baths. The west wing of the house includes the living room with paneled ceiling and open fireplace five feet across, brought from an old farmhouse in Brunswick, Me. The dining room, kitchen and maids' quarters comprise the east wing. All the walls are painted with exception of the dining room and maids' quarters, which are papered.

The premises include a garage for four cars with drive from Litzinger road.

The house was designed by Sperle & Jamieson, architects. It is generally recognized as one of the most distinctive country houses in the county. It is adjacent to the homes of Charles Holman, William Orthwein and Walter Smith.

It was stated seventeen acres in the east part of the tract were available without the house, but that it was preferred to sell the property as a whole. It has been listed with Albert T. Terry & Co.

E. J. A. Schneider Moves Office.

REALTY STANDARDS OUTLINED TO EXCHANGE

Code Governing Sales and Advertising Approved by Better Business Bureau.

Standards of Practice governing sales and advertising in the subdivision field have been prescribed by the Better Business Bureau. These standards have been submitted to the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange and have been given the approval of the Better Business Bureau Subdividors Committee composed of B. P. Owen of the B. P. Owen Organization, C. A. Shaw of the Shaw & Francis Realty Co., and R. A. Burns of the Bush-Burns Realty Co. They are set forth in the Better Business Business Bureau Bulletin which will be reau Bulletin which will be mailed to subdividors Monday:

Relation to Real Estate.

According to the Bulletin, for several years the Better Business Bureau of St. Louis has been quite active in the field of subdivision real estate, answering public inquiries regarding the past and present activities of various subdividers and not infrequently listening to the complaints of the buying public against unscrupulous sales agents.

This constant contact with the public and with subdividers has given to the Better Business Bureau of St. Louis an unique appreciation of the purchaser's reactions to the sales practices of subdividers, and the peculiar problems with which such real estate men must contend.

It will be remembered that this Bureau has for some time been campaigning against the tricky sales practices comonly known as the "free lot" scheme. In the latter part of 1925, when the Bureau started its campaign against this deceptive sales practice, there were nine companies operating in the St. Louis territory.

Through the co-operation of approximately 250 co-operating media, including newspapers, house organs, publications in various communities, etc.; through the cooperation of practically all of the theaters in St. Louis, through bus cards, radio stations and others, the Better Business Bureau educational advertising has been able to so crystallize public opinion that any company attempting to sell subdivision property by means of the "free lot" scheme has met with considerable public opposition.

SOUTHEAST CORNER OF NINTH AND WALNUT STREETS SOLD

The southeast corner of Ninth and walnut streets, 50x50 feet, has been purchased by a client of the Mathews Real Estate Co. The site is improved with a four-story building occupied by a cafe and printing concern.

It is understood that the purchase price was on a basis of $1000 a foot. This price, however, has not been verified by the Post-Dispatch. An apartment in the West End was given as part payment.

Thomas L. Remley, proprietor of the Remley market, was the grantor in the transaction. The name of the purchaser will be withheld pending final papers. Negotiations were handled by by Edwin H. Lebens, salesman for the Mathews Real Estate Co., in connection with I. Millner, real estate agent.

The property is opposite the plant of the Von Hoffman Printing Co., on the southeast corner, and the American Type Foundry Co. on the northwest corner of Ninth and Walnut streets.

This section is reflecting the wholesome effect of the new Federal Building project for the block bounded by Twelfth, Market, Walnut and Eleventh streets.

TWO FLAT BUILDINGS SOLD AT 3726 FOREST PARK BL.

Property extending 85 feet 11¼ inches on the south side of Forest Park boulevard has been purchased by Bertha Blome from Celia M. Stuever and the estate of Francis L. Stuever. The property is improved with two two-story flat buildings of three and four rooms, numbered 3726-28-30-32.

Cornet & Zeibig acted for all parties.

ARCHITECTS ISSUE PAMPHLET ON BUILDINGS THEY DESIGNED

Trueblood & Graf Publish Book Showing Structures Recently Erected in St. Louis.

Wilbur T. Trueblood and Hugo K. Graf, architects in the Chemical Building, have issued an elaborately illustrated book, entitled "Examples of Recent Work From the Practice of Trueblood & Graf."

It consists chiefly of photographs of buildings the firm has designed. The range of work is from small residences to hospital and office structures. The first picture is of the show window of Carpenter Branch Library, Grand boulevard and Utah place. It shows two boys, accompanied by a dog, looking at the books on view.

Gundlach & Co. Sells 54-Acre Tract

J. H. Gundlach & Co., through its sales manager, R. M. Keeney, reports having sold 54 acres, adjoining Alton on the southeast, to Laughlin D. Byrnes and others. Thirty acres of this tract are in pear trees which have shown a handsome profit. The land is very fertile, being situated in the valley along Wood River, especially adapted to truck farming. It was formerly owned by Lowe & Bearbaun, bankers and realty men of Alton. The new owners intend to subdivide this tract into small truck farms as soon as the present lease with the State of Illinois expires.

CITIES' GROWTH REFLECTED IN FIELD OF INVESTMENTS

Bond House Publication Discusses Improvements in Real Estate Securities Resulting From Modern Urban Building Development.

America's growth of cities, as reflected by the 1930 census figures, is a matter of such recent and rapid development that few people are aware of its true significance, according to a study, "The Trend Toward the Cities," just released by Halsey, Stuart & Co.

A continuation of the trend toward the city—even an acceleration of its pace—is looked for under the multiple influences of modern civilization and the growing activity of the United States in international trade, finance and manufacture.

In the 30 years from 1900 to the present, the trend has changed the entire aspect of the country, the survey states. At the beginning of the century, 60 per cent of the population was rural. Today, more than half the people live in towns and cities. Dwellings have changed with the trend. In 1900, with rural population and the small town in domination, families lived principally in individual homes. Today, the study points out, in Manhattan, more than 96 per cent of the population lives in apartments, and in Chicago, more than 80 per cent. The tremendous growth of apartment buildings in just the last few years is indicated by the contracts for apartment construction covering the entire United States. The estimate for this type of work in 1921 was approximately $464,496,000. In 1929, it had jumped to $1,189,258,000.

Even more significant than the change in living habits is the change in working habits, which was primarily responsible for the growth of the city, according to the survey. This has brought about the huge increase in skyscraper construction, resulting in the building of veritable cities within cities. The principal reason for such heavy concentration of office space, of buildings, population and land values in certain selected parts of the cities, is that it promotes efficiency in commercial transactions. The greater the density of city population, the more urgent the construction of high buildings which permit merchants, manufacturers and other business men to maintain close proximity to their banking and trade connections, and to the principal transit facilities.

Concerning the importance to investors of this trend, the Halsey publication says:

"Behind the familiar wrecking of obsolete structures, the clatter of riveters and other outward signs of the new order, is a far-reaching development in our civilization, a development in concentration in many forms—concentration of land values, of architectural skill, of steel and building materials, of humanity and, back of those tangible things, a tremendous concenrtation of capital to finance new building projects. The final objective of this intensive effort is a striving to meet the imperative demands of the present age for improved efficiency, convenience, quality, beauty and value, whether in office space or in our residential surroundings.

"To the investor who recognizes the vital importance of keeping in close touch with underlying economic changes that may be reflected in security values, the important construction programs which are under way in and around our greater cities carry special significance. The developments which have taken place in real estate finance afford splendid opportunities for conservative investment, under safeguards which are easily recognized.

"The growth of modern cities has led to two major improvements, in the past few years, in that most favored and most ancient of all types of secured loans, the real estate mortgage, the written history of which goes back more than 4000 years. Of those two recent developments, the first is the large corporate real estate bond issue, secured by a fee or leasthold lien upon an individual property. It is a direct result of the trend toward large city structures in favored central locations, for which the required financing may range from $5,000,000 to $15,000,000 or more for a single building. The second development is the large collateral mortgage loan, secured by individual mortgages on a considerable number of separate properties, especially in the better residential suburbs tributary to active, growing cities. This represents a forward step toward more efficient methods of handling residential mortgage loans, which have long been classed among the soundest forms of investment.

"One of the consequences of both of these recent advances in large-scale real estate bond issues of the soundest character has been the entrance into real estate financing of leading national investment houses of original issue, which had formerly confined their underwriting activities to municipal, public utility and industrial bond issues. The importance of this change, from the investor's point of view, is in the strong position which real estate bonds, sponsored by such houses, enjoy with regard to inherent security, broad distribution and market strength."

REAL ESTATE—EXCHANGE

FOR SALE OR EXCHANGE

1640-acre Ozark farm and orchard property, Howell County, Mo.; 320 acres in timber; 160 acres 10-year-old apple orchard and several hundred additional fruit trees, balance cleared of rock and stumps and has all been under plow. Entire property fenced and cross-fenced, hog and cattle type fencing. Two houses, large barns, railroad station and high-tension power line on property. Fronting nearly four miles on railroad and improved highway No. 63. Strong company has uncovered iron ore deposits and holds lease on royalty basis. Rolling country, particularly adapted to intensive grape vineyard or orchard development. Three lakes on property; now being used as cattle ranch under lease for 1930; will graze 250 or more cattle—greater number sheep or goats. Also offers unusually good quail shooting.

This fine property has been badly neglected past five years; orchards, lands and buildings need considerable working over. However, one or two years' work will put orchards in full-grown tree production as against five or more years' work with new orchards. Paint, with minor roofing and siding repairs at little cost, will put all buildings in excellent condition. Lands can be recultivated at about one-fourth cost of clearing and breaking new acreage. Fences are in good usable condition. Timber lands will supply all post needs all time.

Out-of-State owner has just come into title; will sell on small deposit and easy terms; will accept merchandise, stock of good used cars, mortgages or listed stocks; part payment; might exchange houses, small apartments, etc., clear or subject first liens only.

For immediate action, this ranch priced lower than wild lands in the rough. Do not overprice what you offer in trade.

Telephone OWNER, Sunday or Monday, GArfield 4300, Extension 1505, St. Louis, Mo.

BUY A LOT IN TESLA PLACE

A TRUE COLONIAL
330 PLANTHURST RD.
From the rugged character of the American Colonists and the spirit of their homes has come our modern Colonial—graceful, congenial and lasting. This new Colonial is typical. One enters a large center hall. On one side is a spacious living room with Italian marble fireplace, a tiled sunroom with windows on three sides. On the other side is the dining room with a quaint corner cupboard built in, a kitchen of good size and with convenient built-in cabinets beautifully finished in deep ivory enamel. A breakfast room also adjoins the kitchen. On the second floor are 4 bedrooms and a large enclosed sleeping porch; 2 baths, one in green tile and green fixtures; the other bath is in black and white tile and adjoins the master bedroom. Strictly Colonial decorations and fixtures. Woodwork is walnut finish. Hot-water heat, oil burner; 4-car garage in basement. In the new Plant Subdivision, between Jefferson and Rock Hill roads, at Jackson—one of the highest and choicest locations in the county.

FARMS FOR SALE

When is the time to buy farms or any other investment? When the price is at the bottom. That is where farm lands are today. Farms are cheaper than they have been in 40 years. It is the time to buy. If you are in doubt about a safe investment, buy some good improved farms in Missouri or Illinois.

We have farms from 10 acres to 1000 acres, well located, near or on good roads. If you want to buy, sell or exchange, write giving details. FRANK ROWDEN, 215 Wainwright Bldg. CHestnut 8128.

MERAMEC RIVER AND CABIN

Why pay large resort bills, when you can own this picturesque 8½ acres with cabin on practically the same terms that it would cost you and your family per season to spend your vacation at a crowded resort. The money you will save on resort bills will pay for this property in a few years and it will be your own. Over ¼ mile of beautiful Meramec River frontage with ideal water for bathing and boating; safe for children. Wonderful fishing stream. All timbered. One of nature's beauty spots. IN MEMORIAM

BRACKSIECK—In loving memory of my dear husband and father and grandfather, William F. Bracksieck, who departed this life June 21, 1926, age 86 years.

Oh, what would I give to clasp his hand,
His dear kind face to see,
To hear his voice, to see him smile
That meant so much to me.
In our heart your memory lingers,
Always tender, fond and true.
There is not a day dear daddy,
That we do not think of you.
Sadly missed by his WIFE, ANNA BRACKSIECK, AND MR. AND MRS. FRED W. REMMERT AND CHILDREN.

BECKER—In loving memory of my dear husband, Michael Paul Becker, who died one year ago, June 18, 1929:

He lives with us in memory and will forever more.
Sadly missed by
WIFE LILLIAN AND LOIDA'S FAMILY.

EAGLIN—In memory of Myrle C. Eaglin.

Our thoughts of you today are wonderful, kind and true.

TOOTS, MYRLE, CHARLOTTE, MARTIN AND TED. (c)

FERARA—In memory of John S. Ferara, who died June 21, 1928.

Sadly missed by his wife, daughter and granddaughters.

HAUBRICH—William Jr., who died June 25, 1929.

A light is from our household gone,
A voice we loved is stilled,
A place is vacant in our home
Which never can be filled.
Some may think you are forgotten,
Though on earth you are no more,
But in memory you are with us
As you always were before.
Sadly missed by MOTHER, DAD, BROTHERS, SISTER, RELATIVES AND SWEETHEART.

HEINING—In loving memory of Mary Heining, who passed away June 21, 1929:

Loving and kind in all her ways,
Upright and just to the end of her days,
Sincere and true in her heart and mind,
Beautiful memories she left behind.
Sadly missed by
HER HUSBAND AND CHILDREN. (c)

IN MEMORIAM

KOPECHY—In loving memory of my dear husband, James V. Kopechy, who passed away on the twenty-first day of June, 1927:

We mourn for him in silence,
No eyes can see us weep,
But many a silent tear is shed
While others are asleep.
We have lost our soul's companion,
A life linked with our own;
And day by day we miss him more,
As we walk through life alone.
Sadly missed by his WIFE AND CHILDREN.

MELCHIOR—Sophia Melchior:

One year has gone since that sad day,
The one we loved was called away.
God took her home—it was his will;
But in our hearts she liveth still.
Sadly missed by
HUSBAND AND CHILDREN. (c)

PAUL—In loving memory of my dear husband, J. C. Paul, who departed this life June 20, 1929:

Loving and kind in all his ways,
Upright and just to the end of his days,
Sincere and true in his heart and mind,
Beautiful memories he left behind.
"WIFE." (c)

SLEIGER—In memory of George Sleiger, who [illegible] years ago, June 25. Nothing can ever take away the love a heart holds dear.

WIFE AND DAUGHTERS. (c)

STRATTMANN—In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Arthur Strattmann, who passed away June 20, 1926. Sadly missed by all who loved him.

RITTER—In memory of wife and mother, Kunigunda Ritter, who passed away June 22, 1929.

No one knows how much we miss you;
No one knows the bitter pain
We have suffered since we lost you—
Life has never been the same.
In our hearts your memory lingers,
Sweetly, tender, fond and true;
There is not a day, dear mother, that
We do not think of you.
Sadly missed by
HUSBAND AND CHILDREN. (c)

TRAPP—In memory of our beloved husband and father, William A. Trapp, who passed away a year ago, June 21.

We are sad within our memory,
Lonely are our hearts today,
For the one we loved so dearly
Has forever been called away.
We think of him in silence,
No eye may see us weep;
But many silent tears are shed
When others are asleep.
His memory is as dear today,
As in the hour he passed away.
Sadly missed by
WIFE AND CHILDREN.

WITHMAN—In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Catherine Withman, who passed away 10 sad years ago, June 20, 1920:

Remembering is a golden chain
Death tries to break—but all in vain,
To have, to love, and then to part
Is the greatest sorrow of one's heart.
Sadly missed by all who loved her.

ZIERES—In loving memory of my dear, good mother, Friedericka Zieres, who departed this life, June 23, 1922:

No length of time, no lapse of years
Can dim my mother's past;
For treasured memories hold her dear
And will while memory lasts.
Ever remembered by daughter,
KATE RAMKE.

SPANISH FLYER'S STORY OF CAPTURE BY MOORS

Burguete Writes of Hunger and Hardships While Waiting for Ransom.

By the Associated Press.

MADRID, June 21.—A story of hunger and hardship under the sun of the North African desert was told in a letter today from Commander Ricardo Burguete of the Spanish army air force, who with three companions was forced down almost a month ago near Cape Bojador and later ransomed.

Burguete's companions were Capt. Nunez Maza, Sergt. Vincente Ferrer, the mechanic, and a Moorish chief. When their planes were forced to land they were captured by wild tribesmen of the district and held until a ransom of 7500 pesetas (about $900) was obtained for each.

The letter said the tribesmen were heavily armed and threatened to shoot the prisoners if they resisted. The men were marched across many blistering miles of the desert, almost perishing from thirst, while the captors rode on camels. In the camp of the nomads the aviators were half-starved and Ferrer was especially abused, the letter said.

The tribesmen drew lots for choice of a prisoner and then tried to steal prisoners from one another because each was a valuable possession worth considerable ransom.

Burguete said the most heartbreaking experience was the sight of Spanish airplanes flying overhead in search of his party while the prisoners were unable to signal their whereabouts.

ST. LOUIS BUSINESS MEN GOING ON TRADE TOUR IN PLANES

Delegation of Chamber of Commerce to Fly to Quincy, Springfield and Decatur, July 17.

A delegation of St. Louis business men, representing the Trade Extension Committee of the Chamber of Commerce Sales Managers Bureau, will make a trade tour of Quincy, Springfield and Decatur, Ill., July 17 in six airplanes It wil be the first time the organization has used airplanes for a trip of this kind.

Plans for the tour call for departure of the delegation from St. Louis early July 17 and return in the evening of the same day. The speedier method of transportation is expected to give the party two or three hours to visit business and civic leaders in each city.

C. E. Michel, president of the bureau, said the trip by plane was decided not only because of the time saving, but because other cities are looking to St. Louis as a leader in air transportation and it is up to this city to show that St. Louis is awake to the possibilities of aviation in business.

PNEUMONIA AND NOT POISON CAUSED 4 CHILDREN'S DEATH

Chicago Physicians So Announce After Inquiry of Mysterious Ailment.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 21.—Pneumonia following whooping cough caused the deaths of four of the five children of Benjamin McKittrick who were at first thought to have been poisoned or contracted a mysterious ailment.

Scientists, who have been working on the case at Cook County Hospital since the death of the first McKittrick child early this week, announced they had found no indication that the children had been poisoned.

The four children were Evelyn, 5 years old, Donald, 3, Raymond, 2, and Paul, 6 months old. Kenneth, 8, is at the hospital in a serious condition, but physicians said he would recover.

BAGGAGE HANDLER WOUNDED BY RIFLE INSIDE TRUNK

Emil Hagen Shot When Loaded Weapon Is Discharged Apparently by Jar.

Emil Hagen, a baggage handler at Union Station, was shot above the heart at 7:45 a. m. yesterday, when a rifle in a trunk he was lifting from a baggage car was discharged. He was taken to St. Mary's Infirmary. Physicians said he would probably recover.

Hagen in unloading a baggage car which had arrived over the Rock Island road picked up a black steamer trunk, holding one end against his body. As he dropped the other end on a loadiing truck beside the car there was a muffled explosion. Hagen staggered and called to a fellow employe, "I believe I'm shot." He was taken to the hospital immediately.

The trunk when opened by Terminal baggage officials in the presence of police was found to contain two rifles and two revolvers, all loaded. The weapon which had been discharged was a .22 calibre Winchester repeating rifle, from which the stock had been removed, leaving the cartridge in the chamber exposed. The cartridge apparently had been exploded by striking the end of the trunk when it was set down on the truck platform. The bullet emerged from the upper end of the trunk, penetrating an inch and a quarter of fiber.

Papers in the trunk bore the name of Gene Andreas whose address was indicated as the Y. M. C. A., Los Angeles. The trunk, which also contained blankets and other camping equipment, had been put aboard the train at Banning, Cal. So far it has not been claimed at the baggage room.

Hagen lives at 3338 South Compton avenue. He has been employed as a baggage handler for 11 years.

BODIES OF FIVE OF EIGHT MEN MISSING ON LAKE ERIE FOUND

One That of Collector of Internal Revenue at Toledo, O., Lost Week Ago.

TOLEDO, O., June 21.—The body of Charles H. Nauts, Collector of Internal Revenue here, missing since last Saturday when he and seven men in a speed boat disappeared, was found floating in Lake Erie five miles south of West Sister Island today. Later the bodies of Franklin Jones and Frank Miller, also members of the party, were found.

Searchers previously had recovered the bodies of John Liptak and Henry Hainbuch.

All of the eight were prominent Toledo residents. They were on their way to an Elks' celebration at Pelee Island when they disappeared. The following day their boat was found floating right side up and an intensive search was begun by airplanes and coast guard boats in the possibility they were still alive and marooned on some island.

A verdict of accidental drowning has been given by the coroner. The general belief is that the boat at high speed struck a fish net or other obstruction, catapulting its occupants into the water.

ST. LOUISAN'S YACHT DAMAGED BY PLANE, SON ON IT UNHURT

Boat of S. C. Davis Struck by Aircraft at New London; 3 of crew Slightly Cut.

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 21.—Samuel C. Davis Jr. and two friends aboard the yacht Whiz, owned by his father, who resides at 13 Portland place, St. Louis, escaped injury today when a coast guard seaplane crashed into the yacht. Three members of the crew were cut by flying glass, but occupants of the plane were not injured, although it sommer-saulted, nose-dived and turned bottom up as it struck the water.

The plane was taking off on a flight to Gloucester, Mass., when eye-witnesses said the Whiz cut in front of the seaplane as it was picking up speed. Those injured were: Capt. Milton Beal and two seamen—Harold Cooper and Frederick Beal.

The plane was piloted by Lieut. N. M. Nelson. Commander Eugene A. Coffin was a passenger.

The Whiz will be laid up for a week for repairs. Its length is 70.6 feet and its beam 13 feet. It was built in 1920.

COUNTERFEIT OF $10 NOTE

Secret Service Warning on Spurious Kansas City Federal Reserve Bill.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—The Secret Service tonight issued a warning that an extremely dangerous counterfeit of a $10 note of the Kansas City Federal Reserve Bank was being circulated. The bill is a counterfeit of the bank's 1928 series. It bears check letter "J," face plate No. 2, back plate No. 29 and is signed by H. T. Tate as Treasurer of the United States and by Secretary Mellon. It bears the portrait of Hamilton.

The spurious note, the Secret Service said, was printed from finely etched photo-mechanical plates on one sheet of bond paper of good quality but slightly thicker than the genuine. The finely engraved lettering under the signatures of Secretary Mellon and Tate was said to be barely discernible because of faulty etching. W. H. Moran, chief of the Secret Service, who issued the warning, said the counterfeits have been found bearing different serial numbers. One was J06186756A and the other J10568977A.

Hoot Gibson, Actor, to Wed.

LOS ANGELES, June 21.—Hoot Gibson, film cowboy, today filed notice of intention to marry Sally Eilers, 21 years old, film actress. It will be his third marriage. Gibson, who is 36, filed under his true name, Edmund R. Gibson. The wedding will be next Friday evening at his ranch north of Los Angeles.

This worry, aroused by the pending action of the Senate on World War veterans' bill, thre ened plans for adjournment sent a secret call to House Repu licans to assemble next Tues night to discuss the veterans' islation and the possibility of tinuing the present 1 per cent reduction on normal inco through next year.

Already fears had been pressed by proponents of the erans' measure that the Presid would veto it and the suggesti has been made that Congress held in session long enough to on overriding a veto should it forthcoming.

The President abandoned week-end fishing trip to the ginia mountains. He has been gaged for the past two days in ferences with congressional lead and officials of the Treasury Veterans' Bureau. He confer twice today with Secretary Mel and Undersecretary Mills of Treasury. In the second conf ence, Director Hines of the erans' Bureau submitted figures garding the cost of the measure

Figures on Possible Deficit.

Before the 1 per cent tax reduc tion was decided upon and grante by Congress, the Treasury had es timated that it would have a sur plus of $122,788,966 on June 1931. The tax reduction cut of $80,000,000 of that amount, th Spanish-American War Vetera bill lopped off another $11,000,0 thus reducing the prospective plus to $31,000,000. With the sage of the veterans' bill would be wiped out and a defi left if the bill cost $74,000,000 more annually as estimated.

It also is regarded as likely th the Treasury is expecting less come next year than this when come tax collections are reachin previously unequaled totals. Pres ent indications are that the Gov ernment will have total income more than $4,000,000,000 this yea due to income tax payments of ap proximately $2,450,000,000. Th business depression, however, is ex pected to reduce the revenue fro such taxes next year.

'The New Moon' Due in Port

Another Romberg Operetta Will Arrive, Under Full Sail, At the Municipal Opera Tomorrow Night—Guy Robertson Returns to the Forest Park Cast and Leonard Ceeley And Margaret Carlisle Will Again Have Leading Roles.

THE mildest mannered pirates that ever scuttled a ship or cut a throat, man "The New Moon" when with her cargo of song and girls she sets her course on the stage of the Municipal Theater tomorrow night. The high seas succeed the tawny sands on the revolving stage this week, for with its presentation tonight "The Desert Song" concludes one of the most successful weeks in Municipal Opera's history.

Sigmund Romberg's score—for "The New Moon" is another Romberg work—is distinguished for the melodies and rhythms, with which, in song he advances the movement of a whimsical story of dramatic adventure written by Lawrence Schwab and Frank Mandel —original producers of "The New Moon"—in collaboration with Oscar Hammerstein II. In the story pirates from the Spanish Main, mingle with high-bred creole French in that old Louisiana of which St. Louis was once a part. Aristocrats from the court of Louis XVI, lovers of freedom inspired by the American Revolution, conservative satin-clad merchants and vagabond adventurers, French bondmen under sentence of the criminal courts of Paris and French maidens who have come by ship-load to find husbands in the crown's colonies, rub elbows in old New Orleans and upon the decks of the pirate ship, as the operetta tells the romantic story of the love of Capt. Robert Misson, who in history's pages is an actual pirate, much as he is upon the stage, a very humane, liberty-loving, and rather pietistic free-booter, who was quite a gentleman at that.

☼ ☼ ☼ ☼

THE book of "The New Moon" tells of Chevalier Misson who, in a Paris brawl, has killed a cousin of King Louis XVI. He is banished as a bondman to Louisiana and must slave for the wealthy shipowner, Mons. Beaunoir. Already there is in New Orleans a spirit of Revolution, set aflame by the success of the English colonies in throwing off the British yoke and establishing themselves as a Republic. The King of France sends over to New Orleans Vicomte Ribaud to ferret out the plotters against the crown. By accusing Misson, he believes, he will gain favor with the King, and indeed the young bondman has already thrown in his lot with the republican conspirators. Misson, unknown to Marianne Beaunoir has been serenading her beneath her window, and she has learned romantically to love her unseen lover. But when he is betrayed as the bondman the aristocratic beauty is outraged and in turn gives him over to Ribaud, to be taken back to France on the good ship "The New Moon."

It is Beaunoir's ship. The ship owner arranges to have "The New Moon" stop at a Caribbean island with a cargo of wives come over from France to marry and mate with settlers in the crown colony of Martinique. It is "The New Moon's" maiden trip and Marianne goes to journey with her back to Paris.

Once on the high seas, however, "The New Moon," is overtaken by a ship belonging to the revolutionary faction under the command of Misson's friend Capt. Duval. They seize the ship, her crew, and her cargo of wives. They set forth for the Isle of Pines where they establish a republic. The men take as wives the shipload of brides. Misson, as their leader is given his choice. To protect her he marries Marianne. She scorns him as a pirate, for Duval's vessel has been flying the Jolly Roger and the citizens of the new republic are living high, having won the hearts of their helpmates with the silks and satins and brocades they have looted from the captured vessel. In the end, however, she confesses her love and the curtain falls on happiness.

☼ ☼ ☼ ☼

THE play has been seen here, once before, and from a knowledge of it it can be said that exceptional opportunity for the creation of lovely stage pictures in settings, costumes and light, is afforded Milton Shubert, general productions manager of Municipal Opera. The story opens in a stately and dignified colonial mansion in New Orleans in that brief period between the American and French revolutions, then the swift moving tale carries the audience from the mansion to a creole inn where the plotters gather; then to the Louisiana swamps; thence to the deck of a frigate and after that to a sandy beach on a Caribbean island, after which it comes to rest in a tropical pirate's rendezvous.

There are flowing skirts of taffeta, and powdered hair and ruffles of lace. There are tri-color uniforms of French suggestion. And there are, ultimately, the careless and picturesque garments of the pirate island, bright and colorful.

"The New Moon" will be presented with Guy Robertson's virile voice and charming personality returning to the Forest Park stage for the week, as the Chevalier Robert Misson, pirate and patriot: Maragaret Carlisle in the role of the creole heroine, Marianne Beaunoir, and Leonard Ceeley, as Lucius, Misson's friend. John Clark, who like Ceeley is English, a tenor, and a graduate of grand opera,

Shubert Sees "Come Back" For Theater

NEW YORK, June 21.—ABOUT this time every year whispers concerning the coming theatrical season are heard. Lee Shubert, just returned from visits to London, Paris, Berlin, Budapest and Vienna, and other points foreign, is enthusiastic about the outlook for things theatrical. He feels that a renaissance of the theater is at hand. "The European theater," he states, "seems to have experienced a rebirth which is most astonishing. The curious stagnation of the past years is gone. Never have I seen such activity, so many fine plays and such large and enthusiastic audiences."

Lee Shubert predicts the dawning of a "come-back" in America so far as show business is concerned. While in London he arranged for production there of "Nina Rosa," which also opens in New York in the fall with the same cast which appeared at the opening of the Municipal Opera in St. Louis. He also arranged for the production in London of "Topaze" and of Philip Merivale in "Death Takes a Holiday" and "The Student Prince" to be done in Berlin at the Metropole.

Among the present European successes to be presented by the Shuberts in the fall are "The Man in Possession" with an English cast; "From Nine to Six," with all-feminine cast; "Almost a Honeymoon"; "The Insult"; "The Last Enemy"; "Dr. Harmer's Holiday"; "Napoleon Intervenes" and "My Sister and Me"; "The Ugly Girl"; "Pardon Madame" and "Melo," the latter to be produced in association with A. H. Woods.

A GENTLEMANLY SHIP SCUTTLER

By Hal Forde

Mr. Forde is one of the comedians of the Municipal Opera Company. In this story he tells about the real Robert Misson, Puritan and Pirate, who is the hero of "The New Moon," this week's attraction at the Forest Park amphitheater.

YOU don't have to be told that a detective ought to know about criminals. Especially a super-detective, a harrowing Hawkshaw, like the Superintendent of the Secret Police of His Majesty Louis XVI of France. Essentially and especially he, that is, if he is to be efficient, effective, efficacious and effectual. And naturally that's the kind of detective I want to be as I sleuth across the high seas, pursuing the pirate, Robert Misson, in his ship, "The New Moon," on the stage at Municipal Opera this week.

Milton Shubert named me for that post, and there was I, in office as it were, a glorified gumshoer, and not knowing the first thing about the man I had to catch.

But I did know the Sherlockian technic. Sir Conan Doyle's hero is a pal of mine. "The first thing," said I to myself, "is to get a book." And immediately there came a testimony as to how shrewdly Mr. Shubert had detected my detecting talent. "Elemental, my dear Watson," I answered myself.

"There should be," said Vicomte Ribaud—who is the other me that you will see upon the stage in the course of Romberg's gorgeous operetta, beginning tomorrow night—"there should be a dosier upon this fellow." It may be that "dosier" doesn't mean exactly "books." But it's what happens when the French detectives keep books on a fellow. I couldn't find a "dosier," but I did find a book.

It's an old, old timer. "The History of the Most Noted Pyrates." There's a long list of blood-thirsty buccaneers, and in that book the name of Chevalier Robert Misson leads—like Abou Ben Adhem's—all the rest.

Well, there was a pirate, I'm telling you. I don't wonder that Lawrence Schwab and Frank Mandel and Oscar Hammerstein II picked on him when they started in to write that snappy little pirate romance. The only thing that astonishes me is that W. S. Gilbert didn't use him. For Capt. Robert Misson might have stepped out of the Gilbertian world of topsy-turvy to make his bow to the public among "The Pirates of Penzance."

HE set out to sea, an adventurous youth, on the French ship Victoire, commanded by a relative of his, Capt. Fourbin. He grew to be an expert sailor, "his discourse was turned to no other subject and he would often get the boatswain and carpenter to teach him in their cabins the constituent parts of a ship's hull, and how to rig her, which he generously paid them for; and though he spent a great part of his time with these two officers, yet he behaved himself with such prudence that they never attempted any familiarity and always paid the respect due his family."

It's a regular Horatio Alger beginning for a pirate, isn't it? But he fell into bad company and joined forces with an Italian, Signoir Caracciolli, a renegade priest, and together they went off under Capt. Fourbin, to chase down pirate ships. They captured a Turkish corsair, of which Misson and Caracciollo were the first aboard, and after that they raided English shipping, for France and England were at war. And ultimately the Victoire with those two worthies fared to the Spanish Main to seek adventure, not to mention gold.

It's difficult to tell the difference between a pirate and a privateer. Even as a super-detective from Paris, I have to admit that. Here in America you look on Paul Jones as a splendid patriot. There are books back home in England which frankly name him as a pirate. I suspect Spain thought that Sir Francis Drake was a pirate, also. But try to tell that to an Englishman. It makes such a difference whose ox is gored. Also, it makes a difference what King you support.

All of which shows to what extent Misson had been ruined—in the eyes of Capt. Johnson, who wrote the "History of the Most Noted Pyrates"—by his association with Caracciolli, who was a renegade priest. The two of them began to talk about freedom and free men. They sounded out their comrades. They preached a doctrine it was perfectly moral for man to declare a war "in defense of our natural right, which is such a share of earth as is necessary for our support."

ONCE you establish a perfectly moral ground for anything—even piracy—it's smooth sailing. Misson and his pal found comrades of kindred spirit. The next time the Victoire attacked the English, those French privateers fought with such vim and vigor that the Winchelsea was blown up without a survivor. But Capt. Fourbin, the second captain, and the three lieutenants were killed by the first British broadside. Misson and Caracciolli seized command of the French ship. And then Misson began a career of speech-making that stands out as unique in the history of all "the Pyrates."

He explained that "with the ship he had under foot and the brave fellows under command, he might bid defiance to the power of Europe, reign sovereign of the Southern Seas, and lawfully make war upon all the world, since it would deprive him of all that liberty to which he had a right by the laws of nature, that he might in time became as great as Alexander was to the Persians: and by increasing his forces by captures he would every day strengthen the justice of his cause, for who has power is always in the right. That Harry the IV and Harry the VII, attempted and succeeded in their enterprises upon the crown of England, yet their forces did not equal his. Mahomet with a few camel-drivers founded the Ottoman empire and Darius with no more than six or seven companions got possession of that of Persia."

They were most moral, puritanic and proper pirates, withal. Caracciolli likewise waxed eloquent. Someone proposed they hoist the skull and cross-bones as their ensign. The ex-priest took the wind out of that sail. "Such men as we," he said, "if the world, as experience, may convince us it will make war on us, the law of nature empowers us not only to be on the defensive, but on the offensive part. And we then do not proceed on the same ground with pirates, who are men of dissolute lives and no principles. Let us scorn to take their colors. Ours is a brave, a just, an innocent and a noble cause. The cause of liberty. I therefore advise a white ensign with liberty painted in the fly, and if you like the motto "a Deo a libertate"—for God and Liberty—as an emblem of our uprightness and resolution.

This wasn't a school of piracy. It was a Sunday school of piracy. Even Gilbert never imagined anything funnier than the historic record of the adventures of Capt. Robert Misson. The first thing they did was to waylay an English sloop under Capt. Thomas Butler and help themselves to rum. But don't get the idea that there was anything Stevensonian in this.

"Sixteen men on the Dead Man's Chest, Yo! Ho! Ho! and a bottle of rum."

No, there wasn't a dead man in the lot, and Capt. Misson and his gentlemanly libertarians helped themselves to puncheons, not bottles of rum. But they were so nice about it all, so considerate, that Capt. Butler, when they let him go free again manned his ship and called upon his crew to give three rousing cheers for the "good pirates."

SO that the Victoire was the real original of "The New Moon." Misson and his select school sailed for Cartagena—the Spanish Main. And discovering nothing there went on to Porto Bello. Here they caught two Dutchmen, who insisted on fighting for six hours instead of proving an easy conquest. Wherefore Capt. Misson lost his temper and sunk the biggest of the ships with all aboard. The other struck her colors. Misson helped himself to "gold and silver lace, brocade silks, silk stockings, bales of broadcloth, baizes of all colors and osnaburghs."

His humaneness got the better of Capt. Misson's anger. He took the Dutch aboard and let them share in his seagoing Sunday school. It was like putting rotting apples among the good ones Pretty soon Misson's pirates began to swear and to drink rum like those Dutch seamen did. Capt. Misson was shocked. When a moralist gets shocked a speech is in the offing. Their profanity, he Fox Sets a Record for Attendance Despite Warm Weather and Ambassador and St. Louis Keep Up Their Marks. Charley Skouras Will Open Stage Shows Again at Missouri on July 4—Lillian Gish as a Talker.

By NIE.

THE amazing crowds attending the show places of St. Louis during the warm weather period would seem to indicate that times are not quite as hard as reported or—which is more likely—when people are bothered about being out of work they want to be amused. The Municipal Opera is having its banner season with some 10,000 people on hand every night, the Fox, with its cut prices, played to more people last week than ever before in its history; the Ambassador is keeping up to its usual mark, the St. Louis continues to draw 'em in and the Missouri and Loew's are doing as well as could be expected.

The Skouras boys now announce that the Missouri will go into its stage show policy with a big chorus of singers and hoofers and a spick and span new master of ceremonies on July 4—just two weeks off. Charley Skouras returned during the week from the motion picture convention in the East with glowing reports as to the quality entertainment now ready from the four producing companies with which he is affiliated.

"In line with the Skouras idea of building entertainment up to a standard and not down to a price, our affiliated producers have laid out a program of pictures that calls for a great increase in production cost and a budget of over $80,000,000," observed Skouras. "They have realized with us that the public wants and will patronize quality entertainment, and they are seeking to combat the reported depression by turning out finer pictures regardless of cost."

"As a result, our theaters face the present year with the utmost optimism. We are assured by exclusive 25-year franchises with four of Hollywood's leading producers of the pick of the pictures. We have the right to select the best pictures from these four producing organizations, as well as from independent companies that from time to time turn out hits like 'Journey's End.'

"This right of selection assures us of at least 100 good pictures, as our four companies will produce over 160 pictures and we need only 104 at the most for the Ambassador and Missouri. Only the best pictures could remain after such a percentage of elimination."

☼ ☼ ☼ ☼

"THE decision of these producers to improve rather than tear down picture quality coincides with a long-established policy of ours of offering quality entertainment. In line with this policy on July 4 we are introducing at the Missouri a new idea in stage entertainment. You can be sure it will be striking, different and of the same quality that always typified Missouri stage shows. Entertainment will be the chief feature.

"We know that this new stage entertainment will provide a variety to the Missouri program that will add to the quality of our shows. And we're backing it up with the strongest screen attractions I have seen in my 15 years in the motion picture business.

"Our four producing companies have many of the stars and favorites the public has indorsed such as Chevalier, Winnie Lightner, Clara Bow, Olsen & Johnson, Jack Oakie, Al Jolson, Nancy Carroll, Joan Bennett, Gary Cooper, John Barrymore, Harold Lloyd, Billie Dove, the Marx Brothers, Marilyn Miller, Richard Arlen, George Arliss, Claudette Colbert, Otis Skinner, Jackie Coogan, Walter Huston, William Powell, Richard Barthelmess, Ginger Rogers, Joe E. Brown and Helen Kane among them.

"And there will be entertainment on the screen in such outstanding productions as 'Animal Crackers,' 'Sunny,' 'Follow Thru,' 'The Bad Man,' 'The Spoilers,' 'Big Boy,' 'Manslaughter,' 'Viennese Nights,' 'Queen High,' 'Three Faces East' 'Kid Boots,' 'Moby Dick,' 'Maytime,' 'Dancing Mothers,' 'Fifty Million Frenchmen,' 'The Royal Family,' 'Outward Bound,' 'Honeymoon Lane' with Eddie Dowling, 'Little Caesar,' 'Kismet' with Otis Skinner, 'Toast of the Legion,' 'Top Speed,' 'Girl of the Golden West' and many others.

"With such a solid foundation of picture entertainment and the best in stage talent through affiliations with the Publix and Warner circuits of theaters, we are looking forward to our most prosperous year."

DOWN at Loew's, where the cut prices have also gone into effect, Lillian Gish, who has been in pictures since the very early days, is making her debut as a talker.

Miss Gish was born Oct. 14, 1898, in Springfield, O. Her early infancy was spent in Dayton, O., where her father operated a small candy store. In 1900 the family moved to Baltimore and less than a year later James Gish died of pneumonia, leaving his widow two daughters, Lillian and Dorothy. Forced to support them by her own efforts, Mrs. Gish moved to New York and secured a place as an actress in a stock company then playing in Proctor's Theater.

Day by Day In New York

By O. O. McIntyre.

NEW YORK, June 21.

OUT of the mail bag:

From P. T. Houston: "You have eaten enough black-eyed peas, corn pone and okra in this state to know we rustle a mean skillet. But what I want to tell you about is a new breakfast dish I came across in a ranch house this winter—a mixture of thinly sliced venison and tingling country sausage all smothered with rich brown gravy simmering with rice."

I'm drooling!

From Mrs. D., Des Moines, Ia.: "As one of the pious and confident believers in what I see in print I would like to ask you if it is true that you wear such ridiculous things as spats? And if so, why?"

It is true and the reason is at heart I am perhaps a durn dude.

From McGuire, Boston: "There is no city with a Mayor so typical of the light hearted gaiety of New York as James J. Walker. He is the best advertisement a municipality ever had."

The trade last has been forwarded to His Honor.

From "A Mother," Minneapolis: "There is a chance that my daughter may read this. I want her to know that I know she is not in a Broadway show and that no matter what she has done she has my forgiveness. I only want her back."

We hope she sees this.

From Esther, Hollywood, Cal.: "It is a magic of this celluloid city to transmute kitchen wenches into Columbines and the world rightly applauds. You will not know from the name I sign that I who was once a clerk in a five and ten am now one of those "wonder girls" —a moving picture star. You once wrote of me in an article in Life: 'Her charm is undeniable.' But what I wanted to tell you was this: It was a column of yours in a small Illinois town paper that started me toward Hollywood, fame and fortune. You are, sir, my professional godfather, and I am grateful."

And if you, dear lady, do not think I get a kick out of that, you are plum silly!

From T. W., Denver: "I was practically brought up in a saddle and I have read the comic papers about dude cowboys. Yet in your Central Park a few weeks ago I saw men and women riding horseback as gracefully as on any ranch."

You'll find city folks can do lots of things you never imagined.

The man who wrote a recent article on the selfish tyranny of dogs is excellent evidence that almost anybody can break into print these days.

Bugs Baer may have fashioned a funnier crack this summer than: "It was so quiet you could hear a weak arch fall in a rubber boot," but I did not see it.

It strikes me the novelist whose next effort is always waited with more anticipation than any other in America is Sinclair Lewis. Lewis can often be irritating, but is never dull.

I am not much of a business Pollyana. The only stock holding in which I had faith of quick revival has skipped a dividend and is at the moment worth half what I paid for it. Yet I think times are far better than they were six months ago. I do not follow the financial pages nor have I any figures. My knowledge is a "hunch" —based on letters I receive from readers who were out of jobs or who were in business and complaining about it.

Short shavings: Samuel Hopkins Adams is writing a biography of Daniel Webster. . . . Ethel Barrymore seldom gives out personal interviews. . . . Arthur Hopkins's middle name is Melancthon. . . . Eddie Hitchcock, the Paramount press agent, smokes cigarettes one day and cigars the next. . . . Damon Runyon was born in Pueblo, Colo. . . . Ted Cook raises blooded sheep dogs. . . . And an oak tree grows through his den on the roof of his home. . . . H. N Swanson is known to College Humor contributors as "Swanie" . . . Will Rogers is a chili hound. . . . Brock Pemberton, who used to be a co-slave on Park Row with this writer, turned down $125,000 for the movie rights to "Strictly Dishonorable." . . . . Francis Marion and George Marion, no kin, are the highest paid movie writers. . . . The best seller in five years is "All Quiet on the Western Front" . . . It is over the half million mark. . . . Frazier Hunt addresses intimates as "Squire." . . . Dave Levy, Broadway's famous haberdashery clerk, is a checker champion. . . . Carlotta King drew $50,000 in a year's movie contract and was not in a picture. . . . Underworld crooks call an electrocution "a singe." . . . An absorbing book, "The Seventh Gate" by Muriel Harris (Harper's). . . . Albert Payson Terhune saw Harry Thaw shoot Stanford White. . . . The contortionist is the lowest in the social scale of the circus. . . . The aerialists and equestriennes are the highest. . . . Irving Berlin plays the piano only by ear and in F sharp.

George S. Kaufman was suggested as the playwright to direct the film version of a play. The producer was told that he was very caustic. "Don't mind the expense," he replied, "hire him anyway."

Those howling leather-lunged idiots who jog along the streets in the still of night crying "Blob-blob-blob Murder" got me again last night. I dragged down to the street and, sleepy-eyed, held out a dime to an unshaven rascal. Back in the bedroom it was a six-days'-old paper.

"NEW MOON" TO SAIL INTO PORT ON THE FOREST PARK STAGE

has his second fine singing rôle of the current season when he appears as Capt. Duval, commander of the pirate ship. Frederick Persson's basso will be heard as Beaunoir, the ship owner and aristocrat, and Hal Forde, already a favorite on Municipal Opera's stage, will be seen as the Vicomte Ribaud, the spy of King Louis XVI. Again the fun making lies largely in the hands of Jack Sheehan as Alexander, a bondman of the New Orleans ship owner, and Doris Patston as Julie, Marianne's maid.

BESIDES "Lover, Come Back to Me," which Margaret Carlisle will sing, the score contains that stout-hearted chorus, "Stout-Hearted Men," "Wanting You," which Guy Robertson sings in the first act; Leonard Ceeley's first act song, "Softly as in Morning Sunrise," Miss Carlisle's "One Kiss," John Clark's humorous "Interrupted Love Song," and such gay affairs of dance and fun as "Ladies of the Jury," "Alexander" and "Love Is Quite a Simple Thing," in which Jack Sheehan, Doris Patston, Bob Long and Rita Marks are to be seen and heard in convulsingly mirthful antics.

Following "The New Moon," on Monday, June 30, Municipal Opera will present its especially created production of "Blossom Time," one of the most popular operettas in the history of the stage.

The complete cast for "The New Moon" follows:

Julie, Marianne's Maid	Rita Marks
M. Beaunois, Marianne's Father	Frederic Persson
Captain Duval	John Clark
Vicomte Ribaud	Hal Forde
M. Fouchette	Frank Horn
Robert	Guy Robertson
Alexander	Jack Sheehan
Besac	Bob Long
Jacques	George Anderson
Marianne Beaunoir	Margaret Carlisle
Doorkeeper of Tavern	Edgar Hill
Phillippe	Leonard Ceeley
Clotilde Lambaste	Doris Patston
Admiral de Jean	Victor Casmore
A Dancer	Clarise Bruere
Brunet	Edgar Hunt
Proprietor of Tavern	Nelson Zimmer
Flower Girl	Norma Leyland
Oriental Dancer	Heiba Huara

A PIRATE SCUTTLER WHO WAS A PERFECT GENTLEMAN—AT TIMES

told his men, "administer'd neither profit nor pleasure and might draw upon them a severe punishment."

Wherever he and his companions went their victims were surprised at "the Regularity, Tranquility and Humanity of these new-fashioned Pyrates." When they killed the gallant English captain they erected a monument over his body, one of Misson's men "being a stone-cutter," as the old chronicle says. That, I think, is a perfect joy: the idea of a "pyrate" carrying a tombstone cutter along as a part of his equipment.

In "The New Moon" Misson founds a colony in the Caribbean Sea. As a matter of fact he did found a colony, which he called Libertatia, on a Madagascar bay. It was the first Socialistic colony. No one owned any individual property. Misson became the Lord Conservator, or president; another famous pirate, Tew, was admiral of the fleet and Caracciolli was secretary of state. It didn't last. Misson and his followers had to go to sea when the natives rose against them. Their vessel foundered in a hurricane and all were lost.

Elaborate Wardrobe.

Fifteen changes of wardrobe were designed and created at the studios in Hollywood for Jeanette MacDonald's use in Ernst Lubitsch's new production, "Monte Carlo."

BEHIND THE SCREENS

OUT IN HOLLYWOOD

The Starring System Again Bothering Studios.

The Fate of a Film Which Takes Too Long to Make.

HOLLYWOOD, June 21.

CLOSE upon the frost-bitten heels of Will Hays' recent "thou shall nots," comes the prospectus of Fox's contemplated program for the coming year. The titles listed include: "Young Sinners," "Devil With Woman," "Oh, For a Man," "Woman Control," "She Wears the Pants," "Living for Love," Hot Numbers," "On Your Back," "The Painted Woman," "Girls Demand Excitement," etc. So you see, little lads and lassies of vitaphone land, all the pictures henceforth are going to be about sunsets and golden dawns, babbling brooks and lady bugs, to say nothing of our little feathered friends.

LAST week Mary Pickford was initiated as an honorary member of the Wampas, Hollywood's organization of de luxe or out-of-luck press agents. Mary took it big and made a sweet little speech, as only Mary can. D. W. Griffith was also to have been an honored guest, but was confined at the studio—attending to the "rebirth of a nation." Yes, you're to see the old favorite again. It is rumored that D. W. decided to synchronize parts of it instead of remaking the entire picture—probably couldn't find enough clean sheets with which to garb the Ku Kluxers. Anyway, it will be a thrill to see those old galloping dominoes again.

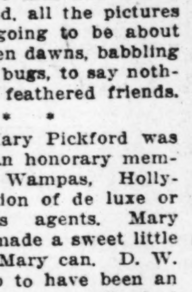
THE starring system in Hollywood again is under fire from the producers, and the informal warfare may have results for the fan who has his favorite stars and cleaves to them.



ROSE HOBART.

For a long time, never quite successfully, some of the studios have been trying to draw the public to movie houses on the strength of their name. They spent fortunes in advertising yet the fans still demanded stars to worship, and got them—at the cost of additional fortunes in salaries to the company.

But the talkie upheaval has afforded picture-makers opportunity to present stories with all-star casts, largely recruited from the stage, and thus in a measure the public has become accustomed to choosing its screen fare differently.

MANY pictures without recognized stellar names have succeeded, and that is one reason why so many established stars have faded from contract lists of late—witness Billie Dove, Laura LaPlante, Alice White, Dorothy Mackaill, Colleen Moore and others in the big money class.

The controversy involving Janet Gaynor at this writing holds interesting potentialities. Miss Gaynor's quarrel is not essentially over salary, but over the type of story to which she is being assigned. She refused point-blank to play in "Lillom." Even under the threat that her salary would cease she would not return to the lot.

The way out, in this case, was simple for the studio. It hastened to assign Rose Hobart, a new acquisition from the stage, to the role opposite Charles Farrell, and production proceeded.

GEORGE BANCROFT is another star presently involved in a dispute with his studio. After walking out of one picture (Gary Cooper was immediately sent in as substitute), Bancroft now is reported as making almost incredible salary demands for returning to work.

Even the fact that he rated as the company's biggest box-office attraction for several years may not win his point.

SHORT SUBJECTS.—Tom Mix's little gal, Ruth, eloped with great success last week—Tom had Tony tethered out to pasture and had loaned all his Rolls-Royces to friends who dabble in the market. . . Edwin Carewe received a cordial greeting at the Motion Picture Relief Fund Ball—they told him he'd won the raffled front wheel drive. . . . Lew Cody, looking hale and hearty again, is to play "Beyond Victory," for Pathe—his second talking picture. . . . The world-touring Metro lion, claimed to be the M-G-M trademark in the flesh, was being exhibited in an Eastern city, and his chaperone had just megaphoned the information that Leo's life was insured for a million dollars, when a skeptical voice from the crowd shouted, "Some Lyin'!". . . . And Harry Tierney, watching them repave La Brea avenue, nonchalantly remarked: "Just hardening another of Hollywood's principal arteries!"

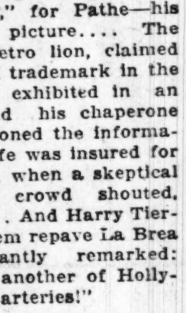
A YOUNG blade apparently not in the best financial condition entered one of the boulevard's tony flower shops the afternoon of a big movie premiere and asked the price of a corsage.



MERNA KENNEDY

"Something in orchids, perhaps?" the ostentatious clerk suggested. "See here," and he indicated a glass-paned refrigerator. "These will be worn tonight by Dolores del Rio. These are for Bebe Daniels, and this exquisite thing is for Merna Kennedy.

"Of course, too, we have gardenias. . . . Only a dollar apiece. In fact," condescendingly, "we just had an order for 15 in one corsage."

The customer regarded him coldly, unimpressed.

"I think," he said, "I'll take a half interest in one—somewhere else," and walked out.

STUDIO executives, with large staffs of actors, writers, scenarists, song-writers and the rest of the professionals required to turn out the modern movie, have found in the periodical bonus a convenient safeguard against continual demands for larger salaries.

By placing all writers, say, on one fixed salary, they can point to the salary sheet when any dissatisfied penman strikes for a raise on the grounds that he has accomplished more than some other writer. The plan works, especially because those who really deserve increases are kept contented with the occasional bonus.

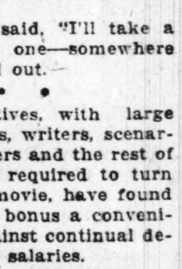
IT is rare that film celebrities planning big weddings neglect to have equally big movie names as attendants.

But when Ben Lyon and Bebe Daniels were married June 14, Lyon's best man was Hal Howe, who is known in Hollywood as the Western editor of a screen magazine, but who makes no bid for recognition in "movie society" circles.



ANN HARDING.

Friendship here outweighed considerations which usually impel the prospective star benedict to choose another film star for the honor.

Howe and Lyon have been friends ever since Ben made his start in pictures. Howe, older than Ben, advised him, helped to publicize him, and in every way possible furthered his career.

ANN HARDING will play the title role in the talkie version of Charlotte Bronte's novel, "Jane Eyre," but the Jane of the film will bear only a slight resemblance to the renowned heroine.

The dialog, for one thing, will be more modern in style, the stilted bookish conversation of the novel being obviously impossible for the screen.

Action will be injected, of course, and while the period will remain virtually the same, the time will be advanced from 1849 to 1860, to allow more colorful costuming.

The most notable change, however, will be seen in Jane herself, who will be endowed with more force of character than the original Jane ever knew.

THAT song hit of a few years ago, "The Sheik," almost appeared as "The Rose of Araby." It had been lying on a publisher's shelf some time when someone noticed a news item stating that the novel "The Sheik" had sold amazingly.

Then the publisher, strolling down Broadway, noted the first 24-sheets announcing Valentino in "The Sheik."

That settled it. The "rose" became the "sheik"—and although the number was not included in the movie's score, it became identified with the picture.

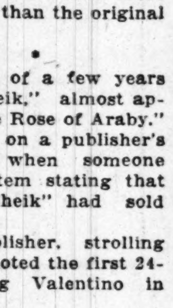
THE fate of "Broadway" seems to be shared now by "Good News."

The underworld play was bought at a huge figure, but it took so long to complete it that virtually every other studio here was able to beat it to the market with a picture using most of its plot.



BESSIE LOVE.

"Good News," the collegiate musical comedy, is ready for release now, but in the meantime numerous other college musicals, notably "Sweetie," have used its material to good advantage.

The new picture, nevertheless, is pleasant enough. Stanley Smith and Mary Lawlor are the romantic leads, but Bessie Love and Gus Shy, a newcomer, walk off with top honors in their comic roles.

TED SNYDER, who must be dean of Hollywood's song writers because he has been in the business 27 years, recalls a time when the public beaches about New York constituted the great hope of all popular music.

There, in the dance halls of the beach resorts, the writers and composers put their work before the public.

Snyder sees a direct relation between the manner of plugging and the type of songs produced from year to year.

In the days of "beach plugging," he says, songs like "In the Good Old Summertime" and "Take a Car" became hits because they told of things bearing relation to the beach crowds, who "in the summertime" had to "take a car" to get to the beaches.

Then vaudeville rose as a plugging field, and songs for teams, "part" songs, came into prominence. These were followed by the tunes with more melody and rhythm, an outgrowth of the rise of dance orchestras.

Radio came, bringing with it the need for songs of great variety because the radio audience is greater than any other.

Then theme songs for movies, and finally songs for talkies, put new demands on the writer.

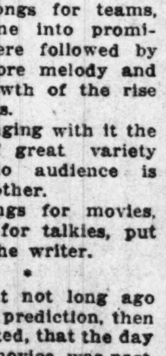
THIS department not long ago made the broad prediction, then well authenticated, that the day of the untried, the novice, was past, and that future screen talent would be derived almost exclusively from the stage.

No sooner was that statement in print than impudent young unknowns began crashing the drama's news pages with overnight entries into the movie world.



FRANCES DEE.

They joined Edwina Booth and Lucille Powers in the ranks of risen extras, or came to the screen direct from other walks of life, like Bill Banker, recently cited here, who came from Tulane University with no training whatever, not even an extra's.

NOW little Joan Lawes, nicknamed "Cherie" by prisoners in Sing Sing, where her father is warden, has joined the contract lists and is seeing Hollywood with all the quiet eagerness of her eight years.

Joan, blue-eyed and freckled, sang and danced for a talking news reel made at the prison, and was called to the attention of Director John Ford, who had her signed by his studio.

She and Tommy Clifford, the little 11-year-old from Ireland, already are studio pals.

Another newcomer is Jane Keith, who as Jane Keithley came from Chicago to Hollywood and worked extra when she could while maintaining a secretarial position in Los Angeles.

When it was announced that "unknowns" stood as good a chance as recognized players for the only feminine role in "The Sea Wolf," she applied.

Her first test was a failure, but she was given another and won the role.

It took two tests also to obtain a contract for Frances Dee, anothers inexperienced extra, who failed in her first, but later won out.

Then there is John Wayne, who as Wayne Morrison and Duke Morrison worked as extra and prop man several years before he was "discovered" and given the lead in an important film.

HOWARD HUGHES' highly vaunted air picture is here at last, ushered in by one of the greatest displays of bally-hoo this city has seen.

Spectacular as are portions of the screen drama, the premiere offered as great a spectacle outside the theater, where a crushing mob extended for blocks, demoralized traffic, and made possession of a ticket only one point in the battle for admission. There were several near-riots, women fainted, airplanes overhead stunted and dropped flaming parachutes. It was every producer's dream of what a premiere should be, and shows what will happen when a young millionaire takes three years and $4,000,000 to finish a picture.

LUCIEN PRIVAL.

FACED with this crowd, its front and flanks impenetrable, we attacked from the rear, cut through a parking lot, dodged into an adjacent tobacco shop, and by dint of these petty strategems emerged into the jammed theater forecourt, where all that was necessary to get in was to buck heartlessly and blindly ahead. Hence are we able to report on "Hell's Angels."

There are weak spots in the texture of this drama, especially if it is compared to the other war talkies, "All Quiet" and "Journey's End," yet such comparison would be unfair.

"Hell's Angels" was begun as a silent picture, and all the thrilling air sequences in which these two participated were "in the can" when Hughes decided to make his pet all-talking.

Jean Harlow, who never leaves the ground, could easily be substituted for Greta Nissen, who couldn't speak English (Laurels for acting, incidentally, go to Lucien Prival, who out-Stroheims von Stroheim as the German General).

All such considerations, however, fade away before the thrilling spectacular flying scenes — among them a giant Zeppelin crashing to earth in flames, whole formations of planes in battle above the clouds, crashes—all authentic and photographed at great cost and risk of life.

Gibbons to Herald The Byrd Pictures

FLOYD GIBBONS, journalist and adventurer and well-known for his articles on current events and his talks on the radio for industrial concerns, may be seen on the talking screen this week at the Missouri Theater in a special announcement heralding the coming of Commander Richard Byrd's picture, "With Byrd at the South Pole," which comes to the Missouri next Friday.

Gibbons, known as the fastest talker on the air today, lives up to this reputation on the talking screen in his introduction to the Byrd picture. He describes personal interviews with the famous explorer and tells of the entertaining continuity of the picture.

De Mille's Daughter Working as "Extra"

HOLLYWOOD, June 21.

SEEKING to win success on her own merits as an actress, Katherine DeMille, 19-year-old daughter of Cecil B. DeMille, motion picture director-producer, has become a film extra.

Miss DeMille now is playing an extra bit in Clara Bow's new starring picture, "Love Among the Millionaires." She is one of 150 supers appearing in society scenes of the production.

"I mean to give myself a real trial in pictures," said Miss DeMille, who until recently was attending a girl's school in Santa Barbara. "By doing so I will find out whether or not I am fitted for the work and if I actually want to follow a screen career. Since I was a baby, I have watched my father make pictures and have always thought that I wanted to become a film player. If I succeed, I want it to be on my own merits. Playing as an extra is the best sort of training and I find it very fascinating. I am having a wonderful time."

Marion, Whiting Together.

George Marion Jr., co-author of the story and lyrics for "Sweetie," and Richard Whiting, composer of the music, have merged their talents once again for the songs in "Let's Go Native," the musical story written by Marion and Percy Heath.

BIG CROWDS FOR THE MOVIE HOUSES IN THE WARM WEATHER PERIOD

nessey Smith, herself a widow and actress with three children, Gladys, Lottie and Jack. Gladys later became world famous as Mary Pickford.

When the stock company disbanded Mrs. Gish and her daughters toured the country in various melodramas at a weekly wage of $10. While in Baltimore in 1912 they saw the face of Gladys Smith in a Biograph picture called "Leena and the Geese." The Gishes' first impression was that their friends, the Smiths, must indeed be low financially to allow Gladys to act in the despised motion pictures. On their next trip to New York they called at the Biograph studios and inquired for Gladys Smith, but the name was unknown there. Finally they described Gladys and learned that she had changed her name to Mary Pickford.

Miss Pickford introduced Lillian to David Ward Griffith, who was then directing a half-reel picture called "The Unseen Enemy," in which Mary was appearing. The meeting with the pioneer director resulted in Miss Gish getting work in that picture as an "extra."

Years later, when Miss Pickford accepted the principal role in David Belasco's "A Good Little Devil," at the Republic Theater, her friend Lillian was cast in an important part.

Miss Gish returned to motion picture work when the run of the play was concluded. She appeared for the next two years in minor roles under the direction of Griffith. Her first important part in pictures was in "The Mothering Heart," a two-reel film, "The Battle of Sexes" and "Home, Sweet Home."

In the fall of 1914, when Griffith started work on "The Birth of a Nation," Miss Gish was in the principal role of Elsie Stoneman. This epic picture, universally recognized as a great masterpiece produced through the medium of motion pictures, elevated the former child actress of Rising Sun to instant stardom. "Hearts of the World" carried the Gish family and Griffith to the battlefields of France. Miss Gish was in London during the air raids; in France her quarters were in the cellar of a bomb-wrecked chateau.

The next screen dramas in which Miss Gish appeared were "The Great Love," "Romance of Happy Valley," and "The Greatest Thing in Life." Then, on May 13, 1919, "Broken Blossoms" was offered with Miss Gish and Richard Barthelmess in the principal roles. That winter, while the Griffith company was on location in Florida, Miss Gish directed her first motion-picture in which she did not appear. Her sister Dorothy was the star in "Remodeling Her Husband," a comedy-drama which Paramount distributed with success.

IN 1921, through United Artists, Griffth's "Way Down East," starring Miss Gish, was released. The following year, through the same company, "Orphans of the Storm" was made and distributed.

The actress severed her connections with Griffith in the summer of 1922 to accept an offer to appear in "The White Sister" for Inspiration pictures. The entire film was made in Italy under the direction of Henry King. It was in this production that Ronald Colman began his screen career. Under the same conditions and direction, "Romola" was made.

Miss Gish then signed a contract with Metro-Goldwyin-Mayer and starred for that company in "La Boheme," with John Gilbert in support; "The Scarlet Letter," "Annie Laurie," "The Enemy," and "The Wind."

The star had virtually decided to retire from pictures when Joseph M. Schenck of United Artists, induced her to return. Her first picture was to have been under the direction of Max Reinhardt, but difficulties arose and the project was temporarily abandoned. "One Romantic Night," a dialogue adaptation of the play "The Swan," by Ferenc Molnar, was next decided upon.

In this picture, which is at Loew's this week, directed by Paul L. Stein, Miss Gish definitely abandons the roles of oppressed innocence she has portrayed most of her life to assume a new dramatic career as an interpreter of modern types.

AND Hollywood's Wendy has grown up.

Six years ago Mary Brian went to the film capital from Dallas, Tex., a high school girl in her early teens. She won the part of Wendy in "Peter Pan" and made such an impression with it that she has had a hard time ever since making the public forget her as a child.

She presented her own views of the situation recently while working opposite Jack Oakie in the comedian's first starring picture, "The Social Lion," which is playing at the Missouri.

"Getting into pictures was hard enough," she told me out in Hollywood a few weeks ago, "but that was easy compared with living down Wendy. For the next two or three years a cast announcement of me was never printed without some reference being made to my having played Wendy. People spoke of me as that 'little girl.' But the years have remedied the fault, and Hollywood as last realizes that I am grown up. Talking pictures had much to do with the changed impression."

Although she played roles in more than 20 silent pictures, it was the audible screen which gave her the big chance to display her capabilities.

With the exception of "The Marriage Playground" all her talking pictures have brought her before the public as a grown-up young woman.

The eight other talking productions in which she has appeared show her to be the adult she has wanted to be known as since that initial role in "Peter Pan." These pictures are "The Man I Love," "The Kibitzer," "Burning Up," "The Light of Western Stars," "Only the Brave" and "The Social Lion."

In "The Social Lion" Miss Brian portrays a romantic young switchboard operator in a swanky country club where Jack Oakie has been drafted as a member of the polo team because of his prowess in the game, learned while he was an enlisted cavalryman.

Gibbons to Herald The Byrd Pictures

FLOYD GIBBONS, journalist and adventurer and well-known for his articles on current events and his talks on the radio for industrial concerns, may be seen on the talking screen this week at the Missouri Theater in a special announcement heralding the coming of Commander Richard Byrd's picture, "With Byrd at the South Pole," which comes to the Missouri next Friday.

Gibbons, known as the fastest talker on the air today, lives up to this reputation on the talking screen in his introduction to the Byrd picture. He describes personal interviews with the famous explorer and tells of the entertaining continuity of the picture.

De Mille's Daughter Working as "Extra"

HOLLYWOOD, June 21.

SEEKING to win success on her own merits as an actress, Katherine DeMille, 19-year-old daughter of Cecil B. DeMille, motion picture director-producer, has become a film extra.

Miss DeMille now is playing an extra bit in Clara Bow's new starring picture, "Love Among the Millionaires." She is one of 150 supers appearing in society scenes of the production.

"I mean to give myself a real trial in pictures," said Miss DeMille, who until recently was attending a girl's school in Santa Barbara. "By doing so I will find out whether or not I am fitted for the work and if I actually want to follow a screen career. Since I was a baby, I have watched my father make pictures and have always thought that I wanted to become a film player. If I succeed, I want it to be on my own merits. Playing as an extra is the best sort of training and I find it very fascinating. I am having a wonderful time."

Marion, Whiting Together.

George Marion Jr., co-author of the story and lyrics for "Sweetie," and Richard Whiting, composer of the music, have merged their talents once again for the songs in "Let's Go Native," the musical story written by Marion and Percy Heath.

AND Hollywood's Wendy has grown up.

Six years ago Mary Brian went to the film capital from Dallas, Tex., a high school girl in her early teens. She won the part of Wendy in "Peter Pan" and made such an impression with it that she has had a hard time ever since making the public forget her as a child.

She presented her own views of the situation recently while working opposite Jack Oakie in the comedian's first starring picture, "The Social Lion," which is playing at the Missouri.

"Getting into pictures was hard enough," she told me out in Hollywood a few weeks ago, "but that was easy compared with living down Wendy. For the next two or three years a cast announcement of me was never printed without some reference being made to my having played Wendy. People spoke of me as that 'little girl.' But the years have remedied the fault, and Hollywood as last realizes that I am grown up. Talking pictures had much to do with the changed impression."

Although she played roles in more than 20 silent pictures, it was the audible screen which gave her the big chance to display her capabilities.

With the exception of "The Marriage Playground" all her talking pictures have brought her before the public as a grown-up young woman.

The eight other talking productions in which she has appeared show her to be the adult she has wanted to be known as since that initial role in "Peter Pan." These pictures are "The Man I Love," "The Kibitzer," "Burning Up," "The Light of Western Stars," "Only the Brave" and "The Social Lion."

In "The Social Lion" Miss Brian portrays a romantic young switchboard operator in a swanky country club where Jack Oakie has been drafted as a member of the polo team because of his prowess in the game, learned while he was an enlisted cavalryman.

ACTIVITIES OF BOY SCOUTS

SCOUT AWARDS MADE AT IRONDALE CAMP

Merit Badges Given to 62; Best Campers Is Also Selected by Boys.

Sixty-two merit badges, 139 craft awards, 10 first-class badges and six second-class emblems were presented to 153 Boy Scouts of the Mineral Scout Council Area at a court of honor held at Camp Irondale Wednesday evening. The court formed the climax of a special camp, held since June 5, for scouts of the Mineral area, which embraces most of Southeast Missouri.

The special camp for these scouts is an annual affair at Irondale, having been instituted almost as long as the camp has been in existence. In nearly ever case it has formally opened the camp for the summer, the St. Louis contingent for the first section arriving immediately after its conclusion.

In addition to the badges awarded at the court, four scouts, Scouts Charles Kirk, Ed Taylor, Charles Harrison and Harry Leuer, received the Honor Camper award for completing four crafts and obtaining 20 additional points. Three other scouts, Frank Hearnes, Charles Johnson and Allen Oliver, received Satisfactory Camper badges, while the honor of Best Camper, signifying the one scout who, in the estimation of the entire camp, best typfies good scouting, was awarded to Scout Charles Helber of Bonne Terre.

The court was presided over by Chairman Harry Thompson, scout commissioner of the council, assisted by O. V. Johnson and the Rev. J. Bradley. The badges were awarded as follows:

Second class badges: William Horton, Bruce Green and Robert Kutchback of Poplar Bluff; Rush Limbaugh, Albert Tuessler and Jack Himmelberger of Cape Girardeau; Hal Morrow and Roland Buchholtz of New Haven; Bill Burke of Doniphan, and L. Lasswell of Bennett.

First class badges to Allan Oliver, James Dalton and Charles Cofer of Cape Girardeau; Bert Moore of Doniphan; Tom Baldwin of Kennett, and Benton Murphy of Flat River.

Merit Badges were awarded as follows: From St. Louis: Eugene Kelly received badges in personal health, physical development, first aid and first aid to animals; from New Haven, Roland Buchholtz, badge in music; from Sikeston, Charles Cook Jr., cooking; Bob Cole, cooking, Jap Wilson and David Keasler, leathercraft; Gordon Blanton, safety first; from Kennett, Alvin Lasswell, physical development, cooking and bird study, Wilburn Davidson, cooking, athletics and first aid; from Cape Girardeau, Harry Leuer, athletics and public health, Charles Harrison, public health, athletics, bird study, John Oliver, first aid to animals, pioneering, conservation, scholarship, athletics and chemistry, Allen Oliver, athletics and music; from Poplar Bluff, Charles Davis, public health, personal health, firemanship, photography and carpentry, L Marshall, basketry, first aid and scholarship, Charles Johnson, weather, chemisty, L. Howard, pathfinding, Frank Hearne, automobiling, conservation, scholarship and basketry, William Henrickson, athletics, first aid to animals, pioneering and scholarship; from Charleston, A. L. Story, basketry, Frank Kirk, athletics and electricity, Billy Oliver, athletics and electricity, Edward Taylor, electricity, Wilbur Davis, swimming and athletics; from Flat River, Benton Murphy, woodwork; from Bonne Terre, Glenwood Cloud, swimming, Charles Helber, reptile study; from Ellington, William Moore, athletics and electricity.

Star badges were awarded to scouts Charles Davis of Poplar Bluff, Charles Harrison of Cape Girardeau and Harry Leuer and Loren Marshall of Bonne Terre.

Life Badges were awarded to Scouts Smith Caddy and Wilbur Davis of Charleston, Wilburn Davidson of Kennett, Frank Hearne and William Henrickson of Poplar Bluff, and John Oliver of Cape Girardeau. Requirements for the Eagle Badges were completed by the following Scouts while in attendance at Camp Irondale: Billy Oliver and Sam Goodin of Charleston, Alvin Lasswell of Kennett, Paul Mothershead of Poplar Bluff and Arthur Buehl of Leadwood.

Troop Notes

West District.

Troop 2 of the Pilgrim Congregational Church, has suspended meetings until September. At the final meeting for the summer, the Scouts presented Scoutmaster E. B. Langenberg and Assistant Scoutmaster Bruce Evans with gifts in recognition of their service to the troop during the last year. A banquet for the Camparall teams also has been postponed until fall. During the summer, however, a contest in nature study collections will be held.

The hike planned for today by Troop 70 of the Achad Ha'am School, has been postponed until next Sunday. This troop only recently was organized at the school, which is connected with the Jewish Community Center, but already a number of the Scouts are attaining the higher ranks. Assistant Scoutmaster Bauman of Troop 90 visited the troop at its meeting last Tuesday evening.

A banquet to celebrate the troop's winning of the 1930 West District Camparall, was given Troop 30, of the Y. M. H. A., by Troop Committeeman J. Kleinhauser a week ago Thursday evening. One of the speakers at the banquet was former Scoutmaster Meignor, who organized the troop nearly 15 years ago. Thirty-three Scouts of the troop passed tests in fire-building, cooking, tracking, knife and ax, nature study, and signaling, while on a hike to Ferguson two weeks ago.

Two new tenderfoot Scouts were invested into Troop 46 of the Immanuel Baptist Church at a Parents' Night held by the troop a week ago Friday. Each of the patrols entertained the parents with demonstrations of patrol hobbies, including model airplanes, pioneering, camping and nature study collections. A number of stunts also were given.

North District.

A new member, Scout Edward Roberts, was added to Troop 206 of the Ames School, at the regular meeting last week. The meeting was opened with a flag ceremony conducted by Assistant Scoutmaster Ham, and an inspection in which both the assistant scoutmaster and Deputy Commissioner Simons, a guest, participated. Simons also talked on discipline. Troop announcements were made by Committeeman Kelly.

A hike to Ferguson was taken by the scouts of Troop 3 of the Grace Holy Cross Church, last Sunday.

Sixty-five scouts of Troop 1 of the Benton School and their parents attended a picnic given to the scouts by the Mothers' Auxiliary of the troop at Forest Park, two weeks ago. Most of the afternoon was spent in playing games. In a baseball game the scouts defeated their fathers.

Construction of a cabin on the troop's camp site in the county will be started next month by the scouts of Troop 19, of the Blair Howard School. Nine junior officers of the troop recently spent four days at the camp, selecting the site for the cabin and building a road into the property.

A three-day camp at the troop's camp site near High Hill, Mo., was held by Troop 69 of St. Elizabeth's Church last week-end. The scouts went into camp Friday afternoon and returned Sunday evening. The Mohican patrol is leading in an interpatrol contest, with the Dragons second. Scout McGee has been appointed scribe and Scout Burgette quartermaster.

South District.

Plans for a troop merit badge exhibit, to be held in the near future, were made at the regular meeting of Troop 194 last week. Every scout had a part in preparing the exhibit.

The scouts of Troop 168 of St. Pius' Church went on a hike this week-end to Portage des Sioux, the former home of Troop Committeeman Strattman. The troop left the city yesterday and camped last night near Portage des Sioux. The troop has just received a streamer for winning third place in the south district camparall.

TO SELL OPERA SEATS WITH RAILROAD FARE

Cotton Belt Buys 1000 "Blossom Time" Tickets for July 4 Excursionists.

Purchase of 1000 seats for the Municipal Opera's production of "Blossom Time" the night of July 4 was announced yesterday by Daniel Upthegrove, president of the St. Louis and Southwestern Railway, which will run an Independence day excursion to St. Louis from Texas, Louisiana and Arkansas. Admission to the opera will be included in the price of the excursion tickets.

The train will arrive in St. Louis at 7:08 o'clock on the morning of the fourth and return tickets will be honored until 11:30 p. m. July 5. A series of week-end excursions to St. Louis will be conducted subsequently by the Cotton Belt from points as far south as Pine Bluff, Ark.

Commenting on the fact that his road recognizes the opera as a major attraction to visitors to St. Louis, Upthegrove said:

"The Municipal Opera productions in St. Louis, which have attracted international attention, appeal strongly to thousands of cultured citizens in Texas, Louisiana, Arkansas and Southeast Missouri.

"St. Louis is the gateway and the commercial center to which the great Southwest is tributary. The Municipal Opera is the strongest single magnet to draw people to this city, and the Cotton Belt wants all residents in its territory to have the privilege of enjoying the opera's productions throughout the season."

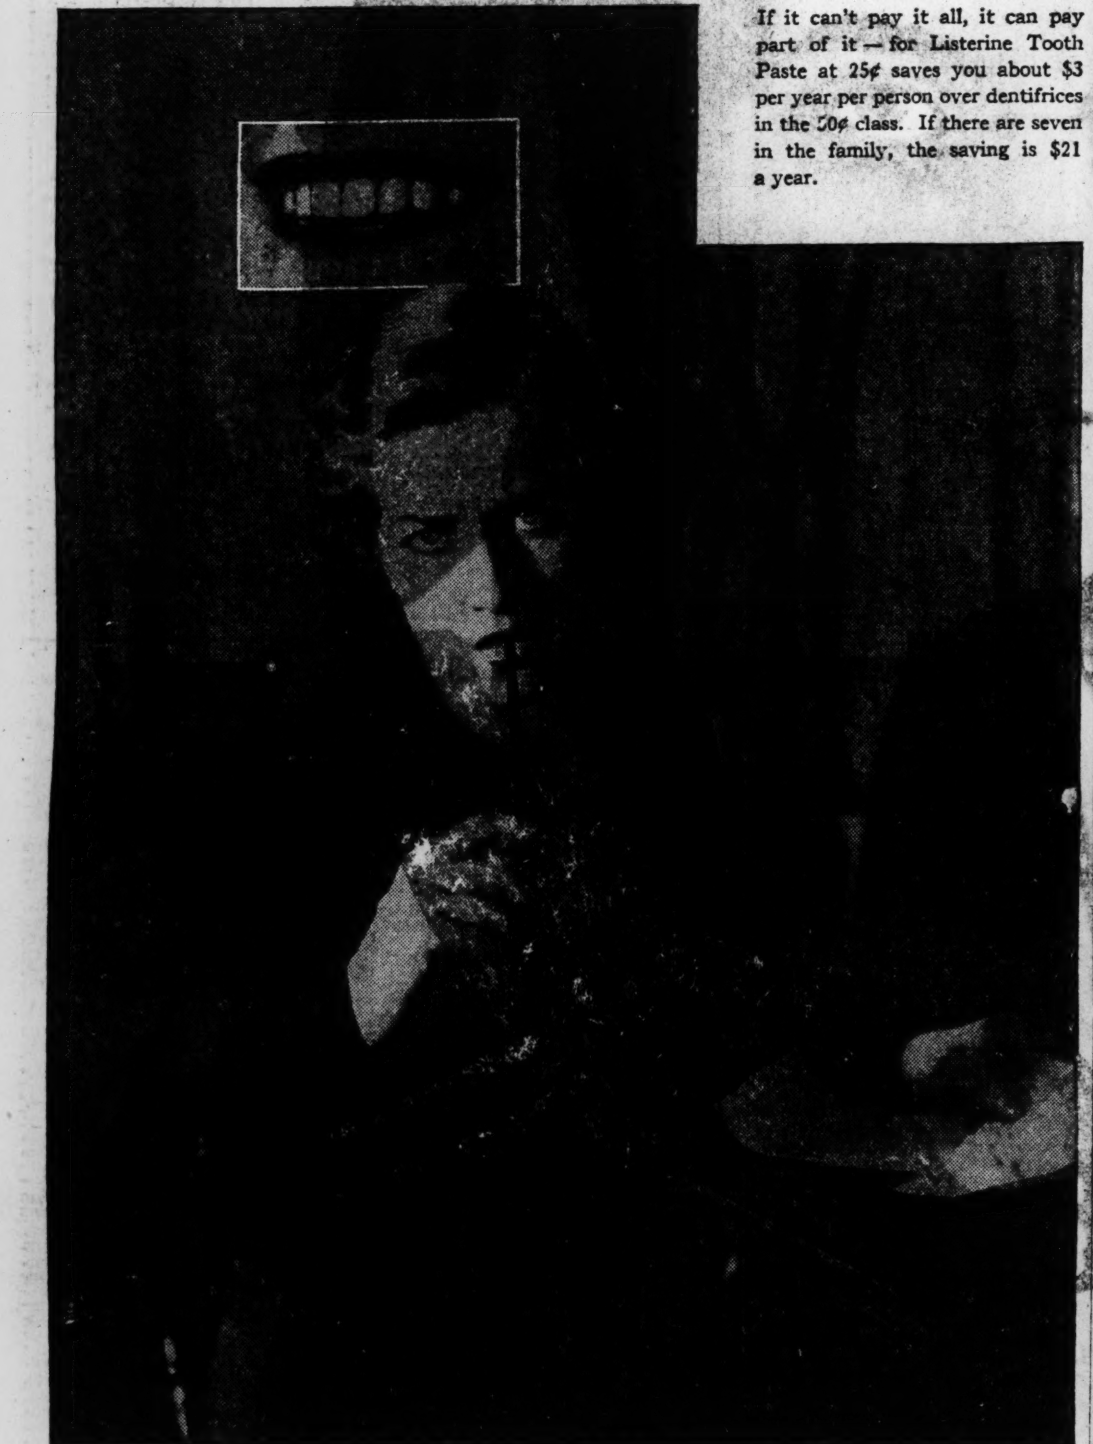
Let your tooth paste pay it



If it can't pay it all, it can pay part of it — for Listerine Tooth Paste at 25¢ saves you about $3 per year per person over dentifrices in the 50¢ class. If there are seven in the family, the saving is $21 a year.

Judges of value

acclaim this modern tooth paste at 25¢

Do you know of one good reason why you should pay more than 25c for a quality tooth paste?

We don't; and we have been studying tooth pastes of all kinds for 20 years. We have learned that all are basically alike—and that, at 25¢, should leave ample profit to the manufacturer.

In Listerine Tooth Paste we offer a dentifrice of outstanding quality—one in every way worthy of the Listerine name. That you can obtain it at 25¢ is due to our ability to buy ingredients in quantity, and to modern production methods which eliminate every unnecessary expense. Why not switch to Listerine Tooth Paste for one month and let it prove its own merits?

Note how swiftly but how gently it erases discolorations and tartar. See how its mild polishing and cleansing ingredients penetrate those hard-to-get-at crevices between the teeth and remove decaying matter. Note that wonderful feeling of health and invigoration that comes to your mouth after you have used it. Then reflect that these benefits are yours for $3 a year—about half of what you usually pay. Young Typist Has Become Britain's Queen of the Air Through Her Astonishing Flight Over Deserts, Mountains, Jungles and Seas From England to Australia.

Miss Amy Johnson.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

LONDON.

THEY'LL be naming streets and flying fields for Amy Johnson now. She is the new heroine of the sky—England's lady Lindbergh. She has captured the whole Empire, from Newmarket to New South Wales. The Empire put up some resistance, too, but it hates to admit that now. Young women flyers had tried to capture it before and it put Miss Johnson down as another crack-brained publicity seeker when she proposed to fly alone from Croydon to Australia in a second-hand plane. Even after she had actually started the skeptics said it was hot air, dangerous nonsense, suicide, a blimed fool'ardy venture.

But when she reached India in six days, ahead of all records, the skeptics began to show a lively interest, and when she swooped down out of the fogs of Moulmein Pass and fought her way through the monsoons of the Java seas, to arrive at Port Darwin, 11,000 miles from London, in 19 days, they hauled down their flags and surrendered. She became then England's queen of the air and, by grace of His Majesty, a Commander of the British Empire, a plucky lass, sir, if you ask me.

Miss Johnson just before the take-off at Croydon Field.

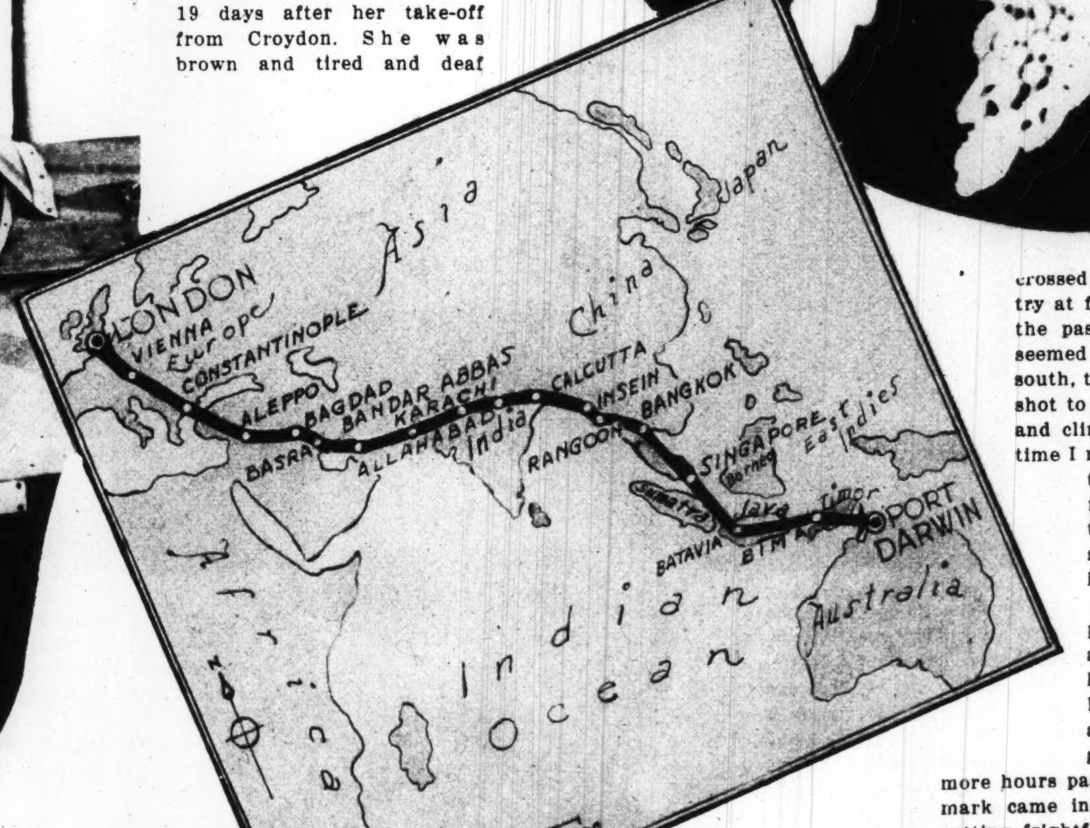
Two months ago, Amy Johnson was merely a London clerk, a stenographer in a law office, one of the innumerable Johnsons who are clerks and who are indistinguishable from innumerable Wilsons, Browns and Smiths. Until she took off for Australia on May 5 she had spent a total of only 90 hours in the air, and her longest flight had been from Hull to London, 150 miles. She had held a pilot's license for less than a year. Outside the training field of the London Aeroplane Club she wasn't even known as a promising amateur flyer.

SHE looked like any other blue-eyed, fair-haired Miss Johnson when she appeared in the newspaper offices of Fleet street a short while ago and tried to sell her story in advance. Newspaper offices are accustomed to callers who try to sell great stories in advance. They turned her down unanimously. They had never heard of her and had not the least suspicion she would ever reach Australia or even try very hard to do so. She was told to run along and fly to Australia first and then come in with her story. Fleet street wishes now it had taken her up. It is confused and apologetic.

For this particular Miss Johnson is a great figure in the Empire today. Australia has taken her to its collective heart. When she started out she knew only one person in Australia, a woman in Sydney, to whom she carried a letter. Now, it is said, she knows, or soon will know, about 6,000,000, which is about all the Australians there are. They have accorded her celebrations approaching those with which Lindbergh was greeted when he flew across the Atlantic. All the high officials in the land have greeted her, feted her and worshiped at her shrine, which is a battered and patched-up airplane. From England the King and Queen have wired their congratulations and her name headed the roll when the King recently issued his birthday list of honors conferred. She is the first woman to be given the freedom of Hull. She has caught the popular imagination much as Colonel Lindbergh did. It is not hard to see why.

She did what she said she would do, and did it mostly on nerve. The odds were all against her. Nobody conceded her even an outside chance. Yet she executed one of the most astonishing flights in the history of aviation. She didn't even have a new plane. She started out in a used machine which her father and Lord Wakefield bought for $3000, Lord Wakefield, a good angel in such matters, having agreed reluctantly to help finance the flight. She didn't have a mechanic. She was her own mechanic. She had skinned her knuckles and split her nails for months learning how to overhaul an engine. She didn't have a navigator.

Acting as her own pilot, her own mechanic and her own navigator, she started out alone to fly 11,000 miles on one of the world's most perilous air lanes, an air lane previously flown only by the most skillful of professional pilots—and an air lane three times as long as the trans-Atlantic flight. Then, with only 90 hours of flying experience behind her, she proceeded to break all records by arriving at Karachi, India, in six days, two days ahead of the mark of Captain Bert Hinkler. She crossed India in two hops and tackled the jungles, the mountains and storms of Burma and the Malay Peninsula. Rain blinded her and heavy wind carried her off her course. She was compelled to make landings in inadequate fields and jungle clearings. She broke a propeller and bamboo spikes tore her wing fabric. But she made repairs and fought on, crossing the tropical, storm-swept seas and arriving at last at Port Darwin, 19 days after her take-off from Croydon. She was brown and tired and deaf from the roar of her motor—but victorious, although she had not beaten Hinkler's time record.



Map showing route of Miss Johnson's flight from London to Port Darwin, Australia.

In all her days she won't forget the harrowing details of that flight. She won't forget her ordeal at Moulmein Pass. She gave a graphic account of it upon landing at Bangkok after battling rain and fog for seven hours in flying 350 miles.

"I left Rangoon in blinding rain," she told a correspondent. "I crossed the sea, keeping low and endeavoring to find Moulmein before climbing to seek the pass over the mountains into Siam.

"I met nothing but clouds and rain. I could not find Moulmein nor the pass through the mountains. I kept searching for half an hour, and then found I was lost. I then climbed to 9000 feet and tried to cross the mountains blindly, steering toward the north because the weather seemed clearer in that direction. I turned to right and left trying to get through, when suddenly I came out in clear weather and found that I was still on the same side of the range. I had not crossed at all. I had another try at finding Moulmein and the pass and, as the weather seemed a bit clearer toward the south, this time I made another shot to get through the clouds, and climbed and climbed. This time I managed to come out on the other side of the mountains, but my position was off my map section and I had no idea where I was.

"It was impossible to pick up any landmarks, and for three hours I kept flying through heavy clouds, every now and then getting a glimpse of rivers. Three more hours passed before a real landmark came into view. My fuel was getting frightfully low when I finally picked up the railway junction in Siam where the northern and northeastern lines of the Siam State Railway join. The rest was pretty easy." That was a London stenographer, all alone.

There were other hours, too, which she wouldn't enjoy living through again. There was the nerve-racking flight from Aleppo to Bagdad in an earlier stage of her trip. Her machine was caught in a sandstorm and tossed about in a violent gale. In 10 minute she dropped from 7000 feet to 300 feet. There were dense clouds and visibility was something that didn't exist. She finally decided to attempt a landing in the desert to wait for the storm to pass. By some almost miraculous fortune, she managed to do it, but found her position on the ground was scarcely less perilous. She had to block the wheels of her machine with tool boxes to keep it from being blown away. Then she stood for two hours with revolver drawn, momentarily expecting an unwelcome visit from a party of Arabs, for she was near enough to a camp to hear the dogs barking. But after the storm she got safely away.

A foggy stretch between Calcutta and Rangoon contributed its full quota of woes. The fogs deepened and the latter part of this day's hop was through heavy rain and against strong headwinds. She had to cross the Yomas mountain range at 12,000 feet and then descended to 200 feet in order to follow the coast line.

AT INSEIN, 15 miles north of Rangoon, she mistook a football field for the Rangoon race course and attempted a landing. The space was too limited and the machine taxied into a ditch, damaging wings, wheels and propeller. It had to be hauled to Rangoon in a truck for repairs, which delayed her two days and caused her to fall behind the schedule of Captain Hinkler.

There was a 10-hour flight over the Java Sea, part of the way through a storm, and in Java fuel shortage compelled her to make a landing on the swampy ground of a jungle clearing. By good fortune again her ship emerged with only a torn wing. She was nearly "dead beat," as she ex-

NOMINATED for GOVERNOR, then DISBARRED as LAWYER

How a Court Fight Over a Dead Man's Money Has Led George W. Joseph of Oregon, Former Sheep-Tender and Yukon Miner, Into Political Prominence and the Bad Graces of the State Supreme Court.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

PORTLAND, Oregon.

A POT of gold is at the beginning instead of the end of George W. Joseph's rainbow. It is a dead man's money, and it is the first link in a chain of cause and effect that seems likely to land in the governor's chair this lawyer who has been disbarred by the Oregon Supreme Court. Joseph has won the Republican nomination, and unless the Democratic vote is far above its normal strength, he will be elected in November.

The steps by which this situation can be traced back to the fortune of $1,500,000 left by E. Henry Wemme on his death in 1914 are clear. There was litigation over the estate, and the interests represented by Joseph lost in the Supreme Court. Joseph openly made serious accusations against certain members of the court. The tribunal disbarred him. He sought public vindication and ran for Governor. Hoping merely to poll a sufficient vote to show that many people still had confidence in him, Joseph surprised himself by winning the nomination from his six opponents.

Back of this obvious chain of circumstances, of course, is the character of a man for whom adversity has always been only a challenge. Joseph started life with nothing and has fought for everything he has. As sheep-herder, farmer, logger and miner he fought poverty and obscurity by manual labor, and after he had become a lawyer he continued the struggle with his wits.

Of Scotch-Irish ancestry, Joseph was born in a log cabin on Joseph Creek at the lower end of Goose Lake in Modoc County, California. His father, Edwin Worthington Joseph, was a native of Zanesville, Ohio, and his mother, Delilah Jane Heath, was a daughter of the Rev. George W. Heath, one of the pioneer Methodist ministers of Oregon.

When he was a boy, George Joseph's father removed to Chewaucan Valley in Lake County, Oregon, and established the first sawmill in that region. He later returned to California and engaged in ranching.

Young Joseph was ambitious to obtain an education. He herded sheep for two years on the edge of the Oregon desert, a remote region near Albert Lake, to earn sufficient money to aid him in his schooling. He entered the high school at Lakeview, Oregon, when 16, working for his board and lodging. Finishing this small school, he decided to study law and entered the office of W. A. Wilshire of Lakeview, continuing to work for his meals and a place to sleep. He later got a job in a general merchandise store in the same town, working long hours as combination clerk, delivery boy and janitor.

LAKEVIEW in those days, the late '80s, was a small town where ranchers purchased their supplies. In Lakeview cowpunchers, for miles around, spent their earnings each payday, and annual rodeos were held in the town. Men worked hard and lived hard.

In the early '90s Joseph went to Portland and read law in the office of Watson, Hume and Watson, paying for his instruction with his work as janitor. He completed his legal education with this firm and was admitted to the bar in 1893. He continued his association with the firm for two years, and in 1895 formed a law partnership with Julius L. Meier, who is now one of the principal owners of a department store in Portland, one of the largest independent department stores in the West. Joseph has been legal counsel for this store for a number of years.

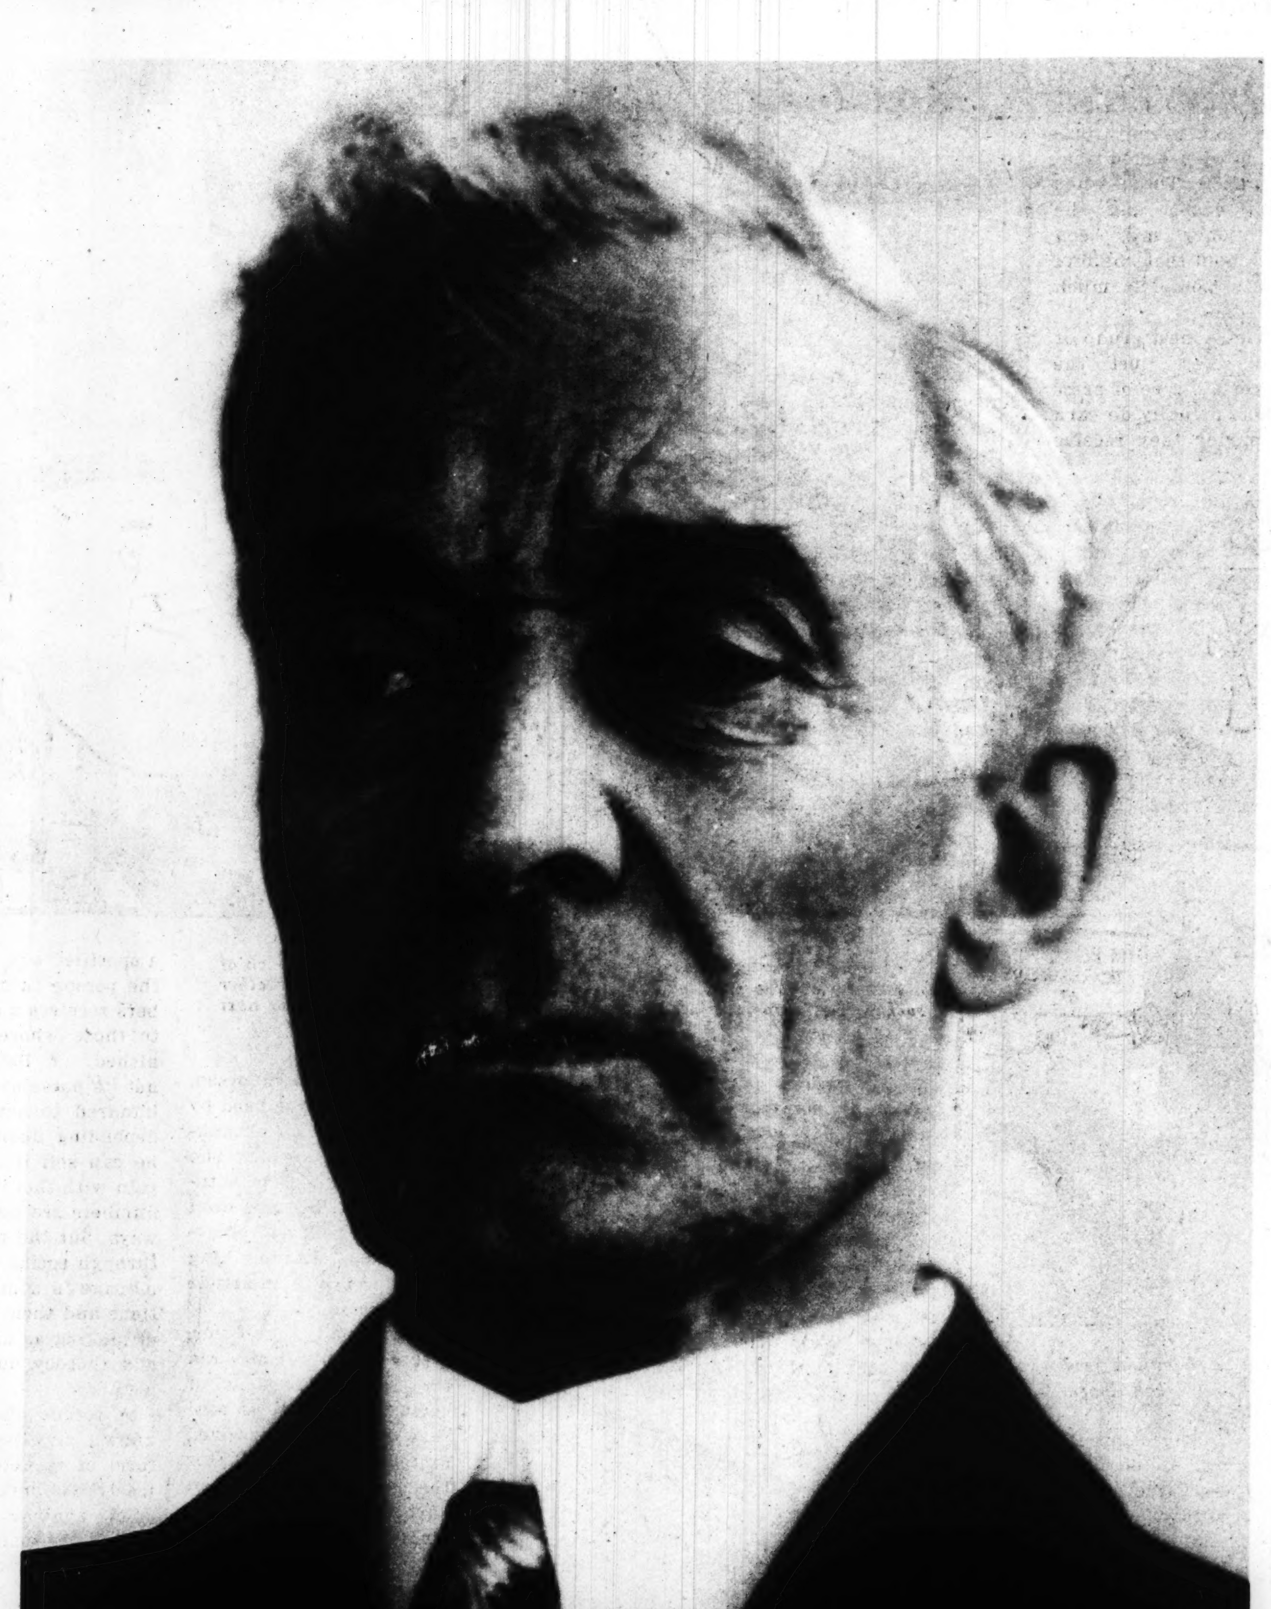
During the Alaska gold rush in 1897 Joseph went to the Yukon, where he spent the winter mining. The young attorney made his "poke" and returned to the States in 1898, resuming his law partnership at Portland with Meier. When Meier retired from practice to enter the department store, Joseph formed a partnership with Frank Schlagel, another former Lakeview boy. On the dissolution of this alliance Bert W. Haney joined forces with Joseph. E. W. Littlefield later was taken into the firm. Haney was a member of the United States Shipping Board in later years, and Littlefield was a district judge for several terms. Joseph remained out of politics until 1910, when he was elected to the State Senate from Multnomah County.

On October 7, 1903, Joseph married Bertha L. Snell of Drain, Oregon. To this union a son was born, who is now a member of his father's law firm. Haney is still a member of the firm.

After serving his first term in the State Senate, Joseph did not seek re-election until 1920; he won the office and kept it two terms.

While a member of the Senate during these years he advocated a constitutional amendment providing for creation of a commission in Oregon to formulate plans to develop cheap water power. Bills to this end were defeated in 1921, 1925 and 1927.

As a climax to this career of struggle came the Wemme litigation and its aftermath of professional loss and political gain. Joseph was attorney for Wemme, a Portland resident who had amassed most of his $1,500,000 fortune in the real estate business. Joseph drew Wemme's will, and after his client's death assisted in carrying out its provisions.



George W. Joseph.

Attorney Thomas Mannix.

Under the will a company was formed, the E. Henry Wemme Company, and the stock was divided among the heirs, all of whom lived in Germany except one, August Wemme of Portland. Out of the estate $500,000 was set aside, to be managed by three trustees, with instructions for them to hold the property by means of the corporation, and build a maternity hospital, which, with the remainder of the fund, was to be given to the Christian Science churches of Portland. Provision was made for Christian Science practitioners at the hospital, but not for any physicians. On this point a hitch developed. A State law requires a physician to be always in attendance at a maternity hospital. The church authorities refused to meet this requirement, and so could not operate the institution. They sold it to the Salvation Army. Meanwhile, the United States had entered the World War, and the alien property custodian of the United States seized the stock of the E. Henry Wemme Company which stood in the names of the alien heirs. E. W. Wickey was legal counsel for the alien property custodian. Joseph was the attorney for the fund in the hands of the church.

After the war was over Thomas Mannix of Portland came into the case as attorney for August Wemme and the foreign heirs, who sued to break the will and recover the money set aside for the hospital. After several years the case reached the State Supreme Court, which finally ruled that as the will was faulty in not providing for medical treatment, the $500,000 set aside for the hospital should go to the heirs. As the hospital had already been sold to the Salvation Army, the court decided that the money paid for it should be held by a committee of trustees until all matters connected with the case were settled and the money could be paid to the heirs. One matter still to be adjusted is Mannix's fee. The heirs refused to pay him the $135,000 he asked, and he brought suit to collect it. The money for the heirs is still being held in trust.

The litigation caused bad feeling between Joseph and Mannix and they engaged in public controversy in which they made various charges against each other. Presently the names of two justices of the Supreme Court were brought into the quarrel, Joseph asserting the Judges and his opponent had been unduly friendly while the case was pending in the upper court. He said Mannix boasted he had given liquor to the two justices and "stood in high" with them. He also declared that one of the judges sold Mannix an option to buy for $100,000 a mine in Idaho in which the judge had sunk $25,000, and that the transaction took place when there was no apparent way for Mannix to raise the money unless he won the Wemme suit.

A committee of lawyers reviewed the charges against the justices and exonerated them of any corruption. Joseph, however, continued to attack them and Mannix in radio speeches and pamphlets.

Mannix and Joseph then filed disbarment charges against each other and both cases were put before the Supreme Court. This body appointed three circuit judges to act as referees and make recommendations to the court.

Joseph contended that Mannix had made an agreement with the heirs of the Wemme estate by which Mannix was to receive 50 per cent of whatever money he recovered for his clients. It also was alleged that Wickey, former counsel for the alien property custodian, had joined forces with Mannix and the two of them had bought up stock of the E. Henry Wemme Company. Mannix said Joseph had tried to intimidate the Supreme Court into giving a decision favorable to him, Joseph, in the Wemme case.

The referees recommended that Joseph be disbarred for life and Mannix for three years. But the Supreme Court, giving its decision about six months later, disbarred both for life; the court stated, however, that Joseph could be re-instated if he would publicly retract his charges against its members.

IT WAS after the referees had made their report that he be disbarred for life, and before the court had acted on it, that Joseph jumped into the race for Governor. Considerable sympathy had been manifested for him; some people seemed to regard him as a martyr in the cause of free speech, others gave him the admiration that a fighter, be he right or wrong, commands. The sentiment favoring him seemed to be sufficiently strong for him to make a respectable showing in the primary, and that was what he wanted—merely to prove by votes that a great many people in Oregon thought well enough of him, despite the attack on his professional record, to try to elect him Governor. So he entered the contest, with free speech as his campaign issue.

There were already four others in the race for the Republican nomination. One of them was A. W. Norblad, the incumbent in office, who, as president of the State Senate, had succeeded to the governorship on the death of Governor Patterson. The Republican organization had indorsed Harry Corbett, a wealthy resident of Portland. One candidate dropped out before the campaign was over, but others entered the struggle, so that at the last there were seven to be voted on. The only newspaper support Joseph had in the capital came from a paper with a circulation of less than 50,000.

When the returns were in it was found that Joseph had won the nomination by a margin of nearly 4000 votes. Norblad was second and the organization candidate was third. Three weeks after the people had thus spoken the Supreme Court spoke and disbarred Joseph.

Since the primary, a Republican newspaper with the largest daily circulation in the State, which fought Joseph bitterly in the campaign for the nomination, has turned to him and advocated his election. A large independent paper, which also opposed him strenuously in the primary—and which, a decade ago, denounced him in front-page editorials when he was engaged in a feud with its editor, now dead—has congratulated him on his victory.

His election as Governor, of course, is not a certainty despite the fact that nearly 75 per cent of the voters are registered as Republicans. The Democrats have nominated Edward F. Bailey of Junction City, a lawyer of high standing, and are preparing to make a determined effort to elect him, recognizing that a Democratic candidate has a chance this year against a Republican who has a good many enemies as well as friends. So Joseph still has a fight on his hands.

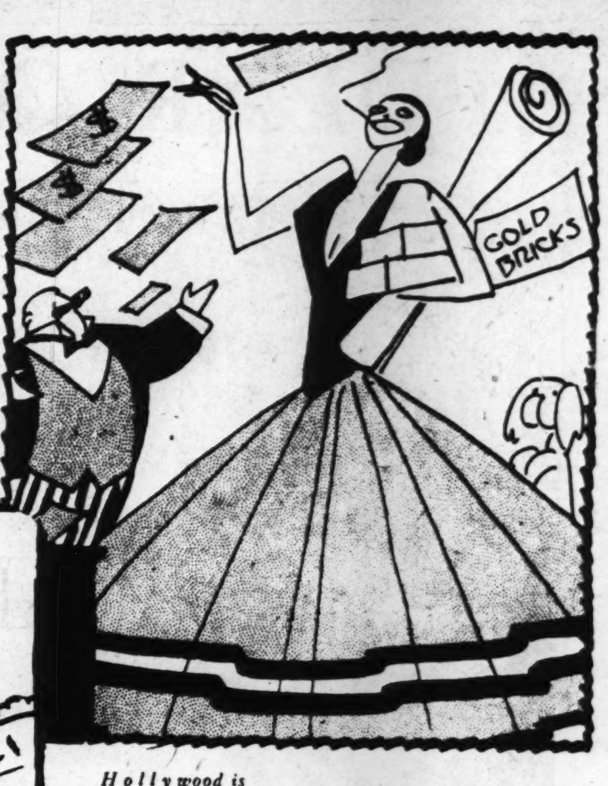
At the time this is written, Joseph has not yet apologized to the Supreme Court. People who know him say he probably will not—at least until after the November election.

The Tribute Paid by Movieland to Crooks

Many Parasites Prey Upon Hollywood's Citizens, From Stars to Extras, With All Manner of Graft and "Holdups."

By DAN THOMAS

Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine



Hollywood is full of stars . . . with more money than brains . . . Since they wouldn't know what to do with either, somebody might as well take the former.

HOLLYWOOD, California.

THIS Hollywood being what it is, the movie capital of the entire world is overrun with movie stars who have a lot more money than brains. Men stars, women stars, adolescent stars, all sorts of stars, fairly getting in the way of one another's feet. And, with it all drawing salaries far above the conception of an ordinary person. It isn't any wonder, accordingly, that most of them don't know what to do with all their money. It isn't any wonder that they fall for a hundred and one various schemes proposed to them daily. Enter, then, our particular variety of "racketeers," the boys with the slippery manner, who have conceived and executed—and are still conceiving and executing—their own particular "rackets," developed for special appointment to their majesties, the Hollywood movie lights, the easy-money babies of the Western coast.

There are racketeers and racketeers. On the one hand there are the Chicago gangsters and on the other hand the Hollywood boys. Of course, there is a difference between the two groups. The Chicago gangs use their automatics so freely that your true Chicagoan ducks for a doorway every time a truck backfires. But the Hollywood boys try to keep everything quiet on the Western front. Some of them don't even know how to use a gun. Their weapons are fountain pens, and their motto, "Sign on the dotted line, please." And it might be said right here that their methods are quite as successful as the harsher ones used by their rivals of the Middle West. Perhaps even more so, as they have acquired the technique of fleecing their victims and making them like it.

There are almost as many different rackets in this town as there are stars. Still, the fact that the field already is overcrowded doesn't make newcomers the least bit pessimistic. They are cropping up continually, and some of them have brand-new gags.

Let's be fair about this. It must be admitted that some of the local boys give at least partial value for the money received. And nearly all of them manage somehow or other to stay within the law, thereby eliminating the necessity of looking at the California sunshine through bars.

GIRLS, BOYS—Do you want to become movie stars? Motion picture producers are crying for more talented players with good speaking and singing voices. Our special six weeks' course of instruction positively will put you in a position to grab the highest screen honors. Our instructors all are experienced motion picture men. DON'T WAIT. ENROLL AT ONCE AND KNOW HOW IT FEELS TO BE A FILM CELEBRITY.

SUCH an advertisement might be found in a Los Angeles or Hollywood newspaper almost any time. Conducting a fake movie school is one of the oldest rackets in "make-believe village." And that business is a racket in the truest sense of the word. Yet unsuspecting girls and boys fall for them and the men running these so-called schools reap small fortunes.

These schools have absolutely no connection whatever with the film studios. They cannot get jobs for their graduates, and make no attempt to do so. Most of them are exceedingly careful about the wording of their advertisements and enrollment blanks. They insinuate that big things await their graduates, but they promise nothing.

The usual procedure when a movie-struck girl, who has read their advertisement, appears at the school is to first find out how much money she has. The enrollment fee is set accordingly. After that fee has been paid she is sent into another office to be interviewed by a "director," who probably doesn't know a camera from a microphone. He appraises her talents and outlines her course of instruction.

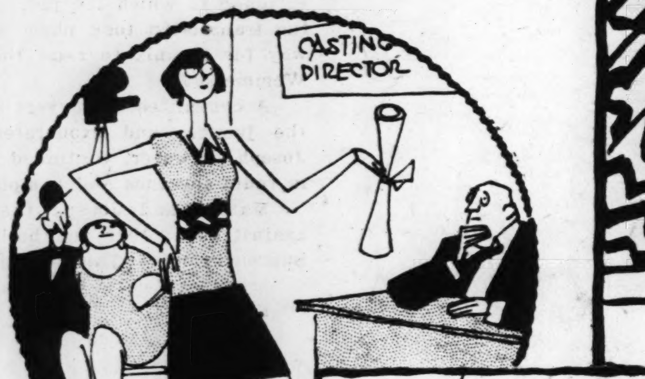
However, this appraisal generally goes no further than asking her to remove nine-tenth of her garments, so that he can have a good look at her figure—"a good figure is highly important in motion pictures."

Then she must buy make-up materials, which the school sells her at exorbitant prices. She also must buy certain costumes and special shoes for her dancing lessons, usually given by a man or woman who would be razzed off the stage in a fourth-rate vaudeville house.

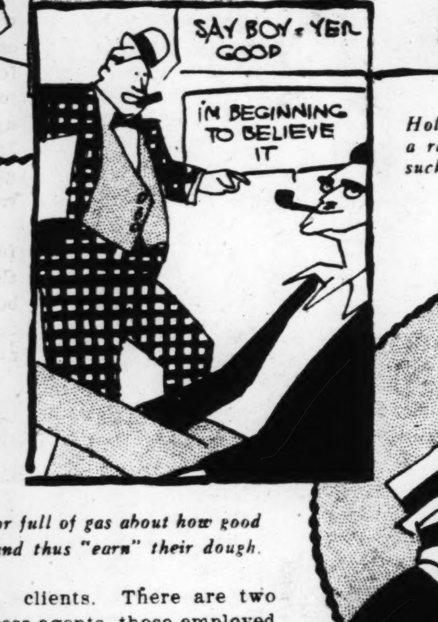
Every week during the course there is some additional charge, which the girl pays without a murmur simply because her head has been filled with illusions of cinema fame. At the completion of her course she is handed an impressive-looking diploma and wished much success in her venture into pictures.

SHE then applies at a studio casting office for a job and proudly presents her diploma when asked what experience she has had. That's when the disillusionment comes and she learns that her money has been thrown away in a school that couldn't possibly do her any good. So much for racket number one.

Now turn to a more honest group of racketeers—but racketeers just the same. They are a certain type of press agent. Some of them actually do earn a portion of the money they receive from their clients. There are two classes of press agents, those employed by studio publicity departments, and the kind usually spoken of as free-lances. Their game is largely one of smooth salesmanship and politics.



The diploma . . . is just dandy to hang up on a big wall . . . but otherwise it is a blowout.



SAY BOY = YER GOOD
I'M BEGINNING TO BELIEVE IT

These wise press agents keep the hopeful actor full of gas about how good he is . . . and thus "earn" their dough.

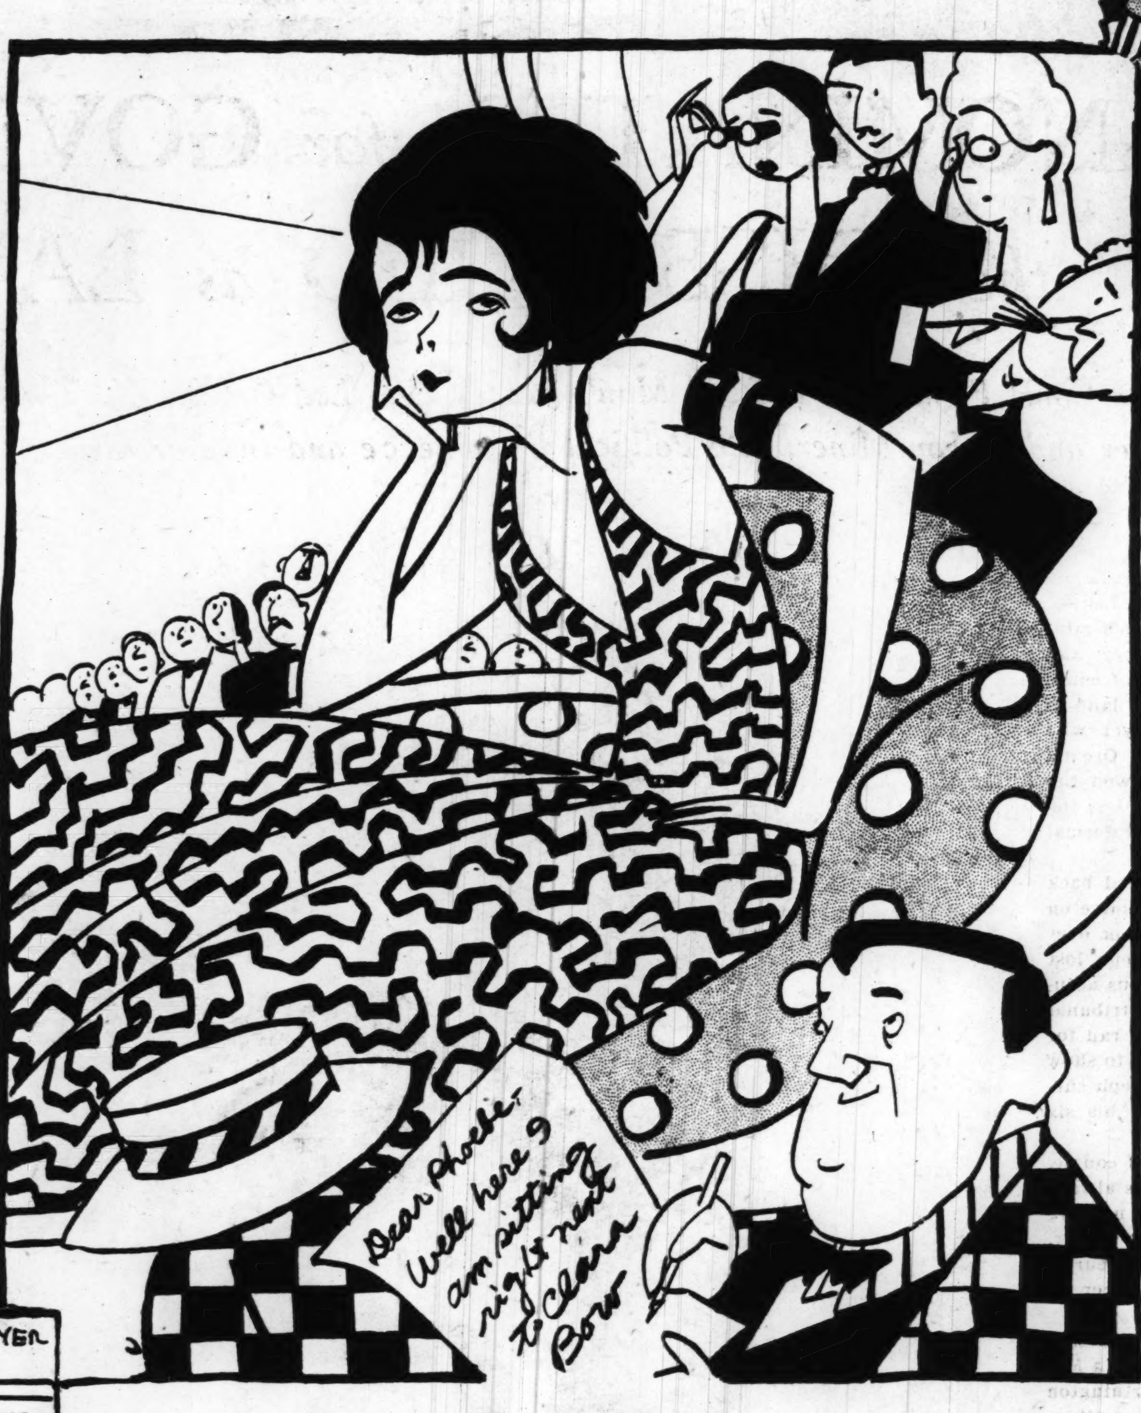
The press agent's job is to convince a rising young player or even an established one that a good publicity campaign would do more than anything else to raise his standing in the industry. After getting the account at a salary ranging anywhere from $25 to $100 a week, the press agent's job is to keep his client satisfied. This can be done in two ways.

One is by actually putting over a good publicity campaign. The other is by doing a great deal of fast talking, in a flattering vein, of course, so as to make the client think he is receiving a tremendous return on his financial outlay.

Both methods are practiced by Hollywood press agents and they seem equally successful.

ANOTHER group of our racketeers are publishing film trade papers, supposedly giving accurate accounts of what goes on in the industry. However, their scribblings are influenced largely by the size of advertisements they can sell to various individuals. For example, we never have known of a trade paper "panning" a picture, no matter how terrible it might be, if the director of that picture is a good advertiser.

Some even go to the extent of promising a certain amount of editorial praise with each ad, the amount of praise depending upon the size of the ad. The publisher of one local trade paper puts out an annual edition which he openly announces as a "hold-up number," and expects everyone in the industry to advertise in it.



Dear Phoebe: Well here I am sitting right next to Clara Bow

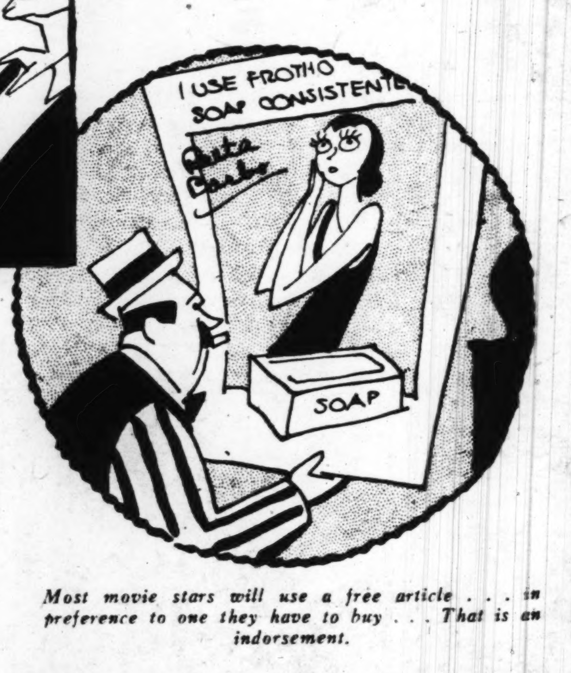
Hollywood's first-night showings of 75-cent movies . . . are pretty much of a racket . . . . The stars pay $5 a seat just to be seen . . . . and the other suckers pay ditto . . . . just so they can write home and say they sat next to Clara Bow.

Most of these trade papers can do no one any good or any harm, since they are read only in the industry, and everyone here is familiar with their method of operation. Yet the film suckers fall for them, mainly because they like to read nice things about themselves, even though they know that they have paid for them.

THERE are testimonials. It is almost impossible to pick up a magazine or newspaper without finding out that some film star prefers a certain brand of soap, a particular cigarette, a new brand of smoking tobacco, a particular brand of coffee, a certain make of swimming suit, a special brand of perfume, a specific kind of chewing gum, and dozens of other things.

Soliciting these testimonials offers a fertile field for the racketeering gentlemen of the movie hamlet. Often the star receives no compensation outside of a free sample of the article which he or she indorses. However, the gentlemen who secure the testimonials are paid good money by the manufacturers of the various commodities.

Their job does not end with the mere securing of the testimonials, either. They also must take care to deliver the stars free samples of whatever they have indorsed. This is the means used by the manufacturer of making sure that the star who indorses his article actually uses it, because even film folk will use something they get for nothing in preference to an article they must buy.



I USE FROTHO SOAP CONSISTENTLY
Greta Garbo
SOAP

Most movie stars will use a free article . . . in preference to one they have to buy . . . That is an indorsement.

Occasionally, however, a star is handsomely paid for his indorsement of some article. It is said that Lew Cody received quite a sizable check for the use of his name in an advertising campaign for ginger ale. And Will Rogers is reported to have gotten $50,000 for declaring from billboards throughout the country that he prefers one brand of gum to all others.

Selling photos of filmdom's various celebrities is another racket which pays a high dividend. There is one firm which makes a practice of handling stars' fan mail free of charge. The only expense to the player is postage and the actual cost of photos mailed out. The firm makes its profit by securing names and addresses of thousands who are interested in film celebrities. Letters are then written to these persons telling them of the firm's very attractive offer of "five beautiful pictures of motion picture stars for $1," or whatever the price may be. And they sell a tremendous number of pictures which cost them only a few cents each.

THEN there are those who sell the confidential telephone numbers of the movie colony to automobile salesmen, real estate promoters, insurance agents and hosts of others at so much per number.

Nearly all persons connected with the film industry have confidential numbers which are not listed in the phone book and which cannot be obtained from the telephone company. It is their only means of protecting themselves against the hordes of parasites who would pester them to death. As a rule these numbers have to be changed three or four times a year because they become so well known.

Sometimes the list is turned over for a specified sum of money. Other times the person furnishing the phone numbers receives a commission on all sales to those whose numbers he has furnished. A list of 100 numbers will net its possessor anywhere from a few hundred to several thousand dollars, depending upon the number of places he can sell it and his ability to bargain with those desiring the list. These numbers are learned in many different ways, but the most popular method is through social contact. The racketeers manage in some way to secure invitations and then go about their business of making as many friends as possible and thereby obtain their phone numbers.

A recent lawsuit against a well-known star brings to mind another form of racketeering practiced rather freely. The most common form of lawsuits against individuals, however, charges breach of promise, and the racketeers generally manage to get some kind of settlement out of court because the stars cannot afford to have their names dragged into scandals, even though they know the charges to be unjust.

STUDIOS also come in for their share of lawsuits, although a good share of these charge plagiarism. Would-be writers from all parts of the country are continually suing studios for stealing their stories. Not one per cent of these persons ever are awarded damages by a court. Nevertheless, their practices are annoying and are largely responsible for the studios discontinuing the buying of stories on the open market. The studios, for the most part, either buy published stories or engage authors of known reputations.

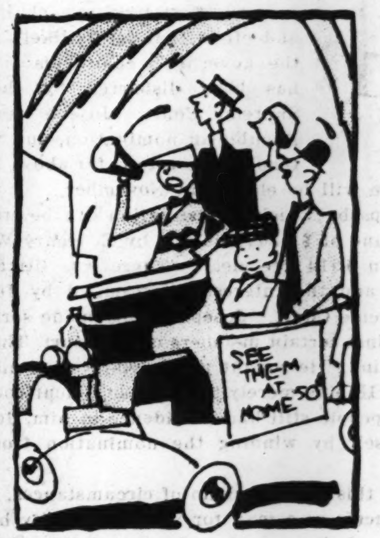
Every movie star who rises suddenly to prominence and the huge salaries and sudden wealth which go with it, lives in daily fear of lawsuits.

Such stars are immediately marked men and women, considered as fit subjects for suits by anyone who can think of a plausible excuse for going to court.

Not only breach of promise and similar suits face the men, but all kinds of personal injury suits are a perpetual menace.

Some of the stars actually refuse to drive or own their own automobiles because of the excellent chance that unscrupulous racketeers will frame an injury and go to court for alleged damages. And the wealthy movie star, whose money seems to come so easily, has little chance for an even break before most of the juries.

Perpetual watch must be maintained to prevent the unauthorized use of the stars' names. Unless they are on the alert, they are likely to wake up some morning and find that they have indorsed the eating of Chipped Bed Slats for breakfast, or the Rapid Reducing Ray for Excess Equators, though they had previously heard of neither.



Kids take wide-eyed tourists . . . for tours to see the stars' homes . . . If they aren't the right homes, what difference does it make?

Their names are in constant unauthorized use by people using them as a reference, although the stars may not even know, let alone approve, the people they are said to recommend.

Only recently one of the Hindu "Swamis," who find so many eager devotees among lonely women in Southern California, used as a reference the alleged fact that Mary Pickford, Charles Chaplin and George Arliss were devotees of his cult. All these movie stars denied that they even knew the Swami and have promised to testify to that effect when the Swami goes into municipal court to face charges preferred by a woman who claims he wronged her after gaining her confidence by telling how the stars swore by him.

EVEN theater owners out here might be accused of being racketeers. Certain long-run houses make a practice of charging $5 admission on opening nights. However, the show is the same that can be seen the following day for anywhere from 50 cents to a dollar and a half. Nevertheless, the house always is sold out on the opening night. The stars pay their $5, doll up in evening clothes and go there to be seen.

And the other suckers pay their $5 for a chance to see the celebrities and with the secret hope of being able to go home and say they sat next to Clara Bow, or some other star, at one of Hollywood's premieres.

Such premieres unconsciously serve another purpose. They give the kids a chance to get in on this racketeering business. The kids know that anywhere from 500 to 3000 curious spectators will be crowded around the entrance of the theaters to catch a glimpse of the stars as they enter. So they appear with boxes of all shapes and sizes, selling them to the throng for 25 or 50 cents each. When the crowd disperses, they gather up their boxes and save them for the next opening.

Another racket upon which the youths have a monopoly is that of pointing out stars' homes. Saturdays and Sundays always find them parked in convenient locations, their dilapidated Fords covered with huge signs proclaiming to the world that they will point out the homes of movie stars for 50 cents.

Sometimes they point out the real homes of the stars and sometimes they don't, but since the tourists for whom they act as guides don't know the difference, everyone goes home satisfied.

There is, however, one cloud on the racket horizon. There is intense jealousy among the racketeers. They seem to be proud of being engaged in their different rackets.

Hollywood. Genteel racketeering at your service.

Knox College, Exponent of Classical Education, to Absorb the Students of Liberal, Practical Lombard, Its Historic Rival.

GALESBURG, Illinois.

IN THIS shady, quiet little city a strange thing has come to pass. Ignoring the assurances of deep thinkers that the machine age is upon us, and the well-established reputation of the Middle West for practicality and materialism, a college which has been training students for bread-and-butter jobs has died, while its nearest rival—a college so severely cultural that it dropped journalism from its curriculum as too utilitarian—goes on triumphantly, stronger than ever.

Lombard College, noted for years for its football and other athletic teams, its school spirit and liberal ideas, expired the other day. And Knox College, its fellow townsman, hale and vigorous at 93, is preparing to look after the orphaned family of Lombard students, and going ahead with an ambitious program to make "dear old Siwash" a greater center of classical learning.

Financial difficulties have brought about the closing of the go-getting little college founded by Universalists in 1851. George G. Davis, who became president of Lombard two years ago, has said that in modern business the trend is toward consolidation and that education can profit by following it; that the cause of education would be advanced by combining the support hitherto divided between Knox and Lombard. Probably few would dispute this reasoning. But few doubt, also, that if Lombard had had plenty of money it still would be carrying on as a separate institution.

Increased operating costs caused the school, some years ago, to spend some of the principal of its endowment. The financial outlook became unfavorable. The endowment fell below that required for good standing in the North Central Association of Colleges and High Schools, to the disadvantage of students who wished to become teachers. In 1928 the Unitarian Church undertook control of the school, making it a grant of $260,000 on the condition that the college raise a considerable amount itself. While plans for a campaign to raise the money were under way the bottom fell out of the stock market last fall. Alumni of this practical school—persons whose training had been planned to equip them for success in a practical world—and other supporters of the institution were among those hard hit by the crash. This, coupled with the generally bad financial conditions, must have made a campaign for money to aid the college appear hopeless. It is interesting to note that Knox had an appeal for funds already in progress—a 10-year campaign—that it continued to push despite the economic gloom and that money kept coming in from alumni who had studied such impractical things as Greek and Latin.

BUT the end was in sight for Lombard, and a few weeks ago came the word that it was planning to cease functioning as a separate institution.

The first brief announcement set all kinds of rumors afloat through this college town, which has always taken a deep and partisan interest in the affairs of the two schools. The first impression was that the change would create a new institution with a new name; some light-minded person even started a report that the name of the new school would be formed by combining parts of the old names into "Lummox."

But the arrangement between the two schools is not a merger, says President Albert Britt of Knox. He has approved "a union of Lombard with Knox" as a proper way to express it. There will not be a new institution. Knox will take over the academic and alumni records of Lombard and accept its undergraduates with full recognition of their Lombard credits. Also it will require them to pay next year only the $200 tuition fee that obtained at Lombard instead of the $260 Knox regularly charges. Knox will add three Lombard professors to its faculty. The Lombard trustees will dispose of the school's real estate and otherwise wind up its financial affairs.

At first it was thought Knox might take over the Lombard charter, with its tax-exempt provisions, but lawyers decided the two charters could not be combined.

THERE seems to have been a general feeling of regret in the town that Lombard was to pass out of the picture. The college had many friends among the people of Galesburg; in some ways it probably has been closer to them than Knox has, despite the fact that it is on the edge of town, while the older school is just on the border of the business district and surrounded by the residences of the citizens. One gathers that Galesburg is proud of Knox for its scholastic standing, but has felt chummier with Lombard as something less remote from the workaday world. And even those who have been adherents of Knox doubtless deplored the fact that no more would their blood be stirred by the fierce athletic contests between the schools which usually came as near to group assassinations as rules would permit.

Of course, these stimulating spectacles have been denied rooters for the last six years, athletic relations between the schools having been severed, but as long as both colleges existed there was hope that they would some day renew their ancient rivalry. It might have been; public demand might have forced school authorities to re-establish a custom which seriously interfered with scholastic pursuits. The annual football and basketball games almost stopped school work for two weeks before each event and several days after; the two student bodies were too busy insulting and taunting each other to bother with studies. Townspeople entered into the spirit of rivalry. All hands bet furiously and recklessly on the outcome. The game itself was always in danger of breaking up into a free-for-all fight—and sometimes did. One basketball game between the schools was never completed; a skirmish between two players spread to the spectators, who swarmed down onto the floor and engaged in a battle royal.

As it happened, last fall the Knox and Lombard football teams went through their Little Nineteen Conference schedule undefeated, and each claimed the championship of the conference. They were not allowed to settle the question by playing each other.

Throughout the years of their athletic relations charges of professionalism were hurled back and forth. If half of them were true, the quaint old academic custom of hiring football players must have reached just about its finest flower in these two centers of learning, and the devastating Ole Skjarsen, who figured so prominently in the late George Fitch's Siwash stories, may not have been entirely a figment of the imagination.

Of late years there is said to have been a tendency on the part of the Knox administration to prevent any more emphasis on athletics than is necessary to make the school reasonably attractive to prospective students. There seems to be no getting away from the fact that for the average youth, about to enter college, a good showing in football and other sports is an important consideration.

At Lombard the development of outstanding athletic teams, particularly football, was part of its program to fit students to step from school into jobs. It gave courses in coaching, and, naturally, a graduate who sought a job as coach would find it helpful to have played on a team of champions.

Lombard also gave business training and a fairly comprehensive course in home economics, which included cooking and sewing. No Greek or Latin was required for graduation as at Knox.

From its beginning, Lombard was liberal in its attitude toward women. It was the first college in the United States incorporated as a co-educational institution, with equal academic rights to female students, and was the first to grant the honorary degree of doctor of divinity to a woman, Augusta J. Chapin receiving the honor in 1893. Women students took a prominent part in the life of the school up to its close, and were subject to less rigid restrictions than in many sister institutions. They furnished a considerable part of the volume of rhythmic sound that emanated from the college rooters when Lombard teams went into action. It might be mentioned, in contrast, that only in the last two years have Knox girls been permitted to take part in the organized yelling for their school.

LOMBARD was chartered in 1851 as the Illinois Liberal Institute. Although organized by a group of Universalists, it was nonsectarian. The first building, located downtown, burned in 1855, and Benjamin Lombard of Henry, Illinois, gave $20,000 toward a new one. This was built on the present campus, and the name of the school was changed to Lombard University in honor of its benefactor. The "university" became "college" in 1900. In 1881 the Lombard Divinity School was established, which later became the Ryder Divinity School and was moved to Chicago. It was affiliated with the University of Chicago, but remained one of the departments of Lombard.

The little liberal college has graduated its share of persons who have become eminent. The best known probably is Carl Sandburg, the poet. Other alumni include Major-General Harry C. Hale, commander of a division in France in the World War; the late Harlow N. Higginbotham, president of the Columbian Exposition, and the late Lucy Hurd Van Horne, a member of the first graduating class, who married Sir William Van Horne, Canadian railway builder.

Knox College is virtually as old as the city of Galesburg, having been established in 1837 by a group of settlers who came out from New York in 1836 and founded the town. It also has emphasized liberality of intellectual development, and is nonsectarian, but has kept close to a classical curriculum. In front of its old Main Hall, Abraham Lincoln and Stephen A. Douglas held the fifth of their series of debates in 1858, and in 1860 the college made it possible for Lincoln to use a "Dr." before his name—had he so desired—by conferring on him an honorary doctorate of laws. The college is said to have been named for Knox County, in which it is situated. The county was named for General Henry Knox, aide to Washington in the Revolutionary War.

Among the men who have gone out from Knox to make names for themselves were S. S. McClure, the publisher; Eugene Field and Edgar Lee Masters, poets; Don Marquis, the columnist, and Otto Harbach, writer of musical comedy librettos. Many others have won eminence in finance, the law, medicine and the ministry.

Eugene Field didn't graduate at Knox. He left school rather unceremoniously; in fact, the college was taken away from him. Various stories are told as to the cause. One is that he was found asleep on the chapel steps; this legend derives a certain fancifulness from the fact that the chapel has no steps. It is remembered, however, that Eugene Field was the only Knox student, so far as is known, who lived at a hotel while attending the school.

FROM the writings of a bona fide alumnus, George Fitch, who graduated in 1897, Knox acquired the nickname of Siwash. The funny stories of college life that made Fitch famous had a mythical Mid-Western college for their setting, but the reading public was bound to identify this school as Knox, seeing in the fictitious school many resemblances to the actual one—the girls' dormitory at Siwash, for instance, was Browning Hall; at Knox it is Whiting Hall.

And old-timers say that the pranks which made life at Siwash a hilarious business could almost be matched by actual happenings at Knox. They tell of the time when someone filled up the old Civil War cannon in the courthouse yard with powder and wadding, eggs and vegetables, and set it off. As it was pointing at Whiting Hall, across the street, the front of that demure structure was weirdly decorated by the blast. They relate that student jesters once filled all the classroom keyholes with plaster of paris, and new locks had to be put on all the doors after they were forced open. Such things happened at Lombard, too.

Modern college sophistication, with its trend to roadhouse parties and gin, failed to supplant prankishness in these two inland schools. The rope by which the bell in Knox's Old Main is rung still disappears several times a year. And it wasn't long ago that the students were pleasantly intrigued one morning by seeing all the cooking utensils from the men's dining hall hanging from tree tops in the campus. The professors have grown hardened to such by-products of education, and it is rather likely that the residents of Galesburg, despite their consciousness of having a city with a population of 28,702, would miss these traditional practices of students if they ceased.

The "union" has created problems for the Greek letter fraternities and sororities. Two national societies are represented at both schools, so arrangements were made to have the Lombard members taken into the Knox chapters. Two others will cease to exist, and one fraternity and one

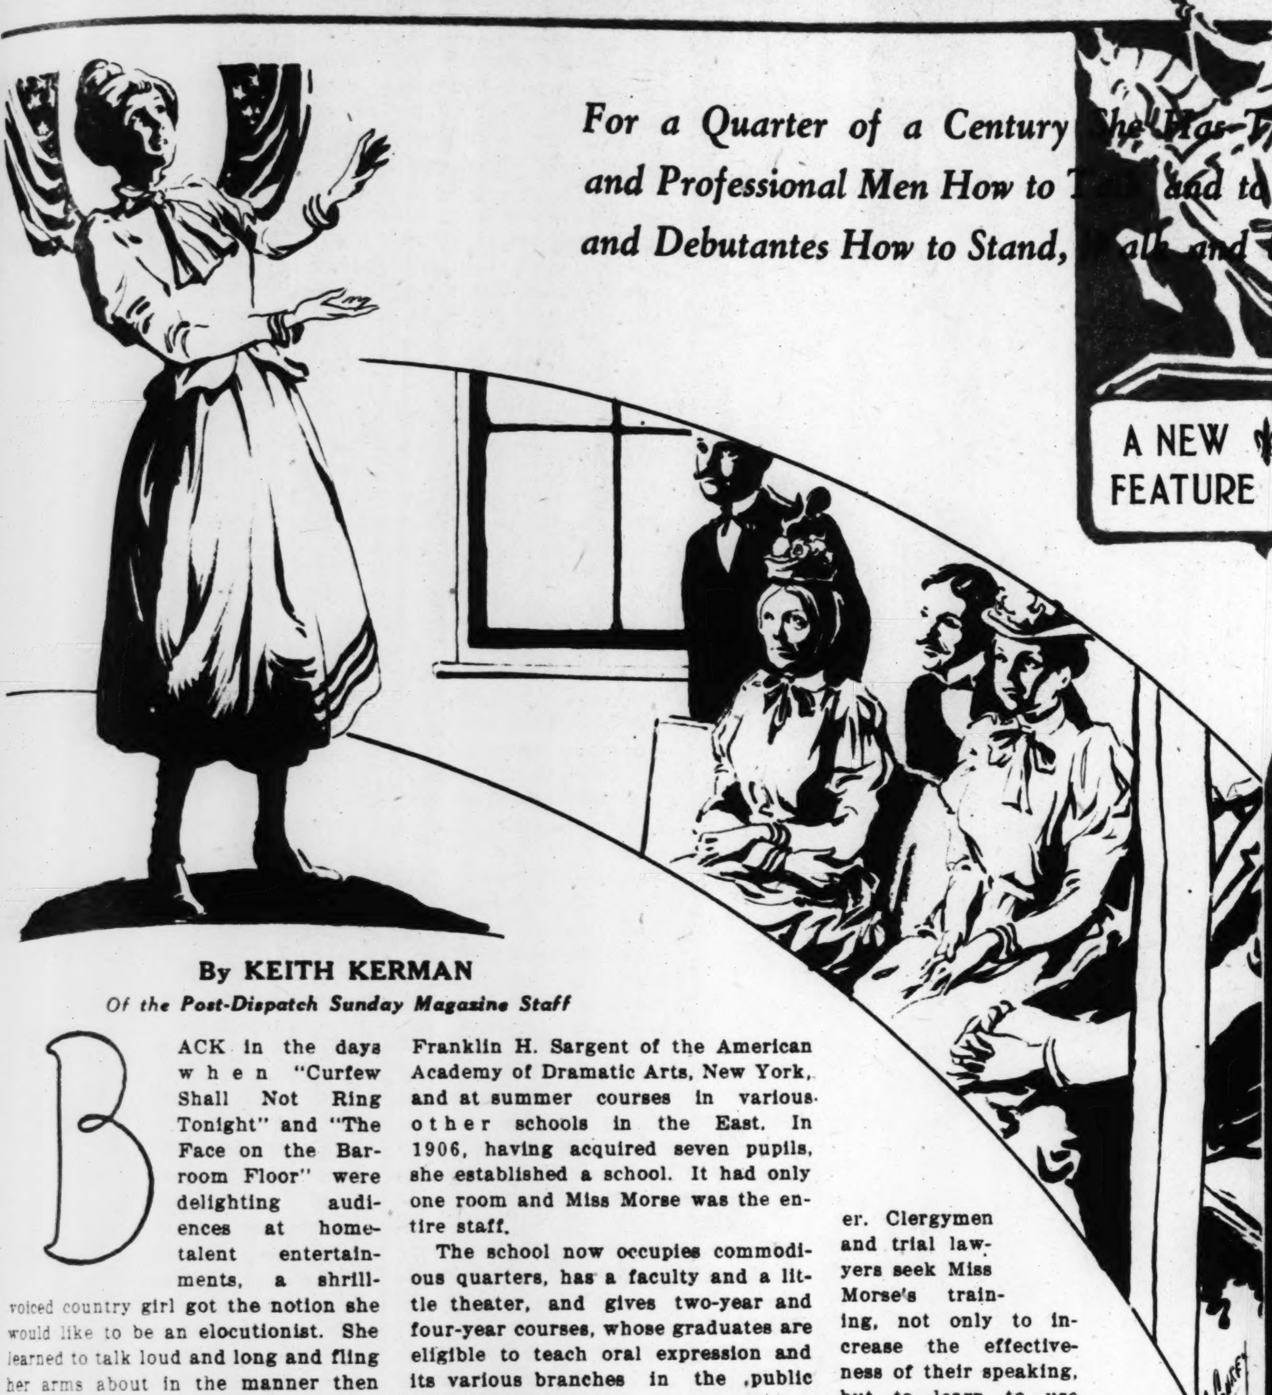
INTERESTING ST. LOUISANS

Elizabeth Morse

For a Quarter of a Century She Has Taught Business and Professional Men How to Talk and to Seem at Ease, and Debutantes How to Stand, Walk and Sit Gracefully.

A NEW FEATURE OF THE POST-DISPATCH SUNDAY MAGAZINE



By KEITH KERMAN

Of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff

BACK in the days when "Curfew Shall Not Ring Tonight" and "The Face on the Barroom Floor" were delighting audiences at home-talent entertainments, a shrill-voiced country girl got the notion she would like to be an elocutionist. She learned to talk loud and long and fling her arms about in the manner then approved, and an elocutionist she became.

Because of this ambition and its fulfillment, more than one St. Louis debutante has acquired that excellent thing in woman, a voice that is ever soft, gentle and low; and many a man of affairs, business and professional, can face a board of directors, a congregation, a banquet company or a prospective customer and express himself with clearness and assurance. The one-time country girl, her voice shrill no longer but an instrument of beautiful modulation and easy power, for nearly 30 years has been training St. Louisans and others in the art of the spoken word. In this and associated activities she has made herself a cultural influence that has been felt far beyond the borders of the city.

Miss Elizabeth Morse is the daughter of the late David M. and Anne S. Morse, her mother having been a musician and educator. For the first 13 years of her life she lived on a farm in Jefferson County, Missouri, then moved to De Soto. When she attended the normal school at Kirksville, she spent for elocution lessons the money her mother had given her to continue her piano study, and it was not until she had won a declamation contest that her family became reconciled to the substitution. After teaching school three years at De Soto she spent a season as reader on a lyceum circuit, and learned to overcome her particular form of stage fright—a quivering of the lips and chin. Also in these years she was improving the quality of her voice. She quit laboring to produce "chest tones" after receiving instruction in tone production at a school of oratory in Chicago.

IN 1900 Miss Morse came to St. Louis to teach her art. But it was a year before she could begin, for her acquaintance here was small and she could not afford to sit back and wait for pupils. So she set out to make herself known—and make a living, incidentally—by giving readings and by coaching amateur entertainments. In 1901 she arranged for the use of a singer's studio in the Odeon two days a week, and put her sign on the door: "Bessie Morse. Elocution and Physical Culture."

A boy, now an attorney, was her first pupil—and for a year her only one. He was so small then that when he spoke pieces "out in company" they used to stand him on a table so everybody in the room could see him.

Five years passed, with Miss Morse struggling for recognition as a teacher of oral expression, making most of her living by her own recitals and constantly studying the developments in her profession. At every opportunity during this period and in succeeding years she took additional instruction, studying with the late Franklin H. Sargent of the American Academy of Dramatic Arts, New York, and at summer courses in various other schools in the East. In 1906, having acquired seven pupils, she established a school. It had only one room and Miss Morse was the entire staff.

The school now occupies commodious quarters, has a faculty and a little theater, and gives two-year and four-year courses, whose graduates are eligible to teach oral expression and its various branches in the public schools of Missouri.

It is in that part of Miss Morse's work whose utilitarian value may not be immediately apparent that most interest probably inheres—the training of society girls, clubwomen, housewives, business and professional men and children in poise and proper use of the speaking voice. A good many of such people take lessons privately and often keep it secret from family and friends.

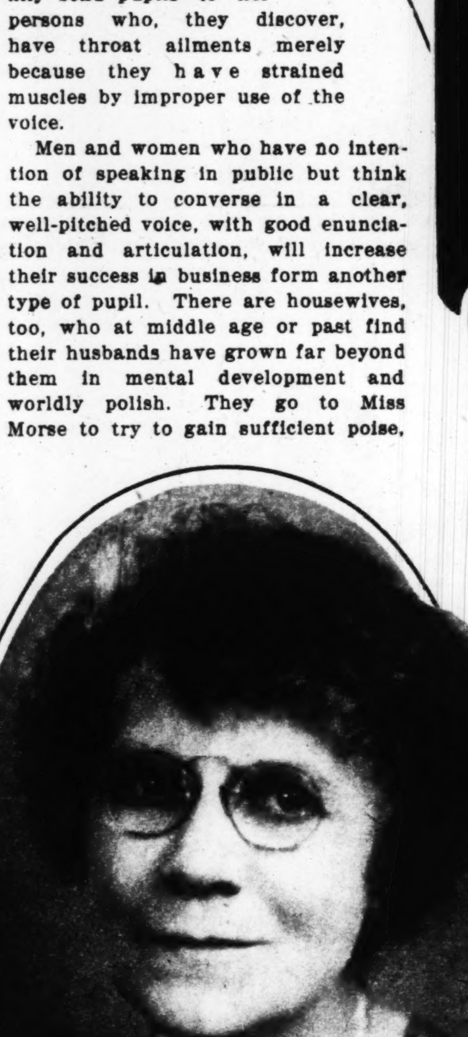
A YOUNG woman destined for a social career may feel that her equipment is deficient—or her parents do. Her business in life is to be ornamental and charming and she hasn't those qualities to the degree desired. She goes to Miss Morse for aid. The instructor sets to work on mind, body and voice. She shows the pupil how to stand, walk and sit gracefully. She puts her through exercises calculated to develop bodily control. She teaches her how to speak so her voice will fall pleasantly on the ear and what she says will be heard distinctly. Pronunciation is emphasized—including the softening of the flat a in certain words, and a partial dropping of the final r in others. Throughout this training there is constant effort to stimulate the mind and quicken the interest and thus help the young woman not only to express thoughts well but to have thoughts worth expressing.

Other daughters of wealthy families take up the study of vocal expression for the sake of a new interest, and, says Miss Morse, find it stimulating to mental and physical health.

A man who has fought his way up in the business world until he is being called on for public expression of his opinions finds himself unable to do justice to himself before an audience. When he gets up on a convention platform or tries to respond to a toast at a dinner, he stammers, sweats, knocks over glasses of water and perhaps is harassed by cries of "Louder!" So he goes to Miss Morse to see if she can keep him from making a spectacle of himself on such occasions. She gets him to making faces—working his jaws, lips and tongue, stretching them, making them flexible. Then she shows him how to make his vowels and consonants go out instead of choking to death in his throat. She shows him how to stand at ease and how to control his breath and makes him say "Ha, ha, ho, ho, he, he." She has him speak pieces.

And, if he does not insist on strict privacy, she has him sit with others in a class where all take turns practicing the art of speaking on one another. Clergymen and trial lawyers seek Miss Morse's training, not only to increase the effectiveness of their speaking, but to learn to use their voices in such a way that they will not tire. Throat specialists occasionally send pupils to her—persons who, they discover, have throat ailments merely because they have strained muscles by improper use of the voice.

Men and women who have no intention of speaking in public but think the ability to converse in a clear, well-pitched voice, with good enunciation and articulation, will increase their success in business form another type of pupil. There are housewives, too, who at middle age or past find their husbands have grown far beyond them in mental development and worldly polish. They go to Miss Morse to try to gain sufficient poise, grace of speech and intellectual rehabilitation that the men who married them when they had the charm of youth will find them fitting mates in these later years.



Two views of Miss Morse.

An important phase of Miss Morse's work is the training of young men and women for the stage. This is done through courses in her school, including that of stagecraft, and the fostering of little theater drama, in which persons who aspire to a career behind the footlights can obtain experience approaching the professional. Harry R. McClain is her stage director.

Several of these pupils have attained considerable professional success. Sanford McCauley played with Glenn Hunter in "Young Woodley" and with Mary Boland, was the juvenile with Richard Bennett in "The Barker," and recently completed a season in "Journey's End." Mildred Kirsch played several seasons ago in "The Storm," Laura Moore in "Expressing Willie," and Jane Townley in Ethel Barrymore's play, "The Kingdom of God." Dorothy Folk played in repertoire in New York, and Charles Davis has filled vaudeville engagements and danced in Broadway productions. Miss Therese Marie Wittler and Eugene R. Wood, trained by Miss Morse, were in the cast of the St. Louis play, "Eyes," coached by McClain, which won the Samuel French award and was one of four in the finals of the recent national little theater contest in New York for the Belasco Cup. Hazel Baare, a former Toy Theater player, has had considerable success as a radio entertainer.

Miss Morse's activity in the little theater movement in St. Louis has been a natural outgrowth of her professional work. In 1914 she established the Toy Theater as a place in which her graduates might get practical experience in acting. Five years ago the Toy Theater Players became an organization, and persons of some amateur experience, who have not been students of Miss Morse's school, are now admitted to membership. Sheridan's "The Rivals," Yeats' "Lands of Heart's Desire," Barrie's "Alice, Sit by the Fire" and Volmer's "Sun Up" are among the plays which have been presented by this group. Ellona M. Garland is the manager and director and chief assistant to Miss Morse in the school.

The Toy Theater is also the home of the Children's Theater, directed by Bessie Bissell Morse, niece of Miss Morse. Here plays are presented by children for children—"Rip Van Winkle," "Cinderella," "Hansel and Gretel," and others of the kind. It is felt that this dramatic training, part of a movement in which there is much interest throughout the country, encourages the love of literature in children, eliminates their self-consciousness and develops their personality.

WHILE Miss Morse is in the business of teaching the art of vocal expression and depends on it for her livelihood, her work and the activities of her school are not limited to the things for which they receive pay. She is an extremely busy woman, but she finds time for considerable gratuitous service. Last year, for example, she and her niece trained the pageant which the Salvation Army gave to raise money for its work. She donates each year to the Tuberculosis Society of St. Louis a scholarship in her school, which the society sells. She frequently sends entertainers from the school to give programs at the city hospital, the city infirmary and such institutions. During the World War she served the Government as a four-minute speaker.

The time given to teaching has compelled Miss Morse virtually to abandon public appearances herself as an entertainer. She does, however, speak over the radio twice a week, except when she has to have a member of her staff substitute for her. One of these weekly broadcasts has consisted of lesson talks on the spoken word; the other, this past winter, has dealt with St. Louis authors. Incidentally, she discovered that she had to use a special "radio voice" for this work. She had to pitch her voice higher than for ordinary conversation, for when she used her customary tones, friends told her, it sounded as if she were talking from a vault. In this connection it might be mentioned that the middle tones of a woman's voice, according to this authority, are generally the best for conversational use; these tones are usually around B, below middle C. With a man the middle tones are usually from a few notes to an octave lower.

In 1923 Miss Morse spent the summer in Honolulu, giving recitals in private homes. The next winter she gave similar programs in New York.

MISS MORSE has rather wide blue eyes and a smooth, melodious, effortless voice. She is small and frail-looking, but says her health is good and she almost never becomes tired. She attributes her endurance to the fact that she practices what she preaches: night and morning she takes a set of exercises calculated to strengthen and relax, and throughout the day she follows a system of relaxation that leaves her free from strain whether standing or sitting. Also, when the weather permits, she usually takes a long walk twice a day.

Most of her reading is concerned with her work—technical articles, plays and literature, from which readings are taken. Study of Shakspeare is part of her professional activity. She hasn't time for housekeeping, and lives at a hotel with her niece.

Miss Morse is a member of the St. Louis Society of Authors, the Cornelia Green Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, the Women's Advertising Club and the National Association of Teachers of Speech. She is the author of "Principles of Expression," a textbook in her profession, and is now at work on another book on the same general subject.

The country girl who became a developer of culture among city dwellers regards the training of the speaking voice as "an unfolding of the intellectual powers"—a matter of mental power and bodily control as well as schooled vocal chords. "Speech," she says, "is the only natural art." And she feels that a life devoted to promoting the best in this art is a life well spent.

JUST a BELIEVER

By HUGH McNAIR KAHLER

OUTWARDLY there was nothing wrong with the picture presented by Millard Fillmore Brett's mirror. He surveyed it, at first, with something like awe, with a touch of the envious and uncomfortable respect that he felt for better men, men who could have worn with jaunty, complacent assurance the apparel in which, for the first time in his three and twenty years, Millard Brett now beheld himself. His image, indeed, made him feel almost as if it had been Sherwood Rutter who looked at him through the golden-oak frame of the glass.

The thought exerted a curious effect upon that mirrored semblance. No sooner had it taken form in Millard Brett's mind than something happened to the shining wedge of shirt-front, the butterfly of black-silk bow, the impressive wings of the starched standup collar and the imposing dinner jacket framing these lesser symbols.

Millard Brett ceased abruptly to be impressed and overawed; there was no longer any likeness whatever to Sherwood Rutter; the familiar and contemptible identity of Millard Fillmore Brett revealed itself unmistakably through what had become a ludicrous and futile attempt at masquerade.

The countenance above the winged collar now turned back upon its owner the very look, hunted and shamed, of that Airedale terrier which little Effie Hartridge, next door, sometimes teased into doll's clothing and wheeled about in her miniature baby-carriage. Its insignificance was magnified; the ears stood ridiculously akimbo, the shock of mouse-colored hair mocked the refining restraint of Slickshine and assumed a new and aggravated shagginess; for the first time Millard Brett was aware that his brows and lashes were inanely pink and that patient razorings could never altogether efface the feeble paleness of what, allowed to flourish, his mustache and beard would be.

In the bitterness of disillusion Millard Brett saw clearly. He laughed as he set about the process of undressing.

"Like Sherwood Rutter!" he said aloud. "Like Sherwood Rutter! Huh!"

HE ALLOWED himself to be guided by prim habit in the disposal of the dinner jacket on a patented hanger, the stowage of the braided trousers in the No-crease-o Stretcher, but his thoughts were remote from these matters. It had come home to him that again, after all his inexpensive enlightenment at the hands of experience, he had fallen into his ancient error, yielded to his incurable, besetting vice.

"Nothing," he said between his teeth, "nothing but a believer!"

The epithet gave a dash of acid humor to the recognition of his folly. Never had he proved so well the basic difference between Sherwood Rutter and himself as in this latest effort to achieve a surface likeness!

"Never again," he whispered. "Never!"

The resolution gave him a dull comfort. He shut his teeth upon it as he resumed the garments he had removed, only a few minutes ago. Then he descended the stairs with a faint but agreeable lessening of self-detestation.

Aunt Hattie met him in the hall. "Why, Fillmore! Aren't you going to wear your dress-suit after all?"

Millard Brett had given up the idea of teaching Aunt Hattie not to address him by his middle name. It didn't greatly matter what he was called at home, and there was something dimly pleasing, too, in the way she said Fillmore, a quantity of tone that seemed to give the name some reminiscent flavor of presidential state. It was also futile, he knew, to make her understand the distinction between a tuxedo and a dress-suit, and he found this difference less important to himself, for that matter, than it had seemed at suppertime, when he'd taken her up rather tartly about it.

"It made me look like a blacksmith in disguise," he said, quoting from a phrase of Sherwood Rutter's. "I guess I wasn't cut out for glad garments."

He managed to be decently flippant about it, partly because Sherwood Rutter would have been thus lightly jocular in the teeth of disaster and partly because it seemed a pity to let Aunt Hattie know how he really felt; it would distress her, he knew, much more than it was distressing him.

"Well, you look nice in the suit you've got on," Aunt Hattie declared. "You always look real nice, Fillmore."

Millard Brett achieved a grin and a cheerfully casual handwave, as he went out.

BUT his step flagged. It was certainly true that Edwina had asked him to come. Even now it seemed to him that she had gone to the trouble of looking and sounding as if she had meant it. But that must have been, of course, just some more of the apple sauce that Millard Brett was always swallowing—not that Edwina had been kidding him along out of malice, the way some girls might have done it, but because she was so nice that she tried to make everybody happy—even a simple fish like Millard Brett.

He laughed at himself for having believed that she actually wanted him sitting on her porch, when she could have a dozen better men to choose from, men who really knew their groceries, like Judson Doolittle, or Harry Parr or Jim Varnum, home from State for a summer's leisure in a monogrammed blazer and a sporty little car! When Sherwood Rutter always called on her when he came back to Binchester and, below the enviable aplomb and flippancy of his banter, permitted even Millard Brett's dull ear to detect, unmistakably, a note of genuine approval in his speech!

A fat, Chinese chance for Millard Fillmore Brett, in company like that!

He stopped on the corner, under the arc-lamp. He'd got wise to himself in time, anyway, and his cheeks prickled as he suddenly beheld himself in fancy in the gay group of Edwina's porch, trying to find a place for his hands and feet, trying to be like the others, to think up just one of the wise cracks that they were always springing on Edwina.

He saw himself there, in that tuxedo, a jackass trying to be a parlor pet!

"Not me!" he said, between his teeth. "Never again!"

THE curbward swerve of a squat little car intruded upon these dark meditations. He knew the car; even in the shadow he knew the slender arm that reached out to its steering wheel.

"Oh, Millard!" The voice, as if he had not seen the pathetic folly of such self-deceptions, revived in him instantly all the ridiculous hopes that he had ruthlessly throttled less than an hour ago. Maybe, after all—

"I hoped we'd meet you, in case you were coming over."

It was the same voice, warm and round and soft, but the pronoun strangled these hopes again in spite of it. Besides Edwina, Millard Brett was now aware of a pale gleam of shirt-front.

"Sherwood's just here this one evening," said Edwina, "and he does so want to see the new wing out at the Country Club. I thought you'd just as soon go out there as sit around the porch."

"Jam in, Mill." There was a cheerful cordiality in Rutter's careless invitation. For an instant Millard Brett wavered on the brink of yielding to the pang of yearning that stabbed through him. Edwina sounded as if she really wanted him to tag along and even Sherwood Rutter, seemingly, didn't greatly object.

"Hop in," said Rutter, less amiably. "Snap out of it, can't you?"

ABRUPTLY Millard Brett regained his sanity. Again he'd almost been a sucker, almost let himself believe that Edwina was actually trying to persuade him to spoil the party instead of just letting him down as easily as she could. Of course, she'd only remembered about asking him over when she happened to see him standing under the light! Anybody but a Millard Brett would have seen instantly through that kind-hearted fraud of hers.

"Wish I could," he managed to say, "but I've got to—" he groped for an excuse that would fit. He couldn't very well say he had another date when Edwina had asked him and he'd promised to come. "I've got to get back earlier than you'd want to come," he went on, almost at random. "Heavy day ahead of me tomorrow and I want to be in shape for it. You go along, Edwina—I'll come over some other night instead."

Rutter chuckled. "Healthy, wealthy and wise!" he suggested. "That's the stuff, Mill! In with the chickens and up with the lark! Same old Mill! Own the factory, one of these fine days! It's in all the books."

He waved a hand given visibility by its cigarette.

"Don't ever grow up to be like me, Mill. Always remember that a rolling stone gathers no whiskers. You glue yourself tight to the high stool and the first thing you know you'll own the works and marry Edwina and get elected into the Kiwanis Club!"

"Oh, Sher! You just destroy me!" Edwina's laugh bubbled over. "I mean you do—really!"

Murder curdled in Millard Brett's heart, but his lips crooked into their defensive grin.

"On your way," he said, achieving a counterfeit of gayety that seemed to convince the others. "Don't waste those swell wise cracks on a working-man like me. I might believe you."

The retort, inspiring Edwina once more to creamy mirth, did not, it appeared, destroy her. Her hand waved; gears clashed; the tires spurned the asphalt. Millard Brett, staring at the swift departure of the red spark of taillight, managed slowly to unclench his hands.

HE MADE his way to a slatted bench in the little island of park which split the traffic of the avenue, and here, slapping at mosquitoes, he doggedly remained until the church clock tolled out the hour of 10. Then he went home.

In his room he decided recklessly not to wind the alarm clock. He didn't care, he told himself, what time he happened to get to work in the morning.

That unblemished record of six years without once being late now revealed itself as part and parcel of his comic simplicity. He'd actually been proud of it; Sherwood Rutter might have been reading his thoughts when he made that crack about being early to bed and early to rise.

All along Millard Brett had been sucker enough to believe, deep in his poor fish's heart, that a fellow who kept his nose glued against the grindstone, who punched the time-clock right on the button, year in and out, who went out of his way to hunt for extra work, might eventually get to the top of the ladder. He'd even managed to kid himself into thinking that such a man might some day conquer the regard of a girl like Edwina Mellish!

"BANANA oil!" said Millard to his thumped pillow. The phrase left a pleasing mordant flavor on his lips; impenitent and unenlightened suckers wouldn't think of using it.

Edwina was, in Sherwood Rutter's clever idiom, out. Shutting his teeth upon this resolution Millard Brett tried not to tolerate the fatuous lump that swelled up in his throat. Cynically, now, he reminded himself of the regularity with which Edwina had permitted him to fetch and carry for her; like everybody else, she'd played him, he decided, for an easy mark.

Only last week, when that cousin of hers had come down from Painted Post to spend the week-end, hadn't it been Millard Brett who'd been assigned to escort her, giggles and spectacles and buck-teeth and all, to the dance at the pavilion?

"Never again," swore Millard Brett.

He contemplated a pleasing mental movie of not waiting to be fired, of walking into Byron W. Mellish's private office and telling him insouciantly just where he could go with his old job. A man with $1206 in the savings bank didn't have to worry about being attached to a pay roll; even Jim Varnum had been playing the market with his college pocket-money and cleaning up right along.

"Sorry I won't have time to see Edwina before I go, B. W."—yes, he'd call him B. W., just like that—"say good-by to her for me, will you?"

He drifted into unconsciousness on a cheering fancy of driving back sometime in a contemptuous car and dropping in for a careless half-hour to let Edwina see what she'd missed. Aunt Hattie's voice broke in upon it; the room was filled with a new, brazen day.

"Fillmore! Fillmore! It's a quarter to eight!"

HABIT betrayed him. He was gasping in the bathtub before he remembered that there wasn't any hurry. He might as well stay up, he decided—he couldn't go back to sleep now, even if Aunt Hattie could be bullied into letting him. He dressed, however, without undue haste, and came down to breakfast almost as deliberately as if he had been Sherwood Rutter himself.

Then he departed, under Aunt Hattie's fond urgency, on the dot of his fixed schedule, and reached the office on the stroke of nine.

Routine stretched out ruthless hands to seize him. The mail was on his desk; his telephone buzzed as he pulled back his chair; McMurtree demanded instructions as to three cases of dubious credit; Miss Perley sought permission to consult her dentist.

With these several matters Millard Brett dealt summarily, an eye upon the open door of Byron W. Mellish's private office. He was in the midst of the mail when the telephone hummed again.

"Brett? Mellish speaking. Say, Brett, you'll have to handle things today. I'm going over to Darnell."

Opening his mouth to ask B. W. Mellish if he thought he could keep on hiring for $35 a week a man to whom, when its owner chose to waste a day at golf, the management of the business could thus casually be entrusted, Millard Brett listened to the voice of his ancient habit, saying supinely:

"Yes, sir."

It was almost one when intuition warned him that Edwina Mellish stood behind him. Somehow he invariably knew when she came into the office; there would come upon him, before he looked around, a curious paralysis of tongue and throat, an unrhythmic bumping of heart and diaphragm, a stupid unsteadiness of wrist.

Doggedly, now, he opposed these evidences of artlessness, bending over the expense account. Not until Edwina actually compelled it by twitching the document aside did he lift his head.

"Hello, there," said Edwina. She contrived to speak as if she privately considered this a rather clever style of greeting, and Millard Brett was obliged to chide himself for a stupid inclination to agree with her.

Allowing an uneasy grin to answer her he tried to survey her with the aloof and sophisticated eye of a Sherwood Rutter, to think of her, in Rutter's negligently-approving phrase, as a pretty sweet dish—for Binchester; but the effort fell a little short of success. He was aware, indeed, of a dull glow of anger toward Rutter for having thus described her. Even in New York, he felt, Edwina should be a sweet dish; his ears prickled at their edges under her merry gaze and he withdrew the words. It didn't seem just the right way to think about her, somehow. It wasn't—with Edwina looking at him he found the word less ridiculous than it should have been—it wasn't quite respectful.

"How about," demanded Edwina, "lunch?"

Aha! Triumphantly the enlightened half of Millard Brett's split-personality jeered at this innocence. He might have expected this.

YESTERDAY Millard Brett's feet would have tangled in the eagerness of his assent; today he was able, with a valiant effort, to make a decent show of resistance. "Can't." He pushed the word past the silly tightness of his throat. "Got to stick on the job. Your father's away, and"——

"And the place'll blow away if you don't sit on it!" jeered Edwina warmly. "Apple sauce!"

He perceived that he had invited this. It had been the excuse, not of a young man acquainted with his brussels sprouts, but of a Millard Brett. Even Sherwood Rutter might have been deceived by the generous impatience of Edwina's dissent.

"Besides," said Edwina, "you've got to buy my lunch for me. I'm flat."

Aha! Again the awakened and worldwise fraction of Millard Brett cried out in triumph. Here, at last, was the bug under the chip!

"All right," his fatuous mouth was saying. His witless hand outstretched itself eagerly to last summer's hat. Beside Edwina in the pudgy little car he gave ear to a blithe account of last evening's escapade.

Sherwood Rutter had been marvelous; he just destroyed Edwina; Millard Brett would have simply died if he could have heard Rutter jollying that traffic cop who stopped him, driving the car home from the country club, and demanded to see his license.

Wistfully Millard Brett gazed forward to a day when he would emerge victorious from such a clash of wits, when he wouldn't be such a stupe as to be afraid of policemen and traffic laws.

He fingered the money in his pocket uneasily as he followed Edwina into the Yellow Teapot. It would be just like him to come all the way out here without enough on him to square the check, and he wouldn't be able, he knew, to talk his way out of such a jam, like Sherwood Rutter.

"I JUST want a lettuce sandwich and some iced tea," said Edwina. Consulting the figures on the typewritten menu, Millard Brett breathed again. It would cost more, at that, than the regular business-man's lunch at the Majestic, but he realized that his comparison of values marked him as still a piking small-towner. Sherwood Rutter wouldn't even have looked at those figures.

"Sher said to tell you he was sorry he didn't have more of a chance to see you," said Edwina. "He had to catch the midnight back to New York."

"I'll be seeing him pretty soon," said Brett. The widening of Edwina's eyes gave him a gloomy satisfaction. He'd made her sit up, anyway.

"What are you going to New York for?" she demanded, as if he'd spoken of New Zealand, as if he hadn't any right to go where he pleased, and when.

"Had about all I can stand of this one-horse town," he said. He couldn't help feeling dimly guilty, thus describing what was, after

Pop Hart, Samoan Pig Painter, Is Home Again

Globe-Trotting Artist, Who Has Visited Most of World, Returns to See New Jersey.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

NEW YORK.

POP HART, globe-trotting artist, whose studio is out of doors, returned to New York the other day from the Balearic Islands. After spending most of the last 25 years in foreign travel—he has been in all the countries of the world except China, Japan and India—he got the idea he would like to see New Jersey. So he has come home and bought a flivver in which to explore the other side of the river.

Strangely enough, this man who refuses to stay put but must always be on the go to new scenes was trained to be a maker of glue. Born in Cairo, Illinois, in 1868, he was the son of a glue maker, who planned for the boy to follow in his footsteps. After giving the lad what he considered sufficient education, the elder Hart handed him a pair of overalls and ladle and directed him to the glue pots.

Whereupon young Hart—George O., he was christened—ran away from home. And he has managed to keep on the move most of the time since.

HIS tours have not been de luxe affairs. It is only in recent years that he has had money for traveling. Before that he made his living en route, sometimes by painting signs. Once he managed to induce a steamship company to pay his passage to Samoa and give him a small monthly allowance for making drawings of the island and sending them stories about its climate, etc.

Hart arrived on the island one day, happy, confident, feeling a strong desire to "become a part of the place," but broke. He visited the local sign painter and engaged himself at $2 a day. Shortly Pop requested an increase in pay. It was not forthcoming. So Pop went into the sign-painting business on his own. He had just enough to buy tackle and he formed a partnership with a photographer for office space. He went to a pig-feed maker and offered to paint for him the fattest, healthiest pigs on the side of the widest, tallest building in Samoa for one-half of any hitherto known rate. The pig-feed maker agreed. The pigs, blue and green and yellow, are still eating feed on the side of the Samoan building, Pop believes.

He's left his work all over the world.

Of course, things are easier nowadays, with his water colors bringing in real money. But he knows what it is like to be broke in a strange land. Once he found himself in that condition in England, at a time when he wanted to come home. He worked his passage on a horse boat.

He stowed away and when they called the roll of seamen before sailing time Pop overheard the first mate call one name twice, and quick as a flash Pop appeared from his hiding and answered to the strange name. He was signed on as a regular seaman.

HART likes people—their faces and their hands and their feet. You can see it in his work. He particularly likes the feet and hands of Mexicans, whom he calls the most primitive people on earth today.

He doesn't speak any language but English, has utter contempt for the language of any foreign country he happens to be living in. In a restaurant on the Boulevard Saint Germain one day last summer an acquaintance overheard Pop pointing furiously to his menu and exclaiming: "Poison—blank! Poison. Blank!" Finally the waiter brought him his white fish and Pop relapsed into sullen silence.

The wandering artist has avoided matrimony. But he had a narrow escape in Mexico. The girl was named Juanita. This is the way he tells it:

"She was only 16 years old. I was actually going to marry her—not like Fatima or Saadi or Jimina, who were only models. But then one day Juanita posed for me, the head, you know, and then after drawing her some I got to speculating and that night I left Tehuantepec and Juanita.

"That was the nearest I ever came to getting married. I learned a lesson."

Now he's back in his native land—for the time being. One of the first things he did after landing was to go to a restaurant and order a dish of spinach. A queer fellow, this.

Just a Believer

all the fastest-growing city between Buffalo and Binghampton. "Made up my mind to get out of it."

"Don't be silly!" said Edwina. She spoke sharply. She wasn't often angry; it made her, Millard Brett decided, a little prettier than she was in her normal humor. "You ought to know better than to talk like that!"

"What's silly about it?" he asked defiantly. "Why shouldn't I"——

"It's just silly, that's all!" She spoke with finality.

"Why is it?"

"Because you—because it just is, that's all!"

"I suppose it was silly for Sher Rutter to do it, too?"

"OH, SHER!" She waved her hand as if to indicate the utter irrelevance of the suggestion. "It was all very well for him, maybe, but you—why, I never heard of anything so perfectly fantastic!"

"All right. Maybe it's fantastic, but it's what's going to happen, all the same."

He saw that at last he'd convinced her. She regarded him with round eyes, in which there was no longer any disbelief.

"When are you going?"

Yesterday, if she had looked and spoken like this, Millard Brett's believing simplicity would have imagined that she was sorry, really sorry, deep down, the way Millard Brett himself was sorry about things. Even today, for an instant, he was almost persuaded to think——

"I don't know. Pretty soon." He tried not to sound too solemn about it; Sherwood Rutter wouldn't have dealt with such a matter except in a key of becoming flippancy.

"Is—is there anything wrong at the office?" Still he was obliged to resist a crazy notion that she was going to cry. "You haven't been scrapping with father, have you? Because, if that's all"——

He shook his head. "Everything is jake there." Rutter had stopped saying that, he remembered; it was now oke or hokay.

She continued to contemplate him with that queer look of puzzled searching in her eyes. Suddenly they went soft and bright and merry again. She put her hand gently on his.

"Don't go, Mil. I don't want you to."

Endeavoring to maintain, under this elementary form of apple sauce, the proper attitude of genial sophistication, Millard Brett was unequal to the test. He knew, of course, that Edwina, if she missed him at all, would regret only the loss of somebody who could be depended on to look out for buck-tooth cousins from Painted Post, to furnish, when nobody more amusing was available, iced tea and lettuce sandwiches.

All this, as certainly as if he had been Sherwood Rutter himself, he knew. The trouble was that he didn't believe a bit of it.

He could actually kid himself into thinking that she'd brought him all the way out here to the Yellow Teapot because it meant a four-mile drive in wholesome air, air that wouldn't do a man any harm after four hours' prison in a sticky office!

OPENING his lips to utter some gay, skeptical repartee, Millard Brett could only say, in a froggy croak:

"Honest?"

"Cross my heart!" Edwina's voice was as frivolous as ever, but he knew that he was going to believe her, just the same.

"Well, then, I guess I'd better be getting back on the job."

Edwina, also rising, emitted her bubbly laugh, as if he had said something funny, but Millard Brett knew, of course, that she was laughing, not at the speech, but at him, at the comic squirrel who could be coaxed back into his wire-wheeled cage without even a peanut.

This, however, proved not quite accurate. Bumping over the cobbles of River street toward the triumphant face of the office, Edwina inquired whether, tonight, he was doing anything, and being assured, superfluously, that he was not, proposed the Country Club and a bit of dancing.

"And you'd better come to dinner, too," she directed, without waiting for assent.

He was, he perceived, to have the peanut. At the back of his mind he was cynically aware that these rewards were bestowed upon him only to make sure of future docility—a needless precaution on Edwina's part.

"I'll be there," he said, happy persiflage, for once, coming unbidden to his tongue, "with my hair in a braid!"

Four years. Millard Brett ticked them off on mental fingers. Four years since he'd seen Sherwood Rutter, that night when he'd stood dumbly and listened to Rutter jollying him about high stools and early rising. For Millard Brett four Binchester years, years of days like coral polyps, piling up their little skeletons, generation after generation, to build an inch of reef. Four years that had only widened the difference between Millard Brett and Rutter.

UNDER Rutter's affable raillery Millard Brett was as mutely contemptible as ever. Rutter's eye even inspired in him a miserable distrust of his brand-new blue-serge suit.

After four years it needed only Sherwood Rutter's amused glance to make Millard Brett perceive that the yellow ribbon pinned to his left lapel was not a slightly vainglorious token of membership in the Reception Committee but a confession, comically naive, that his presence here on the boardwalk owed itself to sordid and ridiculous business causes.

Four years!

His eye uneasily evaded Rutter's, fixing itself instead on the gayly-striped tie, such a tie as, even on this epic journey to Atlantic City, Millard Brett could not have dared to wear.

"Well, well, well," said Rutter jovially. "Will you look who's here—himself! With a badge and everything." He inspected the yellow ribbon with affected reverence. "Reception Committee. What do you know about that? What does E. A. A. I. M. & D. stand for?"

Reluctantly Millard Brett mumbled the demeaning admission. There was, he perceived, something funny about the Eastern Association of Agricultural Implement Manufacturers and Dealers which, till this instant, had been invisible to him.

"Down here for the convention," he said, as if Sherwood Rutter might otherwise have thought him capable of embarking, purely for pleasure, upon such an excursion. It was at this moment that his lowered eye detected, just at the inner margin of the knot of that striped tie, a slightly threadbare area.

"Well, well, well!" boomed Rutter. "Another local boy makes good, and I don't mean peradventure! What did I tell you, Mil? Didn't I always say that if you kept the old beak against the grindstone you'd get somewhere? And now just give yourself a look, will you? Not a gray hair and a delegate to the—the E. A. A. I. M. & D.!"

HIS palm administered a solemn accolade. "And you're going to climb to dizzier heights yet, Mil. I can read it just like print in the way you look! Yes, sir! One of these days, if you keep it up, you'll get a piece of the plow works for your very own and"——

Millard Brett suddenly stopped feeling uncomfortable. Perhaps it was because of that threadbare place in Rutter's tie; perhaps it was because, at this moment, Edwina emerged from the auction room where she had been reducing an eloquent Armenian to the brink of tears.

And perhaps it was because with Edwina's hand possessively within his elbow, not even Millard Brett could keep on being uncomfortable.

"Go right ahead, Sher," said Edwina, on top of the little, bubbly laugh. "Speak the rest of the piece and tell him he's going to marry me, will you? I can't seem to make him believe that he's done it!"

All Alone, London Stenographer Flies 11,000 Miles in 19 Days

pressed it, when at last she sighted the planes from Port Darwin coming out to sea to meet her and conduct her in. Even if she hadn't beaten or even approached Captain Hinkler's time of 15 1-2 days, she felt lucky to be there at all, she said, what with all those storms and fogs and accidents.

Since Miss Johnson's prodigious air voyage, admirers have been trying to find in the Johnson family some hereditary love of adventure that would explain the fire which drove her to accomplish such a feat. They have found it, too, in a vague sort of way. It is said she is of Danish descent; that her grandfather was one Andreis Jorgensen, who ran away to sea at [illegible] and finally settled in Hull, where he anglicized his name to Johnson and went into the fish business. Her father, John W. Johnson, exhibited his flair for adventure by joining the Klondike gold rush in 1898. He then returned to Hull, carried on the fish business and brought up a family of three daughters—Amy, Molly and Betty. Amy is now 26, Molly [illegible] and Betty 10.

AMY went to Sheffield University in 1922 and stayed three years. She intended to teach school, but changed her mind and came to London in 1925 to obtain employment as a secretary and typist. Until she took off for Australia she continued to work in an office during office hours while devoting early mornings and evenings to the study of aviation. It isn't quite clear now when Amy was seized with the yearning to sail among the clouds, but it is a matter of record that she took her first flight as a pupil on September 15, 1928, less than two years ago.

Captain F. R. Matthews, flying instructor of the London Aeroplane Club, says of that incident:

"I remember her visit well. She was a simple, unassuming girl who walked in and asked quietly if she could learn how to fly. She impressed me as a girl who, once she had set her mind upon a purpose, would carry it through to the end. I knew after two hours of instruction that she would fly. As a rule, there are just two kinds of flyers—those who succeed in learning how to fly and those who can't be prevented from learning. She was of this latter type. The days which followed were spent in control instruction. All this time she was working in an office, and she used to come to the club whenever she had a spare hour or so. Learning to fly was really a spare-time job with her."

BUT flying is a luxury, and Amy was not blessed with wealth. She had to finance her training by rigorous economy. First, she had to pay membership fees in the club and then she had to pay £1 every two weeks for a half-hour's flying lesson. She gave up tennis, swimming and dancing and made over her old clothes in order to do that. At that time she didn't know what she was going to do with her flying after she learned it. She had only the urge and an idea that she could carve out some kind of a flying career—maybe as an airplane saleswoman or as a professional pilot. The thing to do now was to learn all she could about airplanes. She would have to know more than merely how to handle the controls of a ship. She wanted to know the theory of flying, what makes a plane stay in the air, how to overhaul a motor, how to make repairs. So she went to C. S. Humphreys, the chief ground engineer of the club.

Humphreys, it is said now, is probably more responsible than anyone else for her steady reliability and her mechanical skill which made it possible for her to fly alone to Australia. He made an engineer of her, an expert mechanic, the first woman ground engineer in England.

"When that girl first came to Staglane," he said recently, "I knew I'd got a born engineer to deal with. Sensed it, somehow. It goes against the grain with me usually to teach engineering to a woman—we don't like them coming into it, you know—but I think I felt from the start she would be different. It bothered me at first as to how to treat her. Women can be so irritatingly helpless about machinery. But not Miss Johnson.

"She came in like one of the boys. She did every blessed thing for herself, and never got out of any work because she was a girl. We called her Johnny. She used to come in from 6 to 9 in the morning, go to work at her office at 9 and then come back to us at 5 in the afternoon. She'd stay from 5 on until sometimes 11 or 12 at night. She'd never had her hands grimy or her face oily in her life. She had never known what it was to wear greasy overalls and get her nails broken in an engine. But I taught her.

"She never complained. She broke her nails with the rest of us and for nine months did nothing but pull down engines, decarbonize them, build them up and take them out to test. Then she learned the carburetor, how to fit new jets, how to strip and rebuild a magneto and do all running repairs. From there she went on to the body of the airplane. One day she'd take a tail off and recondition it. Then a wing. She learned to do everything for herself.

"She is a strong girl, but we made her tough. She often used to take a turn with the gloves and get knocked about all over the hangar. She didn't complain about that, either. You can tell by her flight what she must be like physically. One must have tremendous physical endurance to make a flight like that. You not only have to pilot the machine and read the maps, but you also have to be continually pumping petrol from the supply tank to the feed tanks. After three and a half hours of flying, pumping begins. You have to make 3000 strokes with the right arm to pump 50 gallons into the feed tanks. And when you've flown nine hours or so you have to spend half the night overhauling the machine. You're lucky if you get an average of three hours' sleep."

HAVING gained her private pilot's license on June 26, 1929, and her license as a ground engineer shortly afterward, Amy Johnson came then to the most discouraging obstacle of all. It was worse than breaking her nails on a motor. Nobody would take her seriously as a flyer. Nobody wanted a girl pilot. She began to see that prospective airplane buyers would not want to be taken for trial flights by a mere woman. It made her bitter to see herself and women in general excluded from an occupation not because of incompetency but because they were women. Out of this bitterness grew her determination to have it over with once and for all by proving herself on a long and difficult flight. She picked the Australian flight as one that would answer all specifications as to length and danger and difficulty.

Only Matthews and Humphreys were taken into her confidence at first. She sought their advice and talked the matter over in detail. When all three decided the thing could be done, she went home and held council with her family. The first thing to buy was an airplane, and her father was elected as the one to buy it. She knew the very machine she wanted. It was a 2-year-old De Haviland Gypsy Moth, owned by Captain W. L. Hope, who had already done 35,000 miles in it on all sorts of jobs, ranging from racing to carrying newspapers. It had a speed of only 85 miles an hour and a cruising range of 1400, but it was the craft she wanted. It would cost $3000, and she would need other financial backing, too.

Her father opposed the plan at first, and she appealed to Lord Wakefield, head of a great oil firm. He tried to dissuade her and she went to the Australian High Commissioner, Sir Granville Ryrie, who told her a story about the Indian who tried to stop an express train on the prairie.

"Everybody admired his courage," said Sir Granville, "but not his judgment." Next she tried Sir Sefton Brancker, chief of the Civilian Aviation Ministry, who sent her back to Lord Wakefield with such a recommendation that Lord Wakefield finally agreed to guarantee her gasoline supplies.

THERE was nothing much left to do then but try the newspaper offices, and Amy Johnson tried them. When they refused she went back with a last appeal to her father and Lord Wakefield. The details have not yet been learned, but somehow Amy put her proposition across. Together they bought her the plane she wanted and provided her with enough money for the trip. The rest is history.

The prospects are that Amy Johnson won't be short of cash backing when she wants to fly back to England, as she intends to do in the fall, or when she wants to fly anywhere else, for that matter. Publishers are clamoring for a book and newspapers and magazines are begging her for her story. The Daily Mail, which turned her down on her plea before the flight, has now cabled her a prize of $50,000, which, it explained, was "the largest amount ever paid to a woman for a feat of daring."

sorority will transfer their national charters to locals at Knox.

The campus which Lombard is vacating contains more than 13 acres. On it are Old Main, a science hall, a women's dormitory, a gymnasium, a music building, faculty and fraternity houses and an athletic field. It abounds in trees. One of these is the famous Lombard elm, said to have the second largest spread of any elm in the United States, and a member of the Society of Famous Trees of the American Tree Association. It was planted in 1868 by the senior class of that year as a memorial to the Lombard alumni who fought in the Civil War. Two years ago its lowest branches were found to have a spread of 158 feet.

THE Knox campus, also, is a place of trees. Knox, too, has its Old Main, in addition to a science hall, library, men's dormitory and women's dormitory, chapel and so forth. Knox, furthermore, has an endowment of nearly $2,000,000. In the centenary campaign now under way, it has undertaken to raise an additional $5,000,000 by 1937, when the school will be 100 years old. With the new funds it expects to increase its endowment, add to its buildings and equipment and create additional scholarships.

Knox had 520 students last semester and expects 50 or more transfers next fall from Lombard, which closed its career with an enrollment of 280. Applications from prospective freshmen indicate that Knox will start the next scholastic year with a registration close to 650, which is about as large a student body as it can accommodate. It is not the purpose of the centenary campaign to provide for many more students, but to improve the facilities for education.

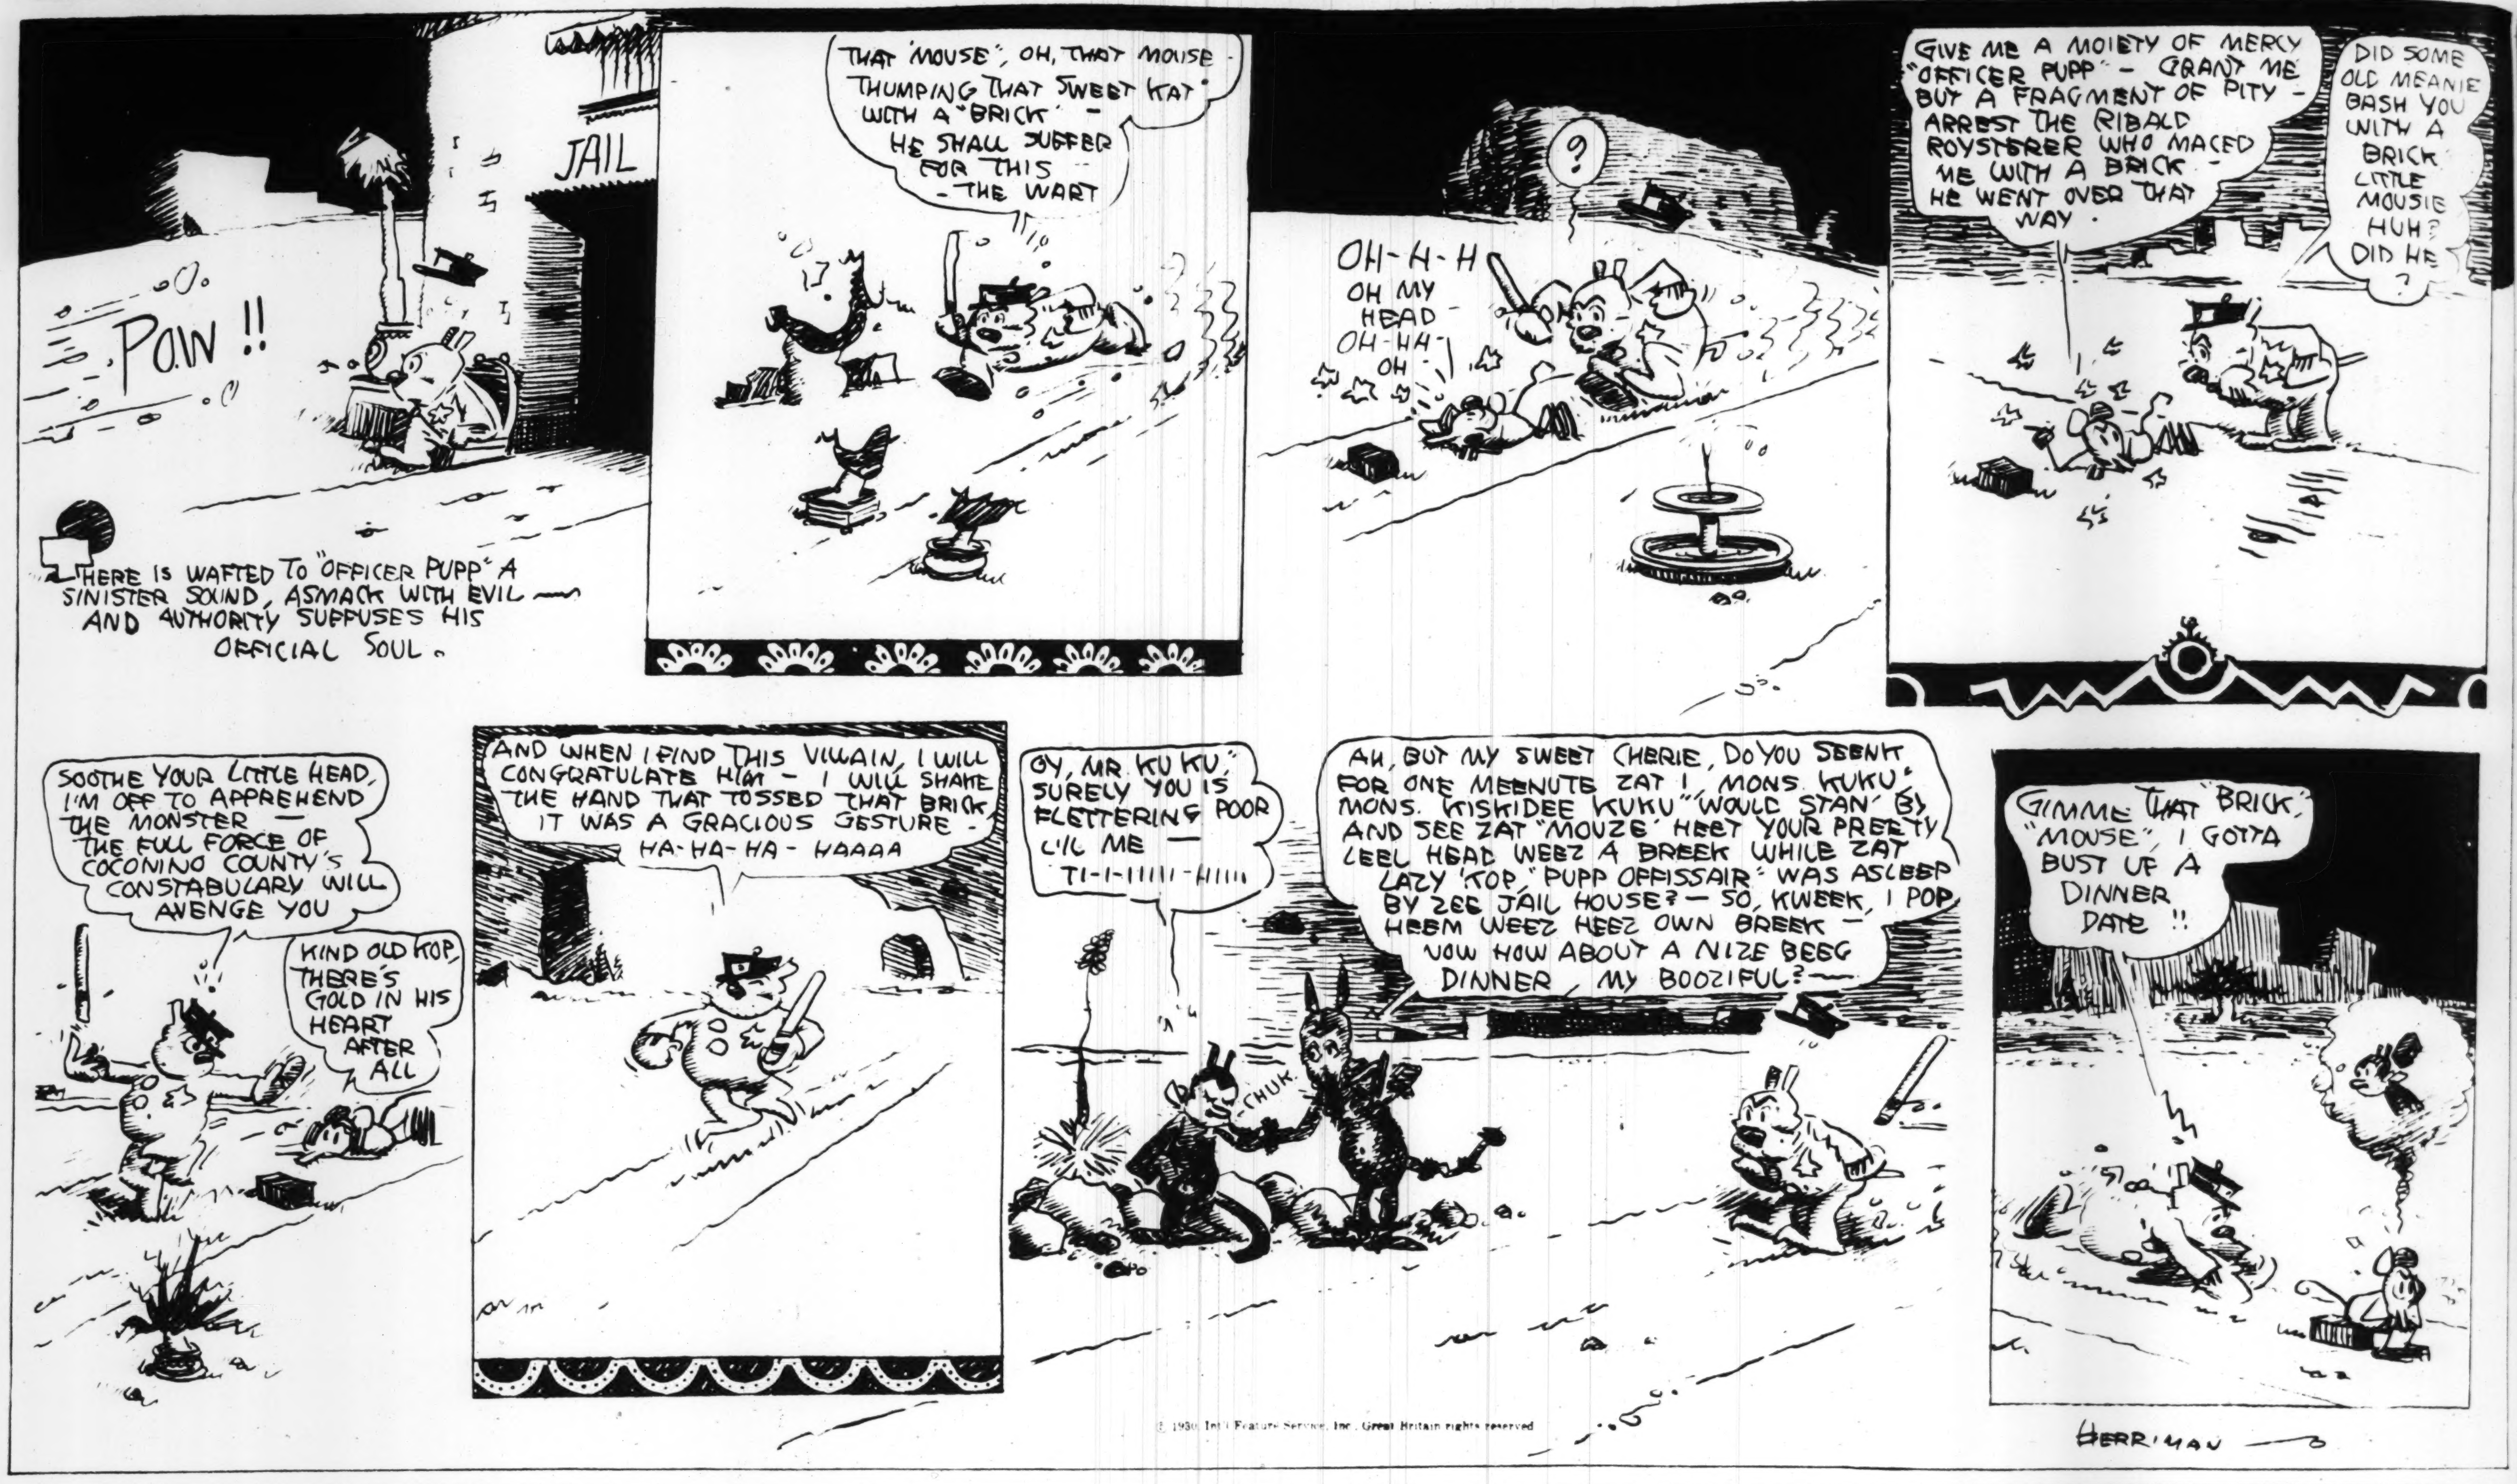
The Lombard records will be transferred to Knox July 1. Since they include the alumni records, it is the understanding that Lombard alumni thus will become at least stepchildren of Knox, and, presumably, will be among those solicited in the centenary campaign.

When Lombard held its final commencement exercises, June 3, a large crowd of alumni and friends gathered to watch 35 young men and women receive the last diplomas the college would issue. The bell in Old Main tolled 79 times. The Lombard hymn was sung. And quantities of tears were shed.

OVER at Knox that day they were holding final examinations. Executive offices were busy with plans for next year, including arrangements to convert Lombard students into loyal sons and daughters of good old Siwash. There seemed to be a general disposition to give these former foes a sincere welcome to their new alma mater. Knox students were talking a good deal about it. All but the seniors. They seemed to be thinking principally about ways and means of turning a classical education into cash.

KRAZY KAT

By HERRIMAN



There is wafted to "Officer Pupp" a sinister sound, asmack with evil — and authority suffuses his official soul.

THE ALL-TALKING CRIME WAVE

Results of More and Better Murders in the Movies.

THERE has been an important development lately in the mystery thrillers. They were formerly based on a single murder, but the producers began to view this as small-time stuff and decided to turn them out with more and better murders. It was quite easy to make the change, as any number of people can be killed off with the same overhead and all of the crimes can be solved with one solution. Hence the advent of the all-groaning production, featuring not one corpse but a whole shoal of them.

The dialogue in the typical murder mystery now runs along something like this:

"YEE-OW!"

"Crash!"

"O-h-h! . . . O-h-h! . . . Ugh!"

"YEE-OW!"

"Crash!"

"Ooof! . . . Oof! . . . Ugh!"

"Ye gods, that makes six. Who'll be the next, I wonder?"

"Bang! Bang! Bang!"

"Ooof!"

These pictures are affecting the nerves of imaginative people, especially those who shiver through two and three a week. After viewing, in rapid succession, such films as "Who Wiped Out the Poindexter Family?" "Who Assassinated the Board of Aldermen?" and "Who Massacred the Clendenning House Party?" the susceptible man will go around under the impression that eyes are peering at him, that long, skinny fingers are about to encompass his throat and that somebody is waiting for an opportunity to puncture his cigar pocket with a dart from a blow-gun. However, he has learned to cope with any and all tough situations, and this knowledge is reflected in his daily life as follows:

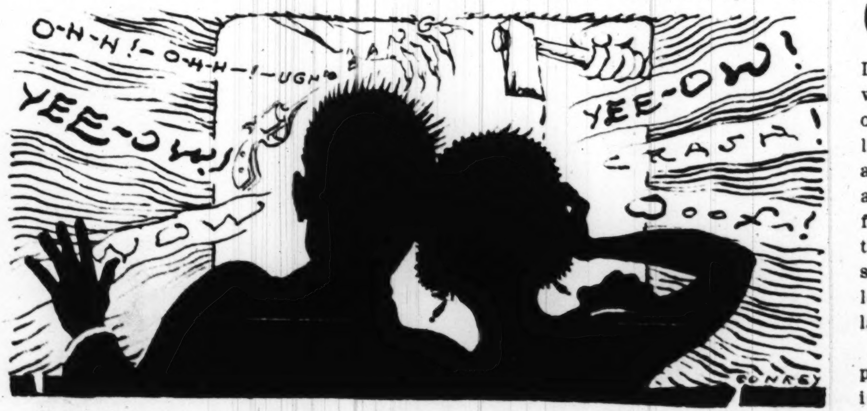
ENTERING the Home: Shuts door behind and stands with his back against it and his arms outstretched. Listens intently. Tiptoes to window, draws curtains aside and cautiously looks out. If no Chinamen with stilettos in their mouths are lurking on the porch, he removes his hat and goes upstairs to shave.

Answering the Doorbell: Looks up from newspaper with violent start and gazes quizzically at various members of household. Hesitates a moment, then gets up and resolutely approaches door. Peers through peep-hole in curtain. Throws door open and admits caller, if it is a friend, a neighbor or a delivery boy. Refuses to open door if a Hindoo is standing out there with a basket containing a cobra.

Using the Telephone: First ascertains whether or not the wire has been cut. Gives operator number, then strains ears to determine whether anybody is trying to listen in on conversation. Looks around from time to time to make sure that no grinning wretch is holding a pistol against the small of his back.

Answering the Telephone: Glances fearfully from instrument to wife and back again. Gulps. Moistens lips with tongue. Rises, throws out chest, squares shoulders and stalks over to instrument. Starts to pick it up, but hesitates and places tip of thumb against upper set of teeth. Looks at wife for encouragement. Steels self, picks up telephone, murmurs "Hello" and crouches forward intently to receive message.

Leaving the Home: Embraces wife, kisses children one by one and places them aside. Stands with left hand on doorknob telling wife what he would like for dinner. Pulls door open, throws left arm aloft, takes deep breath and sidles out sideways. Looks hurriedly up and down street, sneaks around house, gets car out of garage and drives away. Keeps eyes glued on mirror to make sure that no curtained taxicabs are following him.



O-H-H!-O-H-H-!-UGH-BANG
YEE-OW!
WOW
YEE-OW!
CRASH!
OOOF!
CONREY

Mystery pictures are affecting the nerves of imaginative people, especially those who shiver through two or three a week.

Entering the Office: Walks out of elevator, looks up and down corridor, steps into office and shuts door softly. Listens. If no footsteps are heard removes hat and coat and asks stenographer whether there is any word. Is secretly apprehensive lest any veiled women have been dropping in.

OPENING Personal Mail: Turns envelope over, examines it carefully, purses lips and thinks. Looks around to see if anybody is watching. Crosses over to corner of room, holds envelope up to light, tears it open, again looks around and extracts message. If it is a circular, he crushes it and lets it fall to the floor. If it is a letter written in code or in a strange language, such as Arabian, he puts it in his wallet with the intention of consulting his lawyer about it.

Looking at Wife's Photo: Holds picture with both hands and regards it earnestly. Reflects that wife has exceeded her allowance during the past three weeks. Wonders whether she belonged to an underworld gang before he knew her and whether these fellows are bribing her. This would account for the extra money. Decides to ask her point-blank when he gets home that evening—if he gets there safely.

Receiving Callers: Carefully shuts door behind visitor and draws chair up to desk. Lights cigar and watches visitor shrewdly out of corner of eye. Undulates eyebrows as signal for stenographer to leave room. (If stenographer knows her talkies, she will spy through the keyhole and be ready to kick over the telephone and scream in the event that the caller throws a burlap bag over the boss' head and carries him down the fire escape.)

Ejecting Salesmen: Stares fiercely at salesman without answering question whether he would be interested in Sum-Totl adding machine. Slowly pulls open center drawer of desk. (All business men in the talkies keep revolvers in this drawer.) Stealthily reaches in as if to grasp weapon's handle. Salesman's eyes widen with terror and he springs to his feet and gallops out of the office in high.

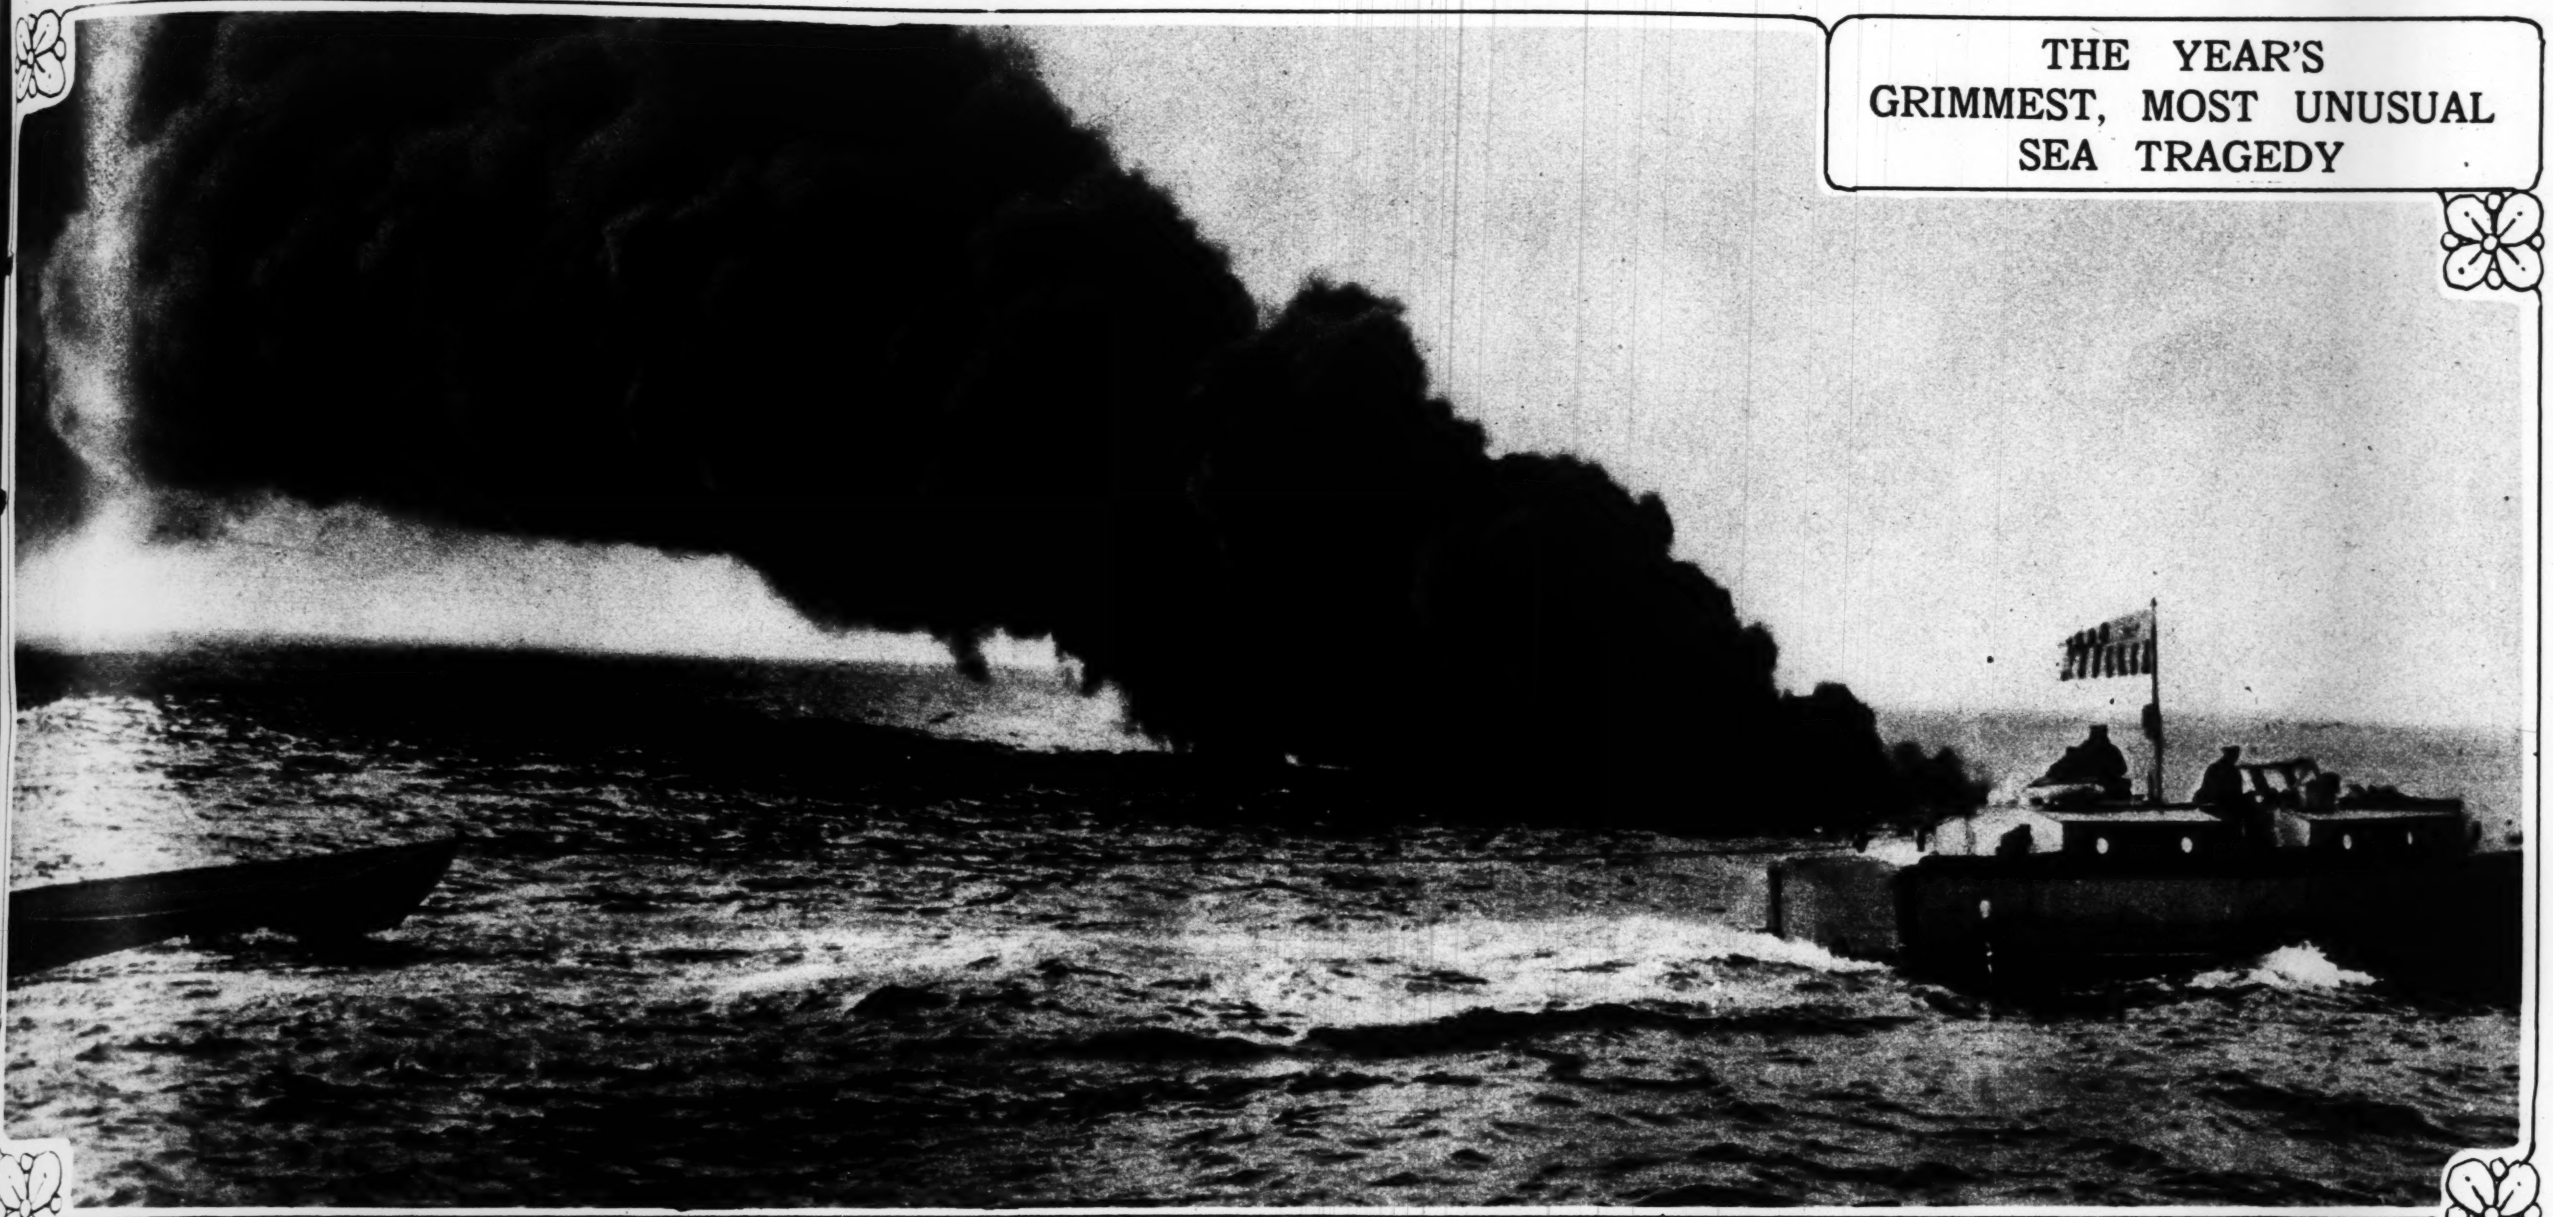
THE YEAR'S GRIMMEST, MOST UNUSUAL SEA TRAGEDY



In the collision during the night between the passenger steamer Fairfax and an oil tanker, in Massachusetts Bay, a spark ignited the oil, causing an explosion which sent a shower of liquid fire over the steamer. In the blaze and panic which ensued, and because of the quick sinking of the tanker, 47 lives were lost. Those who jumped into the sea landed in a lake of fire which kept burning, as the photograph above shows, many hours after the disaster.

THE ALL-IMPORTANT

Preferred by Paris, . . . London, . . . New York .

The woman who thinks all permanent waves are alike is due for a gratifying surprise . . . The Eugène Method is gentle, safe, natural. Its perfect waves are close to the scalp, and the hair is left in flawless condition . . . Paris and London will have no other! . . . . The great Eugène contribution to permanent waving—the feature that makes a Eugène wave worth many times its slightly higher cost—is the ingenious Eugène Sachet with its patented perforated steam tab . . . . . .

EUGÈNE SACHET

These sachets give the operator the hitherto unattainable ability to control the steam in intensity, direction and area.

Be very sure your hairdresser uses genuine Eugène Sachets. You'll recognize them by the Eugène Trade Mark on each one.

Write for "The Eugène Beauty Book," and a specimen of the Eugène Sachet.

NEW BEAUTY for EVERY WOMAN

No matter what type of skin you possess—dry, normal or oily—here is face powder, blended in three special textures, to match your type.

If your skin is dry—Plough's "Favorite Bouquet" will delight you with its extremely light and fluffy texture.

If your skin is normal, Plough's "Exquisite", medium texture, will cling for hours and enhance your complexion beauty.

If your skin is oily—Plough's "Incense of Flowers", heavy texture, will adhere smoothly and lend radiant, new beauty to your skin.

Each texture is appealingly perfumed and available in five modern tints. Sensibly priced—30c, 50c and 75c at all dealers.

Stubborn skin troubles yield to yeast

SAYS SPAIN'S FOREMOST SKIN SPECIALIST

MORE than a hundred important medical articles and books have come from the pen of Dr. Jose San[illegible]z-Covisa, Honorary President of the [illegible] of Dermatology of Spain! He says:

"Skin diseases which before were treated locally are today treated from within, with quicker and more successful results.

"Pimples and boils are nearly always accompanied by constipation. Fresh yeast diminishes intestinal putrefaction and is of great aid in treating rebellious cases of these skin affections.

"When 'irradiated', yeast contains the 'sunshine' vitamin D, which has an extraordinary action in hardening bones and teeth."

For the health that brings true beauty eat 3 cakes daily of Fleischmann's Yeast. Each cake is rich in two indispensable vitamins—B and D. At grocers', restaurants, soda fountains. Directions on the label.

Leading Skin Doctors recommend Yeast:

DR. E. BRUUSGAARD, most famous skin specialist in Norway, says, "I have used fresh yeast for years."

DR. ALFRED BRANDWEINER, dermatologist of Vienna's largest free hospital, says, "Fresh yeast will keep the intestinal tract free of the poisons which upset digestion and cloud the skin."

DR. EDVARD EHLERS, internationally known Copenhagen skin specialist, says, "I invariably rely on yeast in all cases of rebellious acne, and for boils, in which its effect is astonishing. It should be continued until all poisons are eliminated from the system."

"My physician advised me to eat Fleischmann's Yeast"

(At left, above) "Busy days at school and nights at study wore me out completely," writes MISS ODETTE WILLARD of Montreal. "I was suffering from acne and nervousness. An eminent doctor here advised Fleischmann's Yeast and I ate it three or four times a day. The acne disappeared. Now I am perfectly well."

(Right) "An automobile accident left me in a very nervous condition," writes MISS VIRGINIA MATHEWS of Philadelphia. "My skin was horribly broken out . . . Soon after starting to eat yeast, a noticeable improvement took place. I slept better. My appetite came back and my skin cleared beautifully. I am delighted with how well I feel."

Fleischmann's Yeast (with the familiar yellow label) is the only yeast that contains "sunshine vitamin."

WILL YOU KINDLY HANG UP MY HAT FOR ME, JO? DID YOU HEAR ME DRAGGING MYSELF UPSTAIRS ONE AT A TIME? I'M SO WEAK THAT I FEEL AS THOUGH I'D NEED HELP TO FALL OVER.
HEAVENLY DAYS, WHAT'S WRONG?
WELL, TO MAKE A LONG STORY SHORT, I'M COOKED. FOR MONTHS I'VE BEEN JUST A SHELL. THE ONLY THING THAT KEPT ME ON MY FEET WAS STRONG WILL POWER.
HA! YOU'VE GOT THE HEALTH BUG AGAIN, EH?
NO SIR, I JUST HAPPENED TO MEET FRANK MARKEY TODAY. WHEN HE WAS YOUNG HE INTENDED TO BE A DOCTOR. HE ADMITTED I LOOKED BAD AND SHOWED ME SOME FIGURES TO PROVE THAT ALL BRAIN WORKERS BLOW UP PHYSICALLY AT ABOUT MY AGE.
I'VE FELT THIS COMING ON FOR MONTHS. YEARS. I DIDN'T SAY ANYTHING TO YOU BECAUSE....WELL, YOU CAN UNDERSTAND. OH WELL, WHY WORRY? WE'RE HERE TODAY AND GONE TOMORROW.
IT REMINDS ME OF A POEM. OH HEALTH, TO ALL A TREASURE DEAR. OBSERVED BY FEW WHEN IT IS NEAR. BUT FAR AWAY— LET ME THINK....WHAT'S THE REST OF THAT POEM?
WELL, GEORGE, NOW THAT YOU SPEAK OF IT, I'LL ADMIT YOU HAVEN'T LOOKED GOOD LATELY.
RIGHT. I'VE JUST BEEN TODDLING ALONG ON MY RESERVE ENERGY.
YES SIR, THERE'S BEEN A BIG CHANGE IN YOU LATELY. YOU SEEM SO—WELL—SO MUCH DULLER THAN USUAL.
DULLER? MY WORD, HOW DO YOU MEAN. DULLER? MY MIND IS ABSOLUTELY O. K! ABSOLUTELY!
WELL ANYHOW, LET'S NOT EVEN TALK ABOUT IT. I GOT SO BLUE THIS MORNING THINKING ABOUT EVERYTHING. ..ABOUT WHEN YOU WERE SO MUCH—WELL. BRIGHTER THAN NOW.
BRIGHTER? LISTEN, IF YOU THINK THERE'S ANYTHING LIKE THAT WRONG WITH ME ASK A FEW QUESTIONS. ABOUT ANYTHING. MAKE 'EM GOOD AND TOUGH. I'LL PROVE RIGHT NOW THAT I'M—
OH [illegible] I [illegible] YOU [illegible] ABOUT IT. I'M SO SORRY I SAID ANYTHING
LISTEN, MY WORD, MENTALLY I'M AS STRONG AS I'VE EVER BEEN IN MY LIFE. STRONGER, AWAY STRONGER!
WELL, GEORGE DEAR, LET'S TALK ABOUT SOMETHING ELSE. SOMETHING THAT ISN'T SO TERRIBLY DEPRESSING TO ME. OH DEAR ME!
AND PROMISE YOU WONT GET EXCITED. THAT'S THE WORST THING A PERSON LIKE YOU CAN DO. I'LL AGREE WITH ANYTHING YOU SAY. I KNOW YOUR HEALTH IS VERY BAD DEAR, AND—WHADDYE MEAN? MY HEALTH IS O. K. OF COURSE IT ISN'T EXACTLY PERFECT BUT IT'LL DO FOR AWHILE AND—
WELL ALL RIGHT DEAR. ANYTHING YOU SAY IS RIGHT. I KNOW IT'S WRONG TO ARGUE WITH A PERSON WHO'S IN YOUR FIX.
FIX? LISTEN MY HEALTH IS GREAT. LOOK! I'LL DO A HIGHLAND-FLING TO PROVE I'M ALL RIGHT. LOOK AT THIS HOOFING! DOES THAT LOOK AS THOUGH I'M SICK? DOES IT?
SUCH CRUST! THE IDEA OF CERTAIN PARTIES TRYING TO MAKE ME BELIEVE THAT EVERYTHING ABOVE MY EYEBROWS IS JUST FOG! TELL ME!

JUNIOR, RUN AND TELL MOTHER TO HURRY WITH THE LUNCH WE WANT TO GET STARTED - WE CAN'T AFFORD TO WASTE TOO MUCH TIME IN THE CITY ON A BEAUTIFUL DAY LIKE THIS STEP LIVELY, MOTHER, THERE IS NOTHING LIKE A DAY IN THE COUNTRY ON A DAY LIKE THIS WE SHOULD DO THIS OFTEN
WELL, THAT'S THAT - AND IT JUST HAD TO HAPPEN WHEN I STARTED OUT FOR A NICE DAY'S VACATION
HURRY UP, POP. WE DONT WANT TO SPEND THE WHOLE DAY HERE!
HONK
NOW THAT LOOKS LIKE A NICE PLACE TO PICNIC - IT'S A BEAUTIFUL SPOT
LETS GO OVER THIS CREEK AND GET FURTHER AWAY FROM THE GAS FUMES AND NOISE OF THE ROAD
YOU'D BETTER BE CAREFUL
DIDN'T I TELL YOU TO BE CAREFUL! AND THERE GOES OUR LUNCH.
HURRY UP AND GET DRY - I'M HUNGRY AND I AIN'T HAVING FUN ON THIS BUM PICNIC
OF COURSE YOU HAD TO GO ACROSS THE CREEK - WE COULDN'T HAVE PICNICKED ON THIS SIDE!!
THIS CHICKEN MUST HAVE A WOODEN LEG - NO CHICKEN COULD LIVE LONG ENOUGH TO GET SO TOUGH
DON'T KICK YOU DROPPED MY NICE FRIED CHICKEN IN THE CREEK - DON'T BLAME ANYBODY BUT YOURSELF
IS THAT YOUR CAR? - SOMEONE MUST HAVE BUMPED INTO IT - I DIDN'T SEE HIM OR YOU BETCHA YOUR LIFE I'D HAVE ARRESTED HIM
NO, OF COURSE YOU DIDN'T SEE IT - THE FELLOW DIDN'T RING A BELL OR BLOW A HORN WHEN HE DID IT
CHICKEN DIN
GEE, THIS IS GREAT - A BLIND SNAIL COULD WALK BACKWARD AND BEAT US IN - I WONDER WHY EVERYBODY HAS TO GO HOME AT ONCE?
WHY DIDN'T YOU LET THEM KNOW WHEN YOU WERE GOING HOME? - MAYBE THEY'D HAVE CHANGED THEIR PLANS FOR YOUR CONVENIENCE
HONK
HURRY UP - OPEN THIS DOOR! DO YOU THINK I CAN HOLD THIS KID ALL NIGHT?
YOU'VE WORKED YOURSELF UP TO A NICE TEMPER - IT WAS YOU WHO PROPOSED THIS TRIP AND YOU TOSSED THE LUNCH INTO THE SEA - DON'T BLAME ME, GROUCH
WHEN ARE WE GOING TO THE COUNTRY AGAIN, DADDY?
WELL, IF YOU EVER CATCH ME MOTORING INTO THE COUNTRY ON A SUNDAY AGAIN, YOU CAN SHOOT ME FOR A DODO BIRD - TODAY WAS THE MOST SUCCESSFUL FAILURE I EVER SPENT - THE ONLY FUN I HAD WAS THE ANTICIPATION OF IT

IT WON'T DO YOU ANY GOOD TO ARGUE WITH A TRUANT OFFICER! LITTLE BOYS WHO RUN LOOSE ON THE STREETS NEED THE FIRM, GUIDING HAND OF THE LAW!
THE LAW IS GOING TO NEED LONG LEGS IF IT CATCHES ME! I'VE GOT A DATE WITH MYSELF A MILE AWAY AND I'VE GOT TO HURRY TO KEEP IT!
COME BACK HERE, YOU LITTLE RASCAL!
I'LL BE SAFE HERE IN THE MILITARY SCHOOL! THE KIDS WILL HIDE ME! GEE, I'VE BEEN HOMESICK FOR THIS PLACE! WISH I HAD MY UNIFORM!
WHY, BLACKIE! WHAT ARE YOU DOING HERE?
I'M RUNNING AWAY FROM A TRUANT OFFICER!
MY BOY, I'M SORRY! BUT REMEMBER THAT YOU CAN NEVER ESCAPE ANYTHING BY RUNNING AWAY FROM IT! WE TAUGHT YOU TO BE MANLY HERE — SO FACE LIFE LIKE A MAN! ONLY A COWARD RUNS! AND COURAGE SETS EVERYTHING RIGHT!

SNAP!
I'LL GIVE MYSELF UP IF I'M STILL ALIVE WHEN I REACH THE OTHER SIDE OF THE STREET! THAT TRUCK JUST MISSED ME BY AN INCH, BUT I HAD TWO FEET AHEAD OF IT!
WHEW! THAT WAS A NARROW ESCAPE! THEY'RE GOING TO A FIRE AND I'M PUTTING MYSELF OUT TO GET MYSELF IN A HOT FIX! MY SHOES ARE SMOKING, BUT I'VE GOT TO KEEP COOL!
INSTEAD OF MISSING A TRAIN, I HAVE TO WAIT FOR IT TO PASS! THAT GIVES THE OFFICER A BIG LEAD, BUT I'LL TRACK HIM DOWN IF I HAVE TO SET TRAPS IN THE NEIGHBORHOOD!
JUNE 22, 1930
HEY. WAIT A MINUTE! DON'T BE AFRAID OF ME! I WON'T HURT YOU!
JUST UNDER THE WIRE, DEAR! SIX O'CLOCK SHARP!
WELL, WELL! THIS IS THE FIRST TIME IN MY CAREER THAT A TRUANT EVER CAUGHT ME INSTEAD OF ME CATCHING HIM! YOU'RE A GREAT BOY AND I WANT YOU TO STAY FOR SUPPER!
MY, MY! SO HE CHASED YOU ALL THE WAY HOME!

DUMB DORA

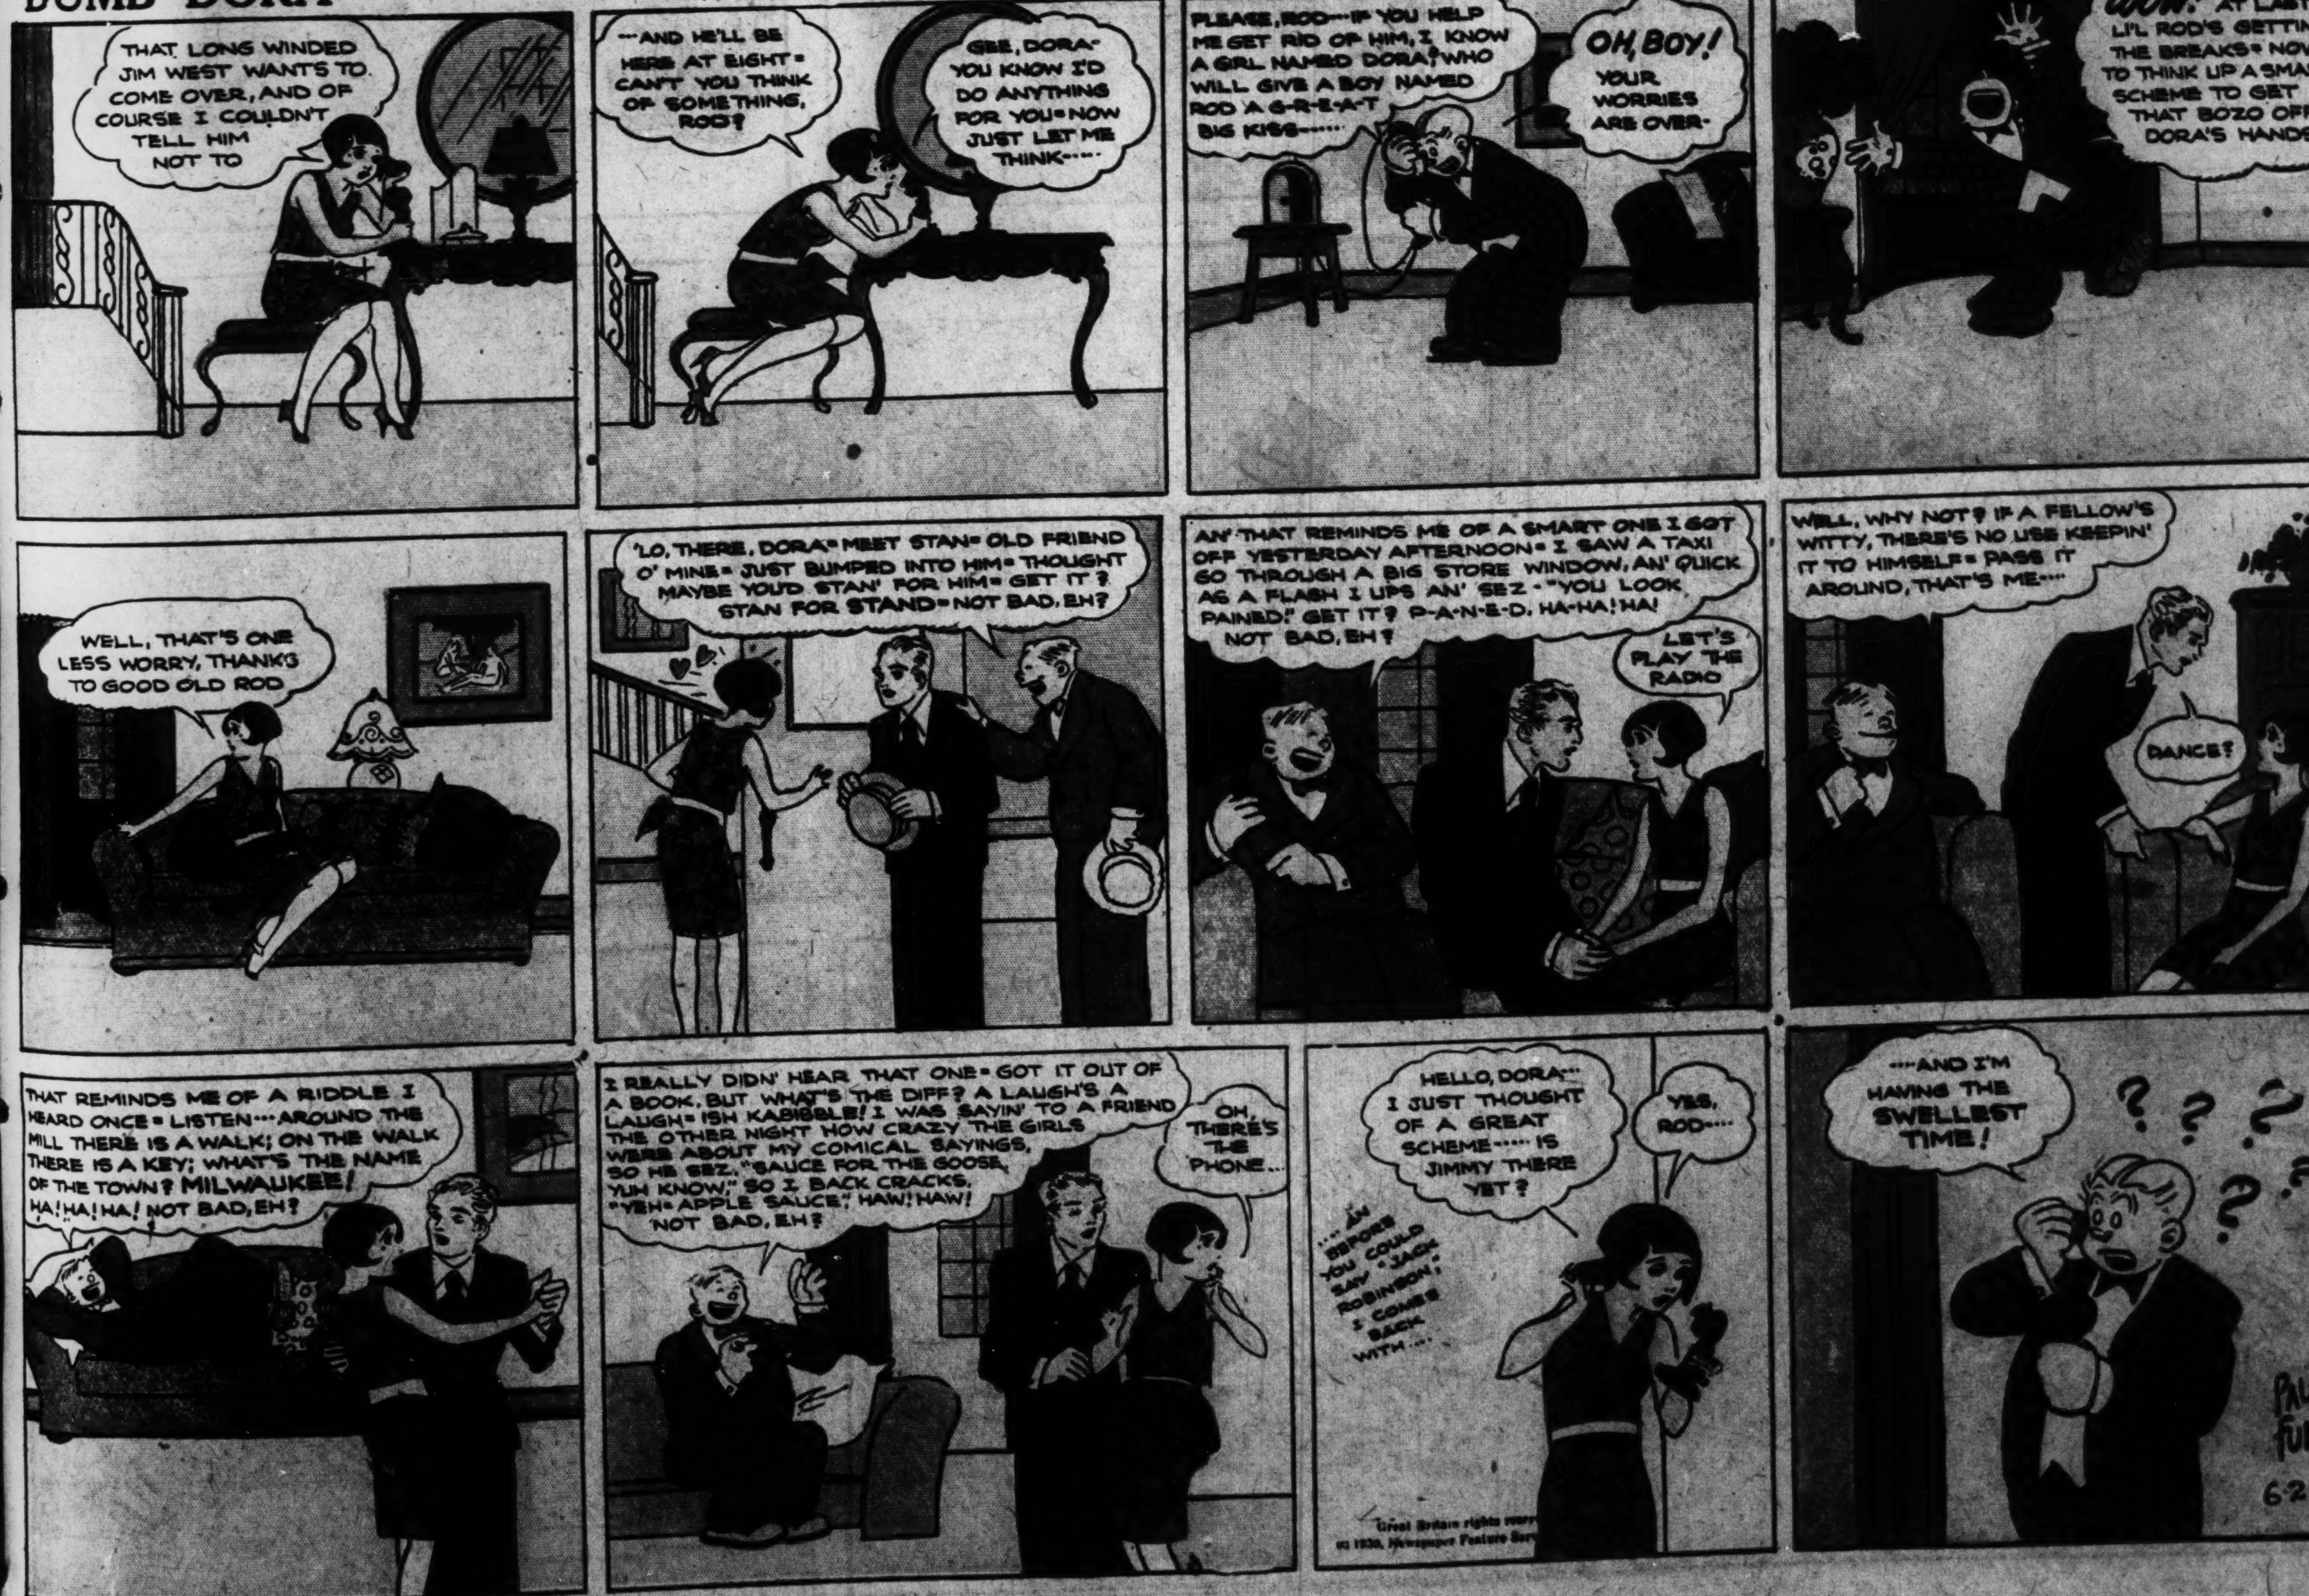
By PAUL FUNG

This comic appears every day in the daily Post-Dispatch



THAT LONG WINDED JIM WEST WANTS TO COME OVER, AND OF COURSE I COULDN'T TELL HIM NOT TO —AND HE'LL BE HERE AT EIGHT—CAN'T YOU THINK OF SOMETHING, ROD?
GEE, DORA—YOU KNOW I'D DO ANYTHING FOR YOU—NOW JUST LET ME THINK....
PLEASE, ROD—IF YOU HELP ME GET RID OF HIM, I KNOW A GIRL NAMED DORA WHO WILL GIVE A BOY NAMED ROD A G-R-E-A-T BIG KISS......
OH, BOY! YOUR WORRIES ARE OVER—
WOW! AT LAST LI'L ROD'S GETTIN' THE BREAKS—NOW TO THINK UP A SMART SCHEME TO GET THAT BOZO OFF DORA'S HANDS..
WELL, THAT'S ONE LESS WORRY, THANKS TO GOOD OLD ROD
'LO, THERE, DORA—MEET STAN—OLD FRIEND O' MINE—JUST BUMPED INTO HIM—THOUGHT MAYBE YOU'D STAN' FOR HIM—GET IT? STAN FOR STAND—NOT BAD, EH?
AN' THAT REMINDS ME OF A SMART ONE I GOT OFF YESTERDAY AFTERNOON—I SAW A TAXI GO THROUGH A BIG STORE WINDOW, AN' QUICK AS A FLASH I UPS AN' SEZ—"YOU LOOK PAINED!" GET IT? P-A-N-E-D. HA-HA! HA! NOT BAD, EH?
LET'S PLAY THE RADIO
WELL, WHY NOT? IF A FELLOW'S WITTY, THERE'S NO USE KEEPIN' IT TO HIMSELF—PASS IT AROUND, THAT'S ME....
DANCE?
THAT REMINDS ME OF A RIDDLE I HEARD ONCE—LISTEN...AROUND THE MILL THERE IS A WALK; ON THE WALK THERE IS A KEY; WHAT'S THE NAME OF THE TOWN? MILWAUKEE! HA! HA! HA! NOT BAD, EH?
I REALLY DIDN' HEAR THAT ONE—GOT IT OUT OF A BOOK, BUT WHAT'S THE DIFF? A LAUGH'S A LAUGH—ISH KABIBBLE! I WAS SAYIN' TO A FRIEND THE OTHER NIGHT HOW CRAZY THE GIRLS WERE ABOUT MY COMICAL SAYINGS, SO HE SEZ, "SAUCE FOR THE GOOSE, YUH KNOW," SO I BACK CRACKS, "YEH—APPLE SAUCE," HAW! HAW! NOT BAD, EH?
OH, THERE'S THE PHONE...
...AN BEFORE YOU COULD SAY "JACK ROBINSON," I COMES BACK WITH....
HELLO, DORA—I JUST THOUGHT OF A GREAT SCHEME..... IS JIMMY THERE YET?
YES, ROD....
...AND I'M HAVING THE SWELLEST TIME!
